Senate GOP Maneuvers For Tax Cut This Year

Democrats Back Foreign Relations Committee Plan To Switch Surplus

Senate Republicans yesterday maneuvered to underwrite tax reduction in this calendar year by an almost unprecedented budget bookkeeping shift.

They proposed what amounted to a transfer of three billion dollars from the current fat fiscal year surplus to next year's leaner balance to make tax reduction doubly sure.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee unanimously approved the plan as part and parcel of European Recovery Program financing. All Democratic members of the group, including Senate Administration Leader Alben Barkley (Ky.) "went along." The vote was 13 to 0.

Barkley Explains Vote

Barkley said he voted for the plan because he thought it improved ERP bill prospects but nonetheless termed it a "bookkeeping illusion."

But Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), not a member of the committee, called it "budget juggling," challenged the legality of the shift, and said he could not support any tax cut made possible by a surplus transfer alone.

Treasury Secretary John Snyder filed a letter of protest, but its contents were not immediately made public. In the House, Representative Albert Gore (Tenn.), budget scorekeeper for the Democrats, called it "more Republican legerdemain."

Sponsored by Millikin

The plan, sponsored by Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), after talks with an inner circle group of Republican policymakers, simply ties up three billion dollars of the current year's surplus in a Treasury trust fund, and specifies it be spent for ERP in the next fiscal year.

Spending for ERP will be charged against the trust fund until the three billion dollars are used up, and will be "considered as expended during the year 1948 for the purpose of reporting Government expenditures."

In other words, even if Congress appropriates the full $5,300,000,000 favored by the Foreign Relations Committee, the Government's books in fiscal year 1949 would show the spending of only $2,300,000,000 for ERP.

The net bookkeeping effect is to lighten next year's spending load by an equivalent three billion, making that much more available for tax reduction or any other purpose the Republican-controlled Congress wants to put it to.

Millikin, whose own committee will meet Monday to start work on a Senate edition of the House-passed tax reduction bill, frankly told reporters it makes it easier to cut taxes. He said he thought it improved the outlook for Marshall Plan legislation as well, and might make possible increased appropriations for the Air Forces, a GOP substitute for universal training.

He insisted that debt reduction "would not be injured in any way" and thought no more than $4,500,000,000 of this year's surplus ought to be applied to debt reduction anyway.

U. S. Attorney Admits Error In Fraud Case

'Mistake,' Fays Says After Quashing Of Four Charges

United States District Attorney Morris G. Fay admitted last night his office erred in judgment in dropping four of five charges of false pretense against a missing defendant.

The legal tangle developed after Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott charged the office with "setting an immoral precedent" in quashing the charges, a move that stands to save the bondsman $800.

Judge Scott had angrily refused, Monday, to give court approval of notice by the District Attorney's office of its nol prossing of four charges against Daniel Singleton, 23, of 1144 4th st. ne., after the defendant failed to appear for trial. He continued the case until next Monday "to find out if I can order the whole $1000 bail forfeit."

Action Held Legal

But because of the "mistake," it was learned last night, Bondsman William J. O'Neil is responsible only for the $200 levied against the one remaining charge. The nol pros action, whether agreeable or not to the court, is legal, it was said.

When the case came up with Singleton missing, Assistant United States Attorney James F. McKay announced the nol pros action. (Nolle prosequi is a declaration by the Government it does not believe

Ice Breakup Ends Potomac Flood Threat

The Potomac ice jam broke up yesterday under a warm sun, ending threat of flood.

The mercury waltzed through the 60s, reaching a high of 65 at 3 p. m. A similar performance is scheduled for today.

The Potomac broke its way through the 10-inch ice that had almost dammed up the river above Key Bridge.

Army Engineer and Weather Bureau observers reported that the danger of an overflow was past. The ice floes had piled up so wide and high Monday night—to 34 feet around Chain Bridge—that they threatened to choke the narrow channel and cause flooding of low-lying river areas.

Army Engineers said a flight up the river showed the stream clear of heavy ice all the way to Green Spring, W. Va., about 120 miles northwest of the District, where the North and South Branches form the Potomac.

After rising six tenths of a foot above flood mark Monday night at the Leiter Gauge 1½ miles above Chain Bridge, the river receded steadily through yesterday and by evening was 3 feet below flood level.

The ice still was packed above and around Chain Bridge last night, but the channel was flowing freely, the current carrying the floes down the river into the bay.

Ice jammed the Washington side of the river just above Key Bridge

Shift Believed in Line With New Economy Aim in Government

Moscow, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Alexei Kosygin has been made minister of finance and Arseny Gregorovitch Zverev, who had held the post for nine years, has been demoted to first deputy minister, it was announced today.

The action was approved by the presidium of the Supreme Soviet or parliament less than two weeks after the adjournment of a parliamentary session at which Zverev was criticized for not exercising sufficiently strict control over budget expenditures and revenues.

No explanation was given. The shift was believed, however, to reflect top-level desire to put the nation's highest governmental and political leaders in charge of finances in view of the demand for economies in industrial administra-

Politician Got $10,000 'Fee' To Get Parole, Gangster Says

Chicago, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—The wife of Louis (Little New York) Campagna, a former Capone gangster, testified before a congressional committee today that she paid $10,000 to Paul Dillon, St. Louis attorney and politician, for helping her husband obtain a parole from prison.

Mrs. Campagna, a well-dressed dark woman, said that she received a bill from Dillon for "professional services" and paid him by cashier's check last November. The House Committee is investigating the paroles of her husband and three of his Capone henchmen.

Dillon, who has been sought recently by Federal authorities, testified before the House Committee last September that he went to Washington and appeared before the U. S. Parole Board on behalf of Campagna.

He said that he was a friend of President Truman and that while in Washington he visited the White House and was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Truman. He said he knew Mr. Truman because he managed his senatorial campaign in the St. Louis area in 1934.

Dillon has been sought for questioning for several weeks by a Federal grand jury here which is investigating to determine whether there were irregularities in the paroles of the four Capone henchmen. The district attorney here said that efforts to serve a subpena on Dillon have been fruitless. It has been reported that Dillon is in Mexico City.

Mrs. Campagna testified that she got in touch with Dillon through "a personal friend," identified as the late Edward Brady, a one-time member of the Missouri Legislature.

She said she had not expected to receive a bill from Dillon.

"I went to him and asked him a favor," she said. "I said to him, 'If you can do anything to help my husband get his parole I would appreciate it.' He answered, 'If I can I will be glad to.' I thought he was doing a favor."

She said she had not "retained" Dillon to act for her, but rather only asked a favor.

Campagna, a former lieutenant for the late Scarface Al Capone, testified after his wife had concluded. He said that after Dillon appeared before the congressional

Monroney, LaFollette Urge Relief of Congress in D. C. Rule

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Two original sponsors of the idea that Congress should ease its own workload by getting out of its role as city council for the District yesterday made a strong new appeal for Washington home rule.

The two, Representative A. S. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) and former Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (R., Wis.), made the appeal for District home rule at the opening of Senate hearings on operation of the congressional reorganization law of which they were co-authors.

La Follette, as first witness, told the Senate Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Department that home rule should be delegated to the District and Congress relieved of municipal government affairs.

He recalled that the proposal to relieve Congress of the duties of running the District "failed to materialize" in the reorganization law of 1946. He said it was one of the provisions "we were sorry to lose."

Representative Monroney said that while the original plan for re-

Senate Plans Quick Action On Rent Bill

Controls Deadline, However, May Force Adoption of House's 30-Day Extension

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Senate leaders yesterday agreed to push for immediate action to extend rent controls for at least a year.

They conceded, however, that the February 29 deadline, when the present law expires, may force agreement with the House-proposed 30-day extension of the present law, pending final action on a new bill.

Acting Senate Republican Leader Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) tentatively scheduled debate to begin Friday on the 14-month extension bill approved Monday by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Hopes to Clear Legislation

Taft said he wanted to get rent control legislation out of the way so the Senate can open debate March 1 on the European Recovery Program and devote the rest of the month to that and tax reduction legislation.

Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking and Currency Committee, which voted a 30-day extension of the present law, said it was extremely doubtful if Congress could pass new legislation in time to meet the February 29 deadline.

Technically, Wolcott said, the House would be able to act if the Senate completes its work on the bill this week. The House group cannot meet until Monday, Wolcott pointed out, because so many Democratic members will be away for Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners.

If the House committee should agree on a bill Monday it would be Wednesday before the House could take it up under the rules. That would leave only four days to complete action and agree with the Senate.

Changes Would Cause Delay

If the House made any changes in the Senate measure, the bill would have to go to conference and lay over for 24 hours.

Despite calls for immediate action from the GOP Policy Committee and Senate Minority Leader Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.), it appears unlikely the Senate can finish its action this week.

There will be several efforts to amend the Senate bill from the floor. Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of the subcommittee which drafted the original version, said he would support some amendments if proposed by others.

Taft told reporters the GOP Policy Committee had approved the "principle" of continuing rent control "for a year or so."

AVC Urges Extension

The American Veterans Committee yesterday urged a 30-day extension of the present law to prevent enactment of "the type of crippling amendments proposed by the Cain subcommittee."

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday voted unanimously to continue Government controls through June, 1949, on tin, antimony, fats, oils and certain other scarce commodities.

Taft said the GOP policy-makers had discussed a 90-day extension instead, since there are certain commodities, such as quinine, the Government no longer needs to control. The House Banking Committee approved only a 30-day extension.

Action on all other controls and anti-inflation measures are slated for indefinite postponement.

Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) of the Senate Banking and Currency ,one of the few GOP advocates of anti-inflation measures, said yesterday he was ready to turn

Prices of Most Commodities Drop Again After 1-Day Rally

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Prices of most commodities went down again yesterday, after their one-day rally Monday.

A wave of selling in wheat that developed about midday, quickly affected other grains. At the end of a hectic session, wheat was 3½ to 4½ cents below Monday's close; corn was 2⅛ cents higher to 3½ lower; oats were from ½ a cent to 1¾ cents lower.

Soybeans resisted the trend, closing from 4 to 7 cents higher after going 8 cents above the previous close shortly after the opening.

The same lack of confidence marked the New York Stock Exchange. After an early hint of strength, the market turned sluggish.

Hogs were slightly lower, although wholesale pork prices were up in both Chicago and New York. Cotton was $1.55 to $2.30 a bale lower in New York. Wholesale butter jumped 3 to 4 cents in New York, and 1½ to 4 cents in Chicago.

While prices were seesawing about on the exchanges, Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), ranking minority member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, resumed his battle with the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee investigating speculation in commodities.

Three of Thomas' close friends, all listed as market speculators, reported their offices were raided early in January by committee investigators. Thomas charged the raids were an effort to get evidence to use in "smearing" him.

The three are Tyke Cullum, former postmaster of Silver Spring, Md., and now head of the National Commodity Corp.; Ralph Moore, 1707 M st. nw., and Marty Heflin, advertising man, with offices in the National Press Building.

Cullum charged that on January 10, two committee investigators accompanied by Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms Charles Derr, were waiting for him when he reached his office at 10 a. m. They had a subpena, he said, for all records dealing with Cullum's trading.

"When I offered to take the papers to the committee, or furnish whatever they wanted, the three men stepped outside, where they were joined by three more."

Butter Price Increase Due Here Today

Some Dairies Plan 95-96 Cent Charge As Quotations Rise

Erratic butter prices, which have zoomed up and down to the confusion of housewives and industry officials, are scheduled to start another rise here today.

Several dairies will post increases of 4 cents a pound, with home-delivered prices ranging from 95 to 96 cents.

Other purveyors indicated they may continue temporarily prices 4 to 5 cents lower, raising them later in the week unless market costs change.

Most larger stores today will keep prices of 85 to 87 cents a pound, in accordance with weekend advertised prices in effect until the close of today's business, and then raise prices.

Exchange Prices Climb

The increases follow the second straight day of price climbs on wholesale exchanges, which wiped out a 5-to-6 cent butter drop last Friday. Butter regained up to 2½ cents on Monday and 3 to 4 cents yesterday on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Ninety-three score butter was quoted at 85½ cents yesterday, and 92 score, the most widely used grade, at 84 cents. Normally, there is a differential of 5 to 6 cents between bulk prices in New York and local wholesale prices, and three to five days in the time New York listings become effective here.

Variations in Charges

One dairy which sold butter at $1.05 last week and has since reduced its price to 92 cents said it would continue that price "until we buy again." Another charged 99 cents last week, 90 cents yesterday, and was uncertain about today's price.

Two others raising prices to 96 charged 99 cents last week and 92 cents yesterday.

A butter wholesaler declared that most stores selling butter at 85 cents were losing 5 cents on each pound. He forecast a general 3-to-4 cent increases by the weekend.

Egg prices also were raised by one large dairy, effective today, from 65 to 69 cents for home delivery. This change, however, was not general in the industry.

Georgia Coach Defies New KKK Threat

Hooded Order Said To Plan Demonstration At Basketball Game

Rossville, Ga., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Ku Klux Klan planned a demonstration against the Lakeview, Ga., high school coach and the school's principal tonight at a Rossville, Ga., basketball game, according to reports.

Coach Walter Bowland said today he has been informed anonymously that "tonight is the night."

On February 4 Bowland said he had been warned "to leave town or be tarred and feathered."

"I have been receiving anonymous threats for the last two weeks that a Klan demonstration against me was being planned for tonight at Rossville," said Bowland. ("A lady called me last night and said she heard two men discussing the plan."

He said he would take his team to Rossville for the game and "be prepared for anything they (the Klan) want to do." He said that he had been armed at all times since he received the "tar and feather" threat.

The principal, John B. Burks, who also reported receiving threats, said he refused to be intimidated by the klan and had armed himself for protetcion.

The threats were originally inspired, said Bowland, by a fight at the Lakeview gymnasium between himselfb and Marion Mayes, a student at the University of Chattanooga and former member of the Lakeview High.

Shortly afterward, 18 hooded men lighted a cross in front of his house while he was away on a basketball trip. He said his wife kicked over the cross and called the hooded men, "yellow cowards."

ALP Candidate Tops Rivals' Total Vote; Wide Implications Seen by Politicians

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Henry A. Wallace yesterday jolted Democratic hopes of holding New York in November in a special election upset of wide implications.

Leo Isacson, American Labor Party candidate, heavily backed by Wallace to win, walked away with a normally Democratic Bronx House seat.

It was Wallace's first test at the polls since he broke with the Democratic Administration to form a third party and make his own bid for the Presidency.

Wallace had stumped New York's Twenty-fourth Congressional (Bronx) District for Isacson in a race closely watched by both major paries for some clew to his voter pull.

Mrs. Roosevelt Backed Loser

Karl Propper, the Democratic nominee, had the support of Edward J. Flynn's once powerful Democratic machine, plus the backing of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and William O'Dwyer, popular New York Mayor.

Isacson won with 22,697 votes to 12,578 for Propper. Dean Alfange, the Liberal Party entry, ran third with 3840 votes. Republican nominee Joseph de Negris trailed with 1482.

The Wallace-backed Isacson thus polled more than the other three candidates combined.

The Democratic National Committee withheld comment pending a study of the vote. Some Democrats close to headquarters conceded the disturbing nature of the upset, granted it would probably give a fillip to the Wallace movement, but pooh-poohed the results as any indication of a national trend.

They denied it was a "typical" big city district and said the results could be exaggerated even as an index to Wallace's New York city strength.

They were clearly shocked, however, by the extent of the Isacson slide. Some had hoped the returns would show a diminution in ALP strength, reflecting the walkout of Amalgamated Clothing Workers leaders on the Wallace movement.

"Communist Menace"—Flynn

Republicans, who had no real hope of electing their own man, were chiefly cheered by the increasing possibility that Wallace can drive a cleaver deep enough into New York City Democratic strength to throw the State Republican in November.

In New York, Isacson-Wallace leaders termed the vote "a resounding repudiation by the people of the policies of the Truman Administration, policies which are leading down the road to war."

Isacson himself termed it "a victory for Henry A. Wallace and

4th Va. District Elects Abbitt To Congress

Petersburg, Va., Feb. 17 (AP).—Watkins M. Abbitt, a Democrat and former Commonwealth's Attorney of Appomattox County, today was elected to Congress from District to succeed the late Patrick Henry Drewry of Petersburg.

With returns tabulated from 128 of the district's 153 precincts, Abbitt led State Senator Morton G. Goode of Dinwiddie by more than 2000 votes and was expected to break at least even in the missing precincts.

The 128 precincts gave Abbitt 11,665 votes to 9539 votes for Goode, 1595 for Robert W. Arnold, jr., of waverly and 765 for T. Robert Cocks.

Cocks is the only Republican to seek election to Congress in this rock-ribbed Democratic district in a generation.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Rep. Mike Monroney a Good Newspaperman Before He Began to Shine as a Legislator

Friends of Representative A. S. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) will tell you he was a corking good newspaperman but is an even better Congressman.

Monroney

Monroney who yesterday renewed his plea for D. C. home rule as part of the program to streamline Congress, joined the staff of the Scripps-Howard Oklahoma News in Oklahoma City in 1924 after getting his diploma from the University of Oklahoma.

He spent about six years in the newspaper business. In 1930 he took over his father's furniture business in Oklahoma City and piloted it through the depression years.

His first venture into politics was in 1937 and he lost a special election for a congressional seat. He tried again in the regular election the following year and won. He's remained here since.

On many occasions Monroney has found himself with the minority in Congress. He was one of those who voted for the fortification of Guam. He has fought for inflation control.

In 1945 Monroney received the Collier's Award for distinguished congressional service. He coauthored the Congressional Reorganization Act.

He's a Phi Beta Kappa, too. The Congressman lives at 2458 Wyoming ave. nw.

Eric A. Johnston

Eric A. Johnston, 52, czar of the billion-dollar movie industry, and former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, who yesterday denied collusion between producers and labor unions in the Hollywood movie strike, is a native of Washington, D. C.

Johnston

President Roosevelt is said to have asked Johnston how he had been elected president of the United States Chamber of Commerce (youngest man to hold that office) after advocating cooperation between business and Government.

Johnston took the union problem by the horns in conferences with American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations leaders, freely conceding the "deadly sins" of business. At that time, Johnston, as Chamber of Commerce head, advised labor to study management's mistakes, declaring, "It's just three jumps from the master bedroom to the doghouse."

Johnston began his career as a vacuum cleaner salesman in Spokane, Wash., went on to head four business concerns with 1700 employes before becoming Chamber president at 46.

Johnston became president of the Motion Picture Association of America, succeeding Will H. Hays, late in 1945.

Judge Armond W. Scott

Judge Armond W. Scott, currently at odds with the district attorney's office over quashing charges to reduce a bondsman's liability, is no stranger to discord.

Scott

Grandson of a slave, he learned rather late he wasn't getting far taking life as it comes. That was after playing and paying his way through law schools with his 150-year-old violin, and law practice failures in Washington and Wilmington, N. C. Between, he earned a living as butler, janitor and elevator operator.

He was hopping bells in a Sarasota, Fla., hotel when "shamed" into trying again to crack a living out of a Washington law practice. The guest who rang turned out to be the State Supreme Court justice (N. C.) who had presided over Scott's admittance to the bar examination.

In 1935, President Roosevelt appointed Scott to the Municipal Court bench.

Judge Scott spoke out for his convictions, made friends and enemies. He blasted lawyers late for cases, harangued those who turned the other way when destitute defendants needed the law's help. He was particularly severe on persons found guilty of carrying concealed weapons.

He was reappointed in 1939, and again in 1943, this time for the new Municipal Court term of 10 years.

Now 70, and one of the most active judges here, he is president of the Robert H. Terrell Law School, at 1922 13th st. nw.

Twice married (his first wife died 19 years ago on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary) he has one son, Armond W. Scott, jr., serving in the law division of the Library of Congress, and two grandchildren.

Gen. Meyers Indicted for Tax Evasion

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Bennet E. Meyers, already charged with perjury, was indicted today on a charge of evading $15,658 in 1941 income taxes.

The retired general, second ranking Army Air Forces procurement officer during the war, was accused of giving his 1941 income as $3808 while actually he made $36,301.

Meyers, 52, is under indictment for perjury in Washington and awaiting trial February 24 on charges that he lied to a Senate investigating committee and induced Bleriot H. Lamarre, a former business associate, to do likewise.

Meyers denied before the committee that he was connected with the Aviation Electric Co. of Dayton, Ohio. Lamarre, who first backed him up, later admitted the company was operated by the general.

Today's indictment alleges that Meyers, in 1941, obtained $32,493 from Aviation Electric.

Lamarre told Senate investigators the general had used him as a "dummy president" of the concern and made more than $150,000 out of its war contracts.

Meyers said today the income tax charge was "absolutely ridiculous" and "a further smear attempt for which there was no justification whatsoever."

City Heads Dismiss Patrolman Jones On Three Charges

The Commissioners yesterday upheld a decision by the Police Trial Board and dismissed Pvt. Jerome J. Jones of the Tenth Precinct.

The board had found Jones guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer, maltreating a prisoner and drawing his revolver without justification. It held that on January 3, Jones entered the premises of Mrs. Mae Davis at 650½ Newton pl. nw., without lawful right, and arrested Peter J. Stathis without justification.

Cullum said he told the committee, when called before a closed meeting, that part of his records were never returned.

"They acted like they were raiding a dope joint," he said.

"Among the records taken and never returned were an offer to buy and a bid for the sale of seven million pounds of dried peas for the Army," Cullum said.

The bid, he said, was to be presented the following Monday in Chicago. Because the raiders took his papers, he said, the Army transaction was delayed. Peas went down and by the time the deal was closed, the price netted by Cullum was $70,000 less than he would have received, he said.

Cullum said he had discussed the matter with his attorneys, who had advised that the raid was in violation of his constitutional rights. He is waiting for the return of his papers before deciding his future action, he said.

Much the same story was told by Moore. Moore, however, declared that he didn't believe that the members of the committee "would indorse" the actions of their raiders.

Moore accused the investigators are being "most unpleasant" and "very discourteous."

Moore, too, charged Investigator Sanborn with taking "a lot of personal correspondence that had no connection with any trading deals."

Heflin could not be reached for the story of his raid. However, Cullum said Heflin, who once managed Thomas' election campaign, was dragged from his office to an automobile, and threatened with arrest. Friends interceded and got permission for him to return for his hat and coat before being taken to the Capitol building.

Meantime witnesses argued both for and against a law giving the Department of Agriculture power to fix margin requirements for speculation in commodities before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Richard F. Uhlmann, vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade, took sharp issue with Senator Milton Young (R., N. Dak.) about recent market operations.

Uhlmann declared "there couldn't have been any collusion" among the Nation's commodity ex-

Duststorms Threaten Kansas, Nebraska Wheat

The Kansas and Nebraska wheat crop is threatened by duststorms and lack of moisture, The Denver Post reported yesterday.

A dust cloud lasting 36 hours billowed across the fertile North Platte River Valley, with clouds at times thick enough to obscure motorists' vision, the Post reported.

The Post said a survey brought from farmers and soil conservation authorities pessimistic forecasts concerning the 1948 yield. changes to "rig the grain market."

Young had charged that the exchange had joined last year to urge Congress to pass a law requiring a minimum carryover of 150 million bushels of wheat this year. This law, Young asserted, was one cause for the recent break in grain prices.

Uhlmann termed speculation a legitimate and essential factor in commodity markets. Instead of giving the Government power to fix higher cash margins, for dealing in futures, he said, the present 33 1/3 per cent requirement should be lowered.

Other witnesses gave conflicting views on the causes of the recent break.

J. T. Sanders, legislative counsel for the National Grange, urged approval of the bill. It is needed, he said, to "curb a class of professional speculators."

"Strategically located to market information sources," he said, "this group of traders manages to benefit far more than any outsiders by unjustified fluctuation in prices. It is to their advantage to play the market up or down."

R. H. Sturtevant of the Kansas City Board of Trade, declared that speculation had nothing to do with forcing wheat prices up to the peak from which they suddenly tumbled February 4.

Heavy Government buying, he said, and the fact that farmers held their wheat from the market until after January 1 in order to hold down their 1947 taxes, were the immediate causes of high prices earlier in the year.

the whole issue over to the law of supply and demand.

"I think the peak of the high price range has passed," he told reporters. "I think the edge is off the price problem."

His committee, he said, will wait and see what happens before acting on further measures to control prices.

The committee completed monthlong hearings on various control bills February 5, the day after the markets went into a decline.

Children's Church Service Scheduled

The first of a series of six Children's Community Church services sponsored by the Janney School Parent-Teacher Association and four churches will be held at St. Columbia's Episcopal Church, 42d and Albemarle sts. nw., tomorrow at 8:30 a. m.

The Rev. C. Randolph Mengers, pastor of St. Columba's, will speak on "Temptations of Jesus."

Participating churches are Wisconsin Avenue Baptist Church, St. Columba's, Eldbrooke Methodist Church, and River Road United Presbyterian Church.

the third party—the people's party." Wallace had left before the vote on a campaign tour. He was in Tampa, Fla., last night.

Flynn, who had always held the district safely Democratic before, said the returns meant "the Communist menace to this country is much greater than most people thought."

"This eletcion brings home forcefully that those who are opposed to communism do not exercise their franchise," said Flynn. "This is a deplorable situatoin. Regimented Communists vote while those who oppose communism do not take the trouble to do so. I hope that this eletcion will serve as a warning."

Less Than Half 1946 Vote

Democrats here likewise stressed the lightness of the vote, less than half the total cast in 1946 for all candidates in the district.

Saying the district itself is "a typical" rather than typical of those in other big cities, one congressional Democrat argued that while Democrats won there in 1946, with 39,316 votes, the ALP candidate was the next-strongest vote-getter with 24,249.

it has enough evidence to proceed and desires to drop the charge.) McKay said later he was acting for Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson, who subsequently defended the action as both "justifiable and proper."

U. S. District Attorney Fay Wilson's chief, after a long conference with Wilson yesterday, issued the following statement:

"I have investigated the facts in this case I am convinced that the action taken was merely a mistake of judgment in nol prossing of the cases without the defendant being present."

Faces Further Action

It was learned, however, that as soon as Judge Scott forfeits the bond on the remaining charge, action will be taken to apprehend Singleton and return him to this jurisdiction. When this is done, new papers can be issued on the four charges.

Stassen Sees GOP In By Less Than 71 Electoral Votes

Missoula, Mont., Feb. 17 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota Governor now campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, predicted today that less than 71 Electoral College votes will separate the major parties after the November elections.

Stassen, making a luncheon address during a visit to Montana State University, said that Montana was one of the 11 Western States "which should be won by our Republican Party in the national election in November.

"These 11 Western States will have 71 electoral votes," said Stassen, "and the indications at this time would be that the final margin of victory for the national election will be less than this number . . ."

Earlier, Stassen urged that Americans support the principles set forth by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in his final report as Chief of Staff to President Truman.

Truman, Marshall Salute UNESCO

Holds Peace Hope, They Tell National Commission Here

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall yesterday expressed their long-range faith that the answers to world peace will be found in the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

The President told 99 members of the United States National Commission, which advises on and carries out the decisions of UNESCO in this country, that "eventually we will solve" the hard problems. Mr. Truman said he was "anoptimist."

He hoped that the Commission would continue its work "so that nine-tenths of the decisions I now have to make will never come to this desk."

White House Reception

"You can do that," he said at the White House reception. "That will mean peace in the world. That will mean enough for everybody. That will mean that a real world bill of rights will go into effect, just the same as we are trying to put into effect in the United States today."

Secretary Marshall, who made an impromptu appearance at the opening session of the Commission at 1778 Pennsylvania ave., admitte "some confusion trying to separate myself from the latest thing with which I was dealing prior to this meeting."

"Things happen these days with such rapidity and are of such tremendous importance that it is very hard to keep one's mental processes in the proper state of coordination," he said.

"This effort presents, I feel, the most hopeful sign of the long-term efforts to compose things in the world. You cannot accomplish your purpose, of course, in a matter of minutes which in a long process requires great vision and a great deal of tolerance and even more of persistence."

The commission speedily approved UNESCO's recommendations at the Mexico City Conference last November, and allocated the various projects among private organizations, for the most part represented by members in the commission. The group represents universities, farmers, labor unions, scientists and other organizations which have a tremendous following.

Dr. Eisenhower's Views

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College and president of the Commission, declared that UNESCO "cannot hope to accomplish its purpose unless it involves more and more private citizens.

"UNESCO's high-level scholarly attack on the problem of peace must be supplemented by activities in which great masses of people can take part," he declared.

Racial and religious intolerance are "raw material from which war may be made," he added.

A warning that UNESCO would become a form of escapism for persons at the grass roots," was made by Lawrence Duggan of New York.

"There are too many people who are ready to enjoy a vicarious participation in UNESCO's projects overseas—such as fundamental education in Africa—who are unwilling to face up to local messy situations that need correction—such as denial of civil rights," he declared.

The commission agreed that the primary project is reconstruction in war-ravaged countries of educational, scientific and cultural institutions. The United States, through donations by individuals and organizatoins has contributed 150 million dollars in the last 18 months for that purpose, it was reported.

The meeting will be resumed at 9:30 a. m. today.

Former G-Girl Reported Missing

8 U. S. Carrier Men Lost in Launch Crash

Hyeres, France, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Eight United States Navy men were missing and feared dead today after a launch from the aircraft carrier Midway smashed into a signal pylon and sank, French naval officials reported.

The launch was carrying 160 to 200 officers and men of the Midway from a party given in their honor by the people of this French Mediterranean port. The accident occurred at 2 a. m.

The commandant of the French naval base reported that one officer and seven men were missing after rescue boats had picked up all the survivors that could be found. The official reports superseded an earlier announcement that 40 were missing, and rumors that 15 bodies had been recovered.

The people of Hyeres had given a gala farewell party at the casino for the men of the Midway, scheduled to sail today for Taranto, Italy.

New British Envoy To Have Minister As Special Aide

London, Feb. 17.—Sir Oliver Franks, British Ambassador-designate to the United States, will have a special assistant with the rank of minister, it was learned tonight. He will be Frederick Robert Hoyer Millar, who has been assistant or private secretary to four British foreign secretaries.

The appointment, it was understood, was decided upon in order to give Sir Oliver time to devote his main attention to problems connected with Britain's role in the Marshall Plan.

Millar is expected to undertake most of the routine work and domestic engagements which would ordinarily be handled by the Ambassador.

5 U. S. Fliers Arrested By Poland Released

Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Five U. S. Air Force fliers, arrested yesterday because they did not have authority to enter Poland, have been released and authorized to return to their Berlin base, the U. S. Embassy announced today.

The fliers brought Ambassador Stanton Griffis here yesterday. They were arrested and confined under guard when they left the flying field because weather conditions prevented an immediate return.

Russians Seize Railroad Cars to Punish Austria

Vienna, Feb. 16 (NYHT).—Because Austria declined to send a commercial delegation to Moscow empowered to make binding agreements, the Russians have been moving railroad cars, vital to the local economy, eastward at the rate of 100 a day.

More than 1000 cars have been shunted through Hungary into Romania, it was learned tonight. If this continues, it was said, the Austrian railways, just beginning to perk up, will be dealt a crushing blow.

Burglary Suspect Held in $25,000 In Alexandria

Edward T. Monroe, 38, of 730 Columbus st., Alexandria, was held in $25,000 bond yesterday for trial in Alexandria Corporation Court on 10 charges of burglary and grand larceny.

Monroe pleaded innocent to all of the charges. He was indicted by the Alexandria grand jury Monday.

Police said that shortly after his arrest o na grand larceny charge January 8, he confessed to a series of safe crackings in the latter half of 1947.

Only 3 of the 23 men indicated Monday pleaded guilty at their arraignment yesterday. They were: Troy L. Nichols, 23, Lake, W. Va., indicted on three counts of forgery; William Green, 43, Mutual Ice Co. bunk house, 900 block Henry st., charged with felonious assault, and Carroll Ellis, 34, of 711 King st., chargew with burglary.

Sentencing in these cases and trials of the others were continued until the March term of court.

Talk Set

Truce Sought On Alcoholic Clinic Setup

The Commissioners yesterday moved to avert possible ronfliit between the proposed independent asioholic clinic and other District agencies.

Commissioner Guy Mason said he would ask Chairman E. Goring Blis sto reconvene his citizens' advisory committee and discuss "coordination" details with Health Department officials.

The Commissioners' Advisory Committee on the Alcoholic Clinic, headed by Colonel Bliss, recommended January 29 that the District set up an independent alcoholic clinic directed by a $10,000-a-year doctor directly responsible to the city heads.

It's report contained no recommendations, however, concerning use by the independent clinic of facilities at Gallinger Hospital, the Health Department, District jail and other agencies, Mason pointed out.

Mason announced the decision after the Commissioners conferred with Health Officer George C. Ruhland and Dr. Leopold Wexberg, director of mental hygiene, who has been operating Health Department alcoholic clinics here for more than two years.

Douglass Urges More Research in Social Sciences

The Federal Government has appropriated millions of dollars for scientific research but not a cent for reasearch in the means for preventing mass homicide, Dr. Paul F. Douglass said yesterday.

The American University president speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Advertising Club said that he would like to see the government make at least a $10 appropriation in the social science field

The armed forces each year are taking the best of high school graduates and educating them in special fields at Government expense, he said.

As a result, local communities shortly will be destitute of successful men.

"We will have a trained elite—selected by Government and trained to perpetuate their own leadership," Douglass said.

Hearing on Armory Uses to Be Open

An open hearing on control over the nonmilitary uses of the District Armory has been called for 10 a. m. today in Room 445, Old House Office Building.

The hearing will be conducted by the House District Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.). The meeting earlier had been announced as an executive session for tomorrow.

organizing Congress recommended District home rule, "we still have many members of Congress tied up in purely District problems."

He cited the fact that 14 subcommittees of the two houses now handle District legislation, and declared:

"It is to be hoped that the fine work now being done by Congressman Auchincloss and his committee, and its director, Dr. Galloway, will result in the removal of this extraneous workload from Congress."

He was referring to the home rule plan, calling for an elected council and appointed city manager government in Washington, which is being sponsored by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) and Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.). Dr. George C. Galloway is home rule committee staff director.

Dr. Galloway is slated to be a witness when the hearing on the reorganization law resumes at 10 a. m. today in Room 357, Senate Office Building.

La FoHette also urged that a central personnel office with a single administrator should be set up at the Capitol. He proposed stronger personnel safeguards in hiring and firing professional employes of committees. He recommended setting up a Capitol stenographic pool and said that House members should have administrative assistants as provided by the reorganization law for Senators.

Share in 6 Millions Won't Alter Life, Mrs. Cross Says

Mrs. Whitman Cross, who lives at 3901 Connecticut ave. nw., isn't going to let sharing in a six million dollar estate change her way of living.

Mrs. Cross, active in public and private welfare, and one of the organizers of the Washington Community Chest, said last night "I've retired from everything—just living a quiet, private life."

She will inherit the six million dollar estate, in trust, with seven relatives, ad will receive $10,000 becides. The estate was left by a brother, Moses T. Stevens, North Andover, Mass, textile magnate, who died February 4.

Mrs. Cross is the wife of a retired geological survey official. Her hobby of raising roses brought her national fame. She was first president of the Council of Social Agencies and an early member of the Board of Public Welfare. She also is a former president of the Visiting Nurse Society and an organizer of the Juvenile Protective Association.

U. S. Red Cross Unit to Hold Rally Today

Climaxing a series of pre-campaign meetings, the Government unit of the 1948 Red Cross fund-raising drive will hold a rally of several thousand key workers in the Departmental Auditorium at noon today.

Scheduled speakers include Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, chairman of the Government unit of the forthcoming campaign; Joseph C. Grew, general campaign chairman; and Defense Secretary James Forrestal.

A Red Cross campaign film will be shown at the close of the rally. The full drive for $1,080,000 opens March 1.

Robert Woods Bliss, chairman of the special gifts division, urged solicitors, at a luncheon meeting yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce Building, to seek more substantial gifts.

"By next Tuesday—our last pre-campaign report meeting," he said, "we must be in the home stretch. We shall need to double attendance and double reports. . ."

More than 50 residential unit area leaders, meeting later in the same place, were urged to try to meet their quota first—as they did last year.

"Yours is a unique responsibility," General Campaign Chairman Grew told volunteers. "Your job is to take the appeal to the very heart of the community . . . to the homes of the people who live here."

E. K. Morris, residential unit chairman, announced that $84,000 is the unit's quota. Quotas of other units follow: Government, $494,000; general business, $315,100; city, $54,000; residential, $84,000; Alexandria, $19,900; Arlington, $24,150; Fairfax, $15,000; Montgomery, $38,000; Prince Georges, $18,900; booths, $16,950.

Three County Offices to Offer Md. Auto Tags Tomorrow

As sale of Maryland automobile license plates gets underway tomorrow, three points in nearby Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties have been designated as purchase points.

In Prince Georges County tags will be sold in the office of County Treasurer James B. Bland at the Upper Marlboro Courthouse and at the County Service Building in Hyattsville, between 8:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. daily except Saturday and Sunday.

In Montgomery County, the only purchase point is the Rockville Courthouse.

Car owners should bring their application, mailed from the Bureau of Motor Vehicles in Baltimore. All persons who own tags now will be given a 1949 "tag" to clip on the corner of the present plates. Maryland license plates expire March 31.

In Virginia tags will not go on sale until March 15, with the deadline for purchasing licenses falling a month later. Separate agencies will bet set up in Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties.

U. S. Gas and Oil Exports Halted

New Cut in Quotas Expected to Save Fuel for Homes

By The Associated Press

The Commerce Department last night halted the issuance of all export licenses for gasoline and fuel oil for 48 hours.

Before Friday a new cut in export quotas probably will be announced, a department spokesman said, to save oil for chilly American homes.

The decision was announced after two false starts. Shortly after 5 p. m., EST, the department told reporters of the temporary license suspension.

Within half an hour an information official notified reporters that the suspension "has been called off." Instead, he said, an announcement of a cut in quotas was being prepared. Then—in another half haur—the department officially announced that the suspension was in force.

Will Study Needs Abroad

The cutoff of licensing will permit officials to scan foreign oil needs. American embassies abroad have been queried and a good many replies have been received.

They indicated, a spokesman said, that foreign governments can stand another cut in oil deliveries. Shipment sto 30 or more countries were slashed by 3,700,000 barrels on January 30.

A week ago all shipments were halted from the East Coast, the worst shortage area. That order did not block shipments from West Coast and Gulf ports, however.

Affects All Ports

The new action bars licenses for shipment from any port. When it is lifted Friday morning, the spokesman said, the East Coast embargo will remain in force. It is due to run to March 31.

Other developments came along to cheer chilly householders:

An Italian decision to let this country use 10 tankers to bring in Caribbean oil was announced by the Maritime Commission.

Italy has bought the United States-built vessels, but they are still in the commission's laid-up fleet. Delivery of six other tankers to Italy will be delayed.

Two oil company presidents forecast improving supplies, in testimony before the House Interstate Commerce Committee. They were M. J. Rathbone, head of Esso Standard Oil Co., and Robert G. Dunlop, president of Sun Oil.

where Dempsey's Boat House suffered the heaviest damage along the stream. Chunks of ice crushed the docks and piled up to the roof of the two-story building. Damage was reported at $4,200, according to Harbor Police.

Damage ranging from $200 to $450 was also reported by the Washington, Potomac, Wanner's, and Baxter's boat houses. Some damage also was caused at Memorial and Highway Bridges.

Yesterday's off-with-the-coat weather is due to continue today. The 65 maximum temperature was the year's high, warmest since 66 was registered last November 5. Record high for February 17 was 74, in 1891.

Pittsburgh CabbieSlain; Police Provide Escort

Pittsburgh, Feb. 17 (AP).—The fatal shooting of a young Yellow Cab driver in the steel city's three-day-old taxi strike today brought orders to provide police escort to cabs providing emergency service.

Police Lieut. Peter Connors said Joshua Allen, 35, a driver for the Owl Cab Co. was charged with murder in the shooting of Louis E. Di Lembo, 28, and that Robert Massie was charged with accessory to murder.

The strike of 1100 Yellow Cab drivers began Sunday in support of their demands for 54 per cent of meter receipts instead of the present 45 per cent commission.

$10,000 Parole Fee Revealed

committee last September, he raised the fee $3000—from $7000 to $10,000.

He confirmed his wife's testimony of receiving a bill from Dillon and said he went with his wife to a bank to get the $10,000 check.

He said he later was reimbursed $5000 by Paul Deluccia (alias Ricca), who is one of the other Capone hoodlums who received paroles.

The other two are Philip D'Andrea and Charles (Cherry Nose) Gioe. All were paroled last August on orders of the U. S. Parole Board after having served only 3½ years of 10-year sentences.

All were convicted at New York in 1943 on charges of having conspired to extort more than $1,500,000 from the motion picture industry on threats of calling strikes and creating labor violence.

Campagna said he had thought that Dillon's appearance before the parole board was a favor.

"I didn't know I owed Dillon any money until the congressional hearing last September," he testified.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.), who is conducting the investigation, interrupted to comment that at the hearing last September Dillon had said the bill for his services would be $7000.

Campagna said he derives income from a farm in northern Indiana, from his wife's florist shop, and from stocks. He said he had received no money since he went to prison from a syndicate which operates a racing news service.

He admitted that he had not paid all of his $89,000 income taxes for a period of years. He said nobody had asked him for money since he has been out of prison, but did not know who paid it for him while he was in prison.

His attorney, Eugene Bernstein, testified at the hearing last September that the income tax had been paid. Bernstein said the money was supplied by unknown persons who walked into his office, slapped stacks of bills on his desk and said, "This is for Louis."

Bernstein has since been indicted in connection with the case.

Representative Hoffman charged at the opening of the hearing today that Mr. Truman and Attorney General Tom Clark have refused to help the inquiry.

Hoffman made the charge that six Treasury Department agents refused to testify before the committee about income tax factors in the case. The agents said they had received instructions from Washington to remain silent.

U. S. District Attorney Otto Kerner, jr., said he would summon the six agents before a grand jury.

According to the committee's information, a tax claim of nearly $500,000 against Campagna was settled for $89,000 and another claim of more than $183,000 against Ricca was settled for $39,000. The agents admitted they passed on the settlement, but would say no more.

Conciliator Digs Into GSI 44-Day Strike

George E. Strong, the newly appointed conciliator in the GSI dispute, dug with vigor yesterday into the tangle of legal problems surrounding the 44-day-old strike.

"I'm trying to work fast in this thing," the 52-year-old Washington attorney said, "but I'm also trying to come up with a sound settlement proposal."

Strong said he conferred during the day with John L. Cross, Government Services attorney, and Alfred Bernstein, director of negotiations for the United Public Workers of America (CIO), parent of the striking union, Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers.

Strong also talked yesterday with Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach, but he emphasized that all conferences thus far have been "purely exploratory." He said last night he has begun a detailed study of legal angles and of labor rulings pertinent to the GSI case.

Strong, a former Army colonel with long experience in settling labor disputes, was appointed conciliator Monday by Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming on the recommendation of Schwellenbach. The Labor Secretary is trying to settle the dispute at President Truman's request, and Fleming is under specific White House orders to help.

J. C. Niehuss, GSI personnel manager, said yesterday that Strong's appearance has made no change in the firm's refusal to bargain with the union.

"The fact that the board of trustees has voted to meet with Strong simply means that we are willing to consider any solution he might suggest, but it must be consistent with our position that we will not deal with a union that is not certified and that the rights of our present employes must be protected."

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"
Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Atomic Safety Records Tops U. S. Industry

The accident frequency rate in atomic energy projects during and since the war has been less than half that of private industry, Sidney J. Williams, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission's Safety and Industrial Health Advisory Board, reported last night.

But, he added, safety records for country-wide atomic research under peacetime conditions and civilian control will be more difficult to maintain.

He said a recent, confidential report submitted to the AEC by his board made recommendations which may be "of some aid" in reducing accident rates on the atomic projects.

Williams, who is also assistant to the president of the National Safety Council, spoke at a dinner meeting of the Washington Safety Society at the United States Naval Gun Factory.

The safety expert pointed out it was only "right and proper" that the country's atomic studies should be under civilian control with the war's end. He noted that it had resulted in "much more decentralization and greater freedom."

He said the most obvious substitute for the direct control which produced the "extraordinary" wartime safety record is "statistical control"—the close, careful study of accident records.

Williams praised the AEC's "excetllent, energetic safety staff," and cited full support by top management as one of the amin factors in the safety record established in atomic projects over the United States.

Prince Georges Lets Bid for County Office

A contract for construction of an addition to the treasurer's office in the Prince Georges County Courthouse at Upper Marlboro was awarded yesterday to W. M. Chappell, 1219 Good Hope rd. se.

The contract was awarded by the County Commissioners after they were informed Chappell was the lowest of four bidders on the project. The three-story addition was necessitated, county officials said, because the use of heavy calculating machines in the treasurer's office will require a structure stronger than the present office.

The commissioners ordered that the County Service Diner, located on Rhode Island ave. opposite the County Service Building at Hyattsville, be moved by March 31. The building, it was pointed out, abuts on several feet of county-owned property.

The diner is owned by William L. Harrell, who last fall refused to serve meals to prisoners at the County jail at Hyattsville because, he contended, the allowance provided by the commissioners was inadequate.

A public hearing was scheduled for March 16 on petitions presented by residents of Eastpines, Sections 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, who petitioned for creation of a special improvement district for their area.

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie reported collections of $14,239 in fines and costs in January, while Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens collected $3243 in the same period.

Hearing Set On Fairfax Vote Precinct

Hearing on a petition to create a new voting precinct in the Baileys Crossroads area will be held April 6 in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Judge Paul E. Brown set the hearing yesterday. He said he would create the new precinct unless opposition shows otherwise. It would be the county's 27th precinct.

The new precinct has been proposed to accommodate several hundred new voters in the rapidly developing area and relieve the overburdened Falls Church voting booths. The voting place for the new precinct would be Baileys Crossroads Fire Department.

Chicago Barbers Reject Extra Quarter a Clip

Chicago, Feb. 17 (AP).—Chicago master barbers have rejected proposals to hike the price of haircuts from $1 to $1.25 and shaves from 65 to 75 cents, as inflationary.

Frank Aliotta, secretary of the Master Barbers Association, said the proposals were considered inflationary. He added the barbers hoped "that by taking a positive stand against increases other business might be encouraged to follow the precedent."

Va. Branch Bank Restriction Voted

House of Delegates Approves Measure; Bills Sponsor Claims Senate Backing

Richmond, Va., Feb. 17 (Spl.).—The House of Delegates today voted approval, 70 to 22, of a bill to curb branch banking in the State.

Delegate J. Maynard Magruder, of Arlington, sponsor of the measure, declared it is "favored by a large majority" in the Senate, where it was sent after House passage. The legislation is opposed by the Bank of Virginia (Morris Plan) which it principally affects.

Under the bill, as amended by the House, further establishment of intercity banks is prohibited, but the Bank of Virginia may proceed with branches already authorized by the State Corporation Commission in Richmond and Norfolk.

The House also passed several unopposed measures, including:

1. House bill authorizing Arlington County to levy license taxes in the same degree as authorized in cities. The measure would permit Arlington licensing of automobiles, as is already being done in Alexandria and other Virginia cities.

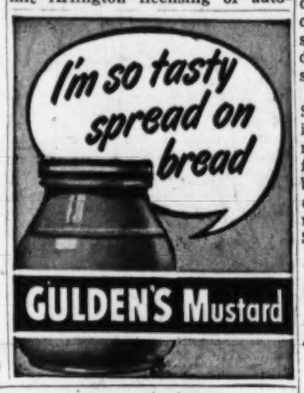
2. A Senate bill to increase the number of general meetings of county boards of supervisors.

The Senate committee on roads and internal navigation tabled indefinitely a bill to repeal the State auto inspection law.

In House committee actions, the banking committee agreed informally to report favorably a bill permitting banks in cities of 50,000 population or within 25 miles of such cities to close Saturdays. It would also permit a bank to stay open on holidays, but may be amended to require closing on election days.

The Governor signed 17 new bills into law, including House bill 35, which fixes the liability of radio station operators. No radio station owner or operator may be held liable for statements made during the course of a political campaign, nor unless the plaintiff shows that he failed to exercise due caution to prevent defamatory statements.

The Governor also signed the State police-sponsored bill making it a misdemeanor to remove motor vehicle inspection stickers from an inspection station and a bill to require the outgoing Governor to turn over the official correspondence of his office to the State library.



Prejudice Blocks DP Legislation, Javits Charges

Prejudice against immigration in many sections of the United States is blocking action on the Stratton bill to admit 400,000 displaced persons, Representative Jacob K. Davitz (R., N. Y.) said last night. He spoke to the Jewish War Veterans' Auxiliary Post, No. 58, at a Mayflower banquet.

Representative Javitz, a member of the Special subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee which investigated the situation in Europe last summer, told his listeners:

"If we do not move toward a solution of the enactment of the Stratton bill or other suitable legislation at this session, it is no less a tragic admission of our inability to meet our moral responsibilities."

The New York Congressman called failure to act by admitting a fair share of displaced persons into the United States "a bankruptcy of leadership on a critically important front in the fight for freedom."

Stahl to Direct Drive in Arlington

C. P. Stahl of 2728 N. Edison st. will head the 1948 Arlington County Red Cross drive for $24,150 beginning next month, chapter headquarters announced yesterday.

Stahl is manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia.

Other drive officials are: Mrs. Henry Liebschutz, 1222 S. 26th rd., vice chairman; Burton Kephart, 4110 N. 3rd., business chairman; Howard Stanley, 811 S. Fillmore st., publicity chairman; Mrs. W. C. Holley, 4436 N. 16th st., residential chairman in North Arlington; Mrs. W. G. Blackburn, 2612 S. Joyce st., South Arlington, residential chairman, and Mrs. Josephine Peters, 2000 N. Culpeper st., division "T" chairman.

Silver Spring Trade Group Names Officers

J. G. Wright, Silver Spring businessman, yesterday was elected chairman of the retail merchants division of the Silver Spring Board of Trade. Other officers are Ralph Lutz, vice chairman, and Miss Catherine Lydell, secretary-treasurer.

During the meeting, held at the Silver Cafe in Silver Spring, plans were outlined by Blair Lee 3d, president of the Board of Trade, for a midsummer festival celebrating reopening of Georgia ave. following completion of the Georgia ave. viaduct. Lee said the board would sponsor a parade and other activities in which all local service and civic organizations will participate.

U. S. Violated Zoning Law, Board Charges

A charge that the Federal Government "arbitrarily ignored" the Montgomery County subdivision ordinance in building 100 homes at Cabin John Gardens was made yesterday by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Vice Chairman E. Brooke Lee of the MNCPPC declared street widths and setbacks of lots at Cabin John Gardens, in Cabin John, Md., are below minimum requirements of the subdivision ordinance and it is "a matter of definite record" the planning body had so advised the Government at the time.

In a letter to the board of zoning appeals, Lee said it would "appear to serve the public interest" for the county commissioners to amend the existing ordinance. He pointed out Federal Public Housing Authority now desires to sell the homes and citizens "cannot buy with safety these same houses the Federal Government built without regard to the local ordinance."

The commissioners took the matter under advisement.

In other business, the commissioners:

1. Voted to request the State Roads Commission to widen Wisconsin ave. from its present width of 42 feet to 68 feet with a 4 foot strip in the middle running from East-West hwy. to Glenbrook pky.

2. Failed to come to a decision on a request of County Agent O. W. Anderson and James D. King, president of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau, for a $10,000 appropriation to finance a comprehensive Japanese beetle control program this summer.

County Engineer B. S. Barnett told the board he had learned from the State Roads Commission that it planned to widen the Wisconsin ave. "bottleneck" only 20 feet on the east side.

The State previously agreed to undertake the widening and board members said it was their understanding the widening would take place on both sides of Wisconsin ave.

Jewish Relief Drive Starts Here Saturday

A campaign to raise 250 million dollars for the United Jewish Appeal—largest fund-raising effort ever undertaken by a voluntary welfare organization in the United States—gets under way Saturday at the Shoreham Hotel.

Henry Morgenthau, jr., will preside at a two-day national conference of American-Jewish communal leaders.

Funds raised are to go for overseas relief and rehabilitation, for the immigration, settlement and security program in Palestine and for aid to Jewish refugees reaching the United States.

The Washington conference will mark the opening of 3500 local community drives. Another 1500 Jewish communities will conduct their drives in the fall.

Morgenthau declared, "The United Nations have given us an opportunity both to build an independent Jewish state and at the same time to empty the displaced persons camps of Central Europe of their 250,000 uprooted, destitute Jews who have waited as patiently as humanly possible since the end of the war nearly three years ago for an opportunity to emigrate and rebuild their broken lives in Palestine, the United States and other countries."

Mayo Man to Talk on Gout

The Rheumatism Society of the District will hear a lecture by Dr. Philip S. Hench, chief of the Mayo Clinic's division of rheumatic diseases, at 8:15 p. m. tonight in the D. C. Medical Society auditorium, 1718 M st. nw. Dr. Hench's topic will be "Gout, the Unsuspected."

Arab Attack Fails of Aim In Palestine

Jerusalem, Feb. 17 (AP).—Arab and Jewish headquarters made conflicting casualty claims today regarding yesterday's battle for strategic Tirat Tsevi, but both agreed that the Arab attack failed to open a corridor between Trans-Jordan and Palestine.

The Arab Higher Committee claimed 78 Jews were killed, more than 150 wounded and 20 captured, while 13 Arabs were slain and 37 wounded.

The Jewish Hagana army headquarters said 57 "foreign" Arabs were killed and 36 wounded, while only 1 Jew was killed and 3 wounded.

The government announced that 33 Arabs were killed and 36 Arabs seriously injured.

Six hundred Arabs raided Tirat Tsevi, easternmost Jewish settlement in the Beisan Valley, known as the "backdoor to Palestine." Two waves of frontal attackers were driven off by Hagana settlers.

Arabs and Jews clashed in the old section of Jerusalem early today and three Britons and four Arabs were killed, an official statement said. The statement said three Jews were killed last night in Haifa.

With the Fine Flavor of Blue Plate Mayonnaise

GOLDEN FRUIT SALAD
Fresh, FRESH Blue Plate Mayonnaise makes it the star of your dinner

Blue Plate Mayonnaise
1 3-oz. package cream cheese
8 halves canned peaches
4 cooked prunes
Lettuce

Chop prunes fine and blend with cream cheese, adding enough prune juice to soften. Fill center of each peach half with cream cheese mixture, then put halves together to form whole peach. Serve on lettuce, topped with Blue Plate Mayonnaise. Be generous with it—Blue Plate Mayonnaise adds tempting flavor to every salad. It's seasoned to be just sweet enough—just tart enough. And made with the finest salad oil, blended vinegars, selected eggs and spices.

Made by the Wesson Oil People as you'd make it at home —with the finest salad oil

Senate Unit Backs Marshall Plan Bill

3 Billion Dollars of First Year's Cost To Come Out of 1948 Treasury Surplus

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday gave final approval to the Vandenberg bill for European recovery.

A bookkeeping device whereby three billion dollars of the first year's cost of the recovery program would come out of the 1948 Treasury surplus ended a long and agonized search by Republican leaders for some method of approving an adequate European recovery program and at the same time cutting taxes in an election year.

Apart from this last-minute amendment, the Foreign Relations Committee approved two relatively minor changes—one, proposed by Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), calling on the European countries to balance their budgets as soon as possible; the other, from Senator Alben Barkley (D., Ky.), laying down broad conditions for the export of surplus farm products.

The bill will be ready for formal submission to the full Senate as soon as minor drafting changes have been made. As it stands now, it surpasses the most ardent hopes of the Administration sponsors of the "Marshall Plan."

One high official said he regarded it as far better and stronger than the original draft, submitted by President Truman on December 30.

Supporters of the measure now see storm clouds gathering on the House side. One is the possibility that the House will not finish authorizing the program until after April 1, when existing relief funds expire.

Even before April 1, France will be in trouble because of the early exhaustion of the 284 million dollars she received in interim aid. The French, it was learned yesterday, have asked for additional stopgap help, including a second payment of 50 million dollars for the expenses of American troops after the liberation.

House debate may also be lengthened beyond April 1 by a determined group which wants to have the same agency administering aid to China and to Europe. A special message from President Truman on the proposed 570-million-dollar China-aid program is expected within 48 hours.

For the moment, however, the prospect on Capitol Hill looked so bright yesterday that Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas took off for his post in London. He has been handling representations of the Administration's case to Congress and will not be here during the floor debate in the Senate, scheduled to start March 1.

He expects to return to Washington around March 7, and plans to be here for the early stages of the appropriations battle for ERP on the Hill.

Surplus Plan Aids Tax Cut

man Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), one of the small group that worked out the shift, termed it "double insurance" that Congress will pass a tax cut that will stick.

One less-advertised feature of the surplus transfer virtually assured in advance the GOP's proposed 37.2 billion dollar spending ceiling, by deducting three billion of ERP outlays from next year's budget.

Bridges said Republicans intend, nonetheless, to go right ahead with plans to slash 2½ billion from other expenditures, on top of the surplus windfall. Bridges' budget cut resolution will come up in the Senate today.

After the Senate Foreign Relations Committee wrote it into the ERP bill, Millikin outlined the plan in detail to a meeting of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. Chairman Robert A. Taft (Ohio) said the policy group "acquiesced in it."

Disagrees on ERP Effect

Taft would not concede, however, that the bookkeeping device affected ERP bill prospects one way or the other.

"Any effect it has will be solely on the budget and taxes," he said.

President Truman had figured the current year's surplus at 7.5 billion and the next year's balance at 4.8 billion. Congressional staff experts upped these estimates to 8.7 billion for this year, and 7.6 billion for next.

But even at this level there was scant margin for both a sizeable tax reduction and payment on the debt. Falling prices, threatening reductions in national income, made the tax cut outlook even more bleak.

Republicans Troubled

What troubled Republicans was President Truman had authority to pay every dollar of the current surplus on the debt. The Millikin amendment ties part of it up so he can't. Millikin said so large a debt retirement at one time might bring "an explosive contraction of credit."

Before the Foreign Relations group, and later to reporters, Millikin cited three "precedents" for the bookkeeping shift. He said Social Security payrool tax receipts are treated as expenditures when transferred from the general accounts of the Treasury. Terminal leave bonds similarly were counted as expenditures when issued to veterans. He said appropriations or loans to Government corporations or loans to Government corporations are likewise counted as expenditures for bookkeeping purposes, even though actual cash disbursement takes place at a later date.

But Senator Byrd said it still sounded to him like "juggling figures from one end to another," and "bad budget practice" to boot.

"We wouldn't know where we stood from one year to another, and I doubt whether it's legal," said Byrd.

The Virginian said he still favored a reasonable amount of tax reduction, if it can be managed without inviting a deficit. But he said the proposed surplus shift wasn't the way.

"This three billion shift isn't a saving," said Byrd. "It would recur in another year. How can you make tax cuts, which are more or less permanent, on any such basis?"

Senator Walter F. Gore (Ga.), another member of the Finance Committee, said it proposes "a bookkeeping picture that makes it easier to justify a number of things next year." He said he had no particular objection to it, but thought the Treasury did.

Barkley said the shift "gives an argument to those who are looking for a bookkeeping reason to cut taxes." He said he didn't vote for it for that reason.

"It was represented to us that it would ease some of the abdominal pains over the Marshall Plan," he said.

American Renounces Citizenship

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 17 (AP). A 27-year-old former Harvard University student has become a man who wants to be a citizen of all the world.

Noel

He is Henry Noel of Princeton, N. J., who has renounced his American citizenship to take up life as an ordinary laborer in Germany's austere economy.

United States military government officials said Noel left with them a statement saying in part:

"We witness in these times a climax of nationalism, the spectacle of separate national political entities each thinking to realize its own private national ambition . . .

"Citizenship in a nation, being tacit acceptance and approval of this situation or else ignorance of these facts, has become for me intolerable and incompatible with my personal convictions.

"I can no longer remain a citizen of the USA or of any nation."

Military government officials said Noel is now employed by a German construction firm at Kassel and is living on German rations.

They said he entered the American zone of Germany last September after working in France with the United States Aid to France Commission, and that if it is found he entered without authorization he will be returned to France.

Noel is the son of Henry Martyn Noel of Summit, N. J.

Iowa FM Radio Tower To Be Tallest Structure

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (AP).—An FM radio tower to be built near Des Moines, Iowa, will be the tallest man-made structure in the world, spokesmen for the Westinghouse Electric Corp. announced here today.

Plans call for a 1530-foot tower, which would top the Empire State Building—now the world's tallest structure—by 280 feet, and Eiffel Tower in Paris by 546.

Kosygin was textile industry minister before the war. Later he was made premier of the Russian Republic, the largest of the republics in the Soviet Union. In March, 1946, he was made a deputy premier in the Soviet Union cabinet. Three days later he was made a candidate-member of the all-powerful political bureau of the Communist Party. He is 43 years old.

Zverev as first deputy finance minister will carry on much as he has done in the past. But Kosygin will bring into the ministry the authority which is needed in the coming drive to bring down costs of government and industrial administration and industrial production, and to eliminate methods which are wasting resources and manpower.

British Debt to U. S. Put at 4.2 Billions

London, Feb. 17 (NYHT)—Asked by a Labor member of Commons how much Britain now owes the United States, Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied that Britain's total indebtedness to the United States on December 31, 1947, was 1,059,000,000 pounds ($4,236,000,000).

This figure, Sir Stafford said, was apart from indebtedness arising out of World War I.

Only Full-Time Students Will Get Increased GI Aid

Higher living allowances for veterans in school will be granted only to full time students, the Veterans Administration said yesterday.

Part-time students, on-the-job trainees and others are not entitled to raises provided in a bill signed by President Truman last Saturday, VA attorneys said.

The new subsistence payments are $75 a month for a veteran without dependents, $105 with one dependent, and $120 with more than one dependent.

The rates become effective April 1, and will be paid for the first time in checks mailed on or after May 1.

The VA attorneys said the old rates of $65 a month for veterans without dependents and $90 for those with dependents remain in effect for:

1. Part-time institutional training.
2. Institutional on-the-farm training.
3. Apprenticeship or other on-the-job training (for which veterans receive compensation for their labor).
4. Combination or cooperative training, in which students attend school part-time and are employed part-time usually in a related field.
5. Interneship and residency training.
6. Graduate training under a fellowship requiring a reduced credit course-load because of services given under provisions of the fellowship.

The agency said that eligible veterans now in school need not apply for the increased allowances. They are automatic except in the case of veterans entitled to the top rate, $120.

Such veterans will be required to submit information about their dependents before payments at the new rate can be made.

MacArthur Defends Jap Economy Aims

'Blood Bath' in Prospect Unless Present U. S. Plans Prevail, He Tells McMahon

By the United Press

Gen. Douglas MacArthur told Congress yesterday that Japan will be plunged into a "blood bath of revolutionary violence" unless his occupation forces wrest economic control from its "discredited masters."

The supreme Allied commander in the Far East said his efforts to tear down the "traditional pyramid of economic power" held by only a few families has the cooperation of the Japanese people, who are fully aware that they have been forced to live in "poverty and slavery."

"The Japanese people have tasted freedom under the American concept," he said, "and they will not willingly return to the shackles of an authoritarian government and economy, or resubmit it otherwise to their discredited masters . . .

"If this concentration of economic power is not torn down and redistributed peacefully and in due order under the occupation, there is no slightest doubt that its cleansing will eventually occur through a blood bath of revolutionary violence."

His views were set forth in a letter to Senator Brien McMahon in answer to the Connecticut Democrat's request for comment on a recent protest by Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) over MacArthur's "socialization" policies in Japan.

Knowland said MacArthur's letter confirmed "my suspicion, voiced on the Senate floor in my speeches, that the policy directives came out of Washington—that they were not MacArthur's." He added that occupation policy should be "to eliminate cartels and trusts but not to promote socialism or a controlled economy."

MacArthur's letter, which McMahon read to the Senate, pointed out that Knowland was primarily objecting to a policy document prepared by the State, War and Navy Departments and ratified by the 10-nation Far Eastern Commission.

"As the source of origin, authorship and authority are all in Washington and my responsibility limited to the executive implementation of basic decisions formulated there," the general wrote, "I am hardly in a position 10,000 miles away to participate in the debate."

But he noted that Knowland did not mention his previous defense of the policy on January 1 nor Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall's January 6 statement in San Francisco which, he said, summed up the situation with "marked clarity."

Alone in Room

Arlington Youth Found Shot in Home

An 18-year-old Arlington youth wa sin critical condition in Arlington Hospital last night after he had been shot in the forehead with a .22-caliber rifle.

Holden

He is Alfred K. Holden of 937 N. Daniel st., who had been appointed to enter West Point next July.

Arlington detectives said Alfred was alone in his bedroom in his home when the shooting occurred about 9 o'clock Monday night.

His parents, Army Capt. and Mrs. Alfred W. Holden, were in another room at the time. Detectives found the .22 field rifle at the youth's feet.

Brain specialists at Arlington Hospital said the bullet entered Holden's forehead amove the bridge of the nose, penetrated the brain and lodged in the back of his head.

Young Holden received his appointment as principal Arlington nominee to West Point last September from Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), and planned to enter the academy.

A student at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, he was specializing in aeronautical engineering.

He was a graduate of Arlington's Washington-Lee High School last spring.

Red Koreans Rough Up 2 U. S. Majors

Seoul, Feb. 17 (AP).—Two U. S. Army officers were pushed around and arrested by Koreans in the Russian headquarters city of Pyongyang while Soviet officials looked on but refused to interfere, American authorities said today.

The two were Maj. Darrel G. Costello, Imogene, Iowa, and Maj. Richard C. Biggs, Berkeley, Calif., U. S. Army liaison officers stationed at Pyongyang.

The incident occurred February 8 when the two tried to watch a parade of the "People's Army" celebrating a new Korean government in the Russian zone. Creation of the puppet north Korean government was announced by the Pyongyang radio earlier this week.

The Army reported a lieutenant colonel of the Korean army and a group of civilians pushed the two officers when they tried to stop near the reviewing stand.

The officer and the civilians refused to let Costello and Biggs take up a new position farther down the line. They called the police when the Americans entered their jeep.

One civilian drew a pistol and demanded the film from Costello's camera. He handed it over. Another civilian grabbed the camera and vanished into the crowd. Russian officers nearby refused to interfere.

Korean police showed up and placed the two under arrest, but withdrew 30 minutes later. The Americans then left and were not molested further.

Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, occupation commander, said Soviet liaison officers can go anywhere they want to in South Korea and take pictures "including those of military parades."

British Kill Three in Arab Mob Stoning Tripoli Headquarters

Tripoli, Libya, Feb. 17 (AP).—An Arab mob stoned the offices of the British military administration for Tripolitania today and was met by British gunfire and tear gas.

Three Arabs were killed and eight wounded. A number of Britons suffered casualties. The administration declared a state of emergency and imposed a 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew.

The Arabs were members of the Khutla Party, a militant group which is demanding independence for Tripolitania and other prewar Italian colonies. The party wants to affiliate the territory with the Arab League nations.

Deputy Foreign Ministers of Britain, the United States, France and Russia are meeting in London to discuss the future of the former Italian colonial empire. A subcommission is touring the colonies and is due in Tripolitania soon.

The mob demanded release of a Khutla Party leader and others jailed by the British yesterday after a demonstration Sunday which the British said was unauthorized.

Here's Brand-New Power for your Buick

OUR men do a master job of keeping Buicks right up to Buick high standards. They can get everything out of them that there is to get.

But maybe you'd like the thrill of a brand-new engine in your car.

If so, we're ready to do that job too — ready to put a straight-from-the-factory engine in any Buick built since 1937.

You get an entirely new engine. It has a new carburetor and air cleaner. It has a new distributor with both vacuum and centrifugal spark control. It has new wiring and spark plugs — even a new smooth clutch that eases every start and makes driving greater fun.

On top of all that, this engine brings you the latest Buick features you read about — such features as precision cylinder boring and Flex-Fit oil rings, Stratoflow cooling and all the rest.

We have these engines for you right now because Buick engine production is running ahead of complete car output.

So, in less time than a good overhaul would take — and frequently at less cost — you can have a car with everything a brand-new Buick engine can give you, and a car worth much more when you're ready to turn it in.

Good deal, isn't it? Worth looking into? Drop around and let us give you all the facts and figures.

A-Bomb Defense Stressed to Mayors

Army's Civil Defense Chief Outlines Program; Urges 3-Way Coordination

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—How American cities should prepare to cope with Atomic bombing was outlined by Maj. Gen. Harold R. Bull, chairman of the Army's civil defense board.

Bull

Bull emphasized to the United States Conference of Mayors that he did not necessarily believe another war was "inevitable." However, he asserted that in the event of a new war there must be more than the "gentlemen's agreement" in civilian defense between city, State and Federal Government that prevailed in World War II.

This is what he urged each mayor to do:

Designate a civil defense director.

Assign the control of order to police and firefighting to "a greatly augmented fire department."

Have local department of public works schooled in debris clearance, demolition and "heavy" rescue work, and repairing of utilities and communications.

Organize medical care units in handling wounded. New "radiological safety" units might be formed.

Have municipal welfare units prepared for the task of effective evacuation and care and feeding of the homeless.

Use open areas and parks and establish "a well-organized, well-equipped and secure control center from which control may be exercised under any circumstances."

In a discussion of the effects of atomic bombing, Bull said an atomic bomb of potency equivalent to 40,000 tons of TNT could destroy a circular area a mile and a half wide beneath its aerial explosion point.

A panel discussion on "Judaism and Christianity" will be held at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow at the Jewish Community Center, 16th and Q sts. nw.

Belgian Strike Wave Blamed On Cominform

Brussels, Belgium, Feb. 17 (AP). Prime Minister Paul Henri Spaak accused the Communist Party today of being directly responsible for the strike wave in Belgium, now on the wane.

He declared in the Chamber of Deputies that Belgian Communists were "here to obey the orders of the Cominform," and quoted from what he said was an official secret order from the Communist International Information Bureau. This document, he said, reminded Communist deputies their first duty was to be revolutionary agitators.

Opening Gallinger

It is easy to see how much it will mean to Negroes that Gallinger Hospital will henceforth permit students and graduates of the Howard University Medical School to serve as internes and residents on its staff. To the Negro patients in the municipal hospital—and they constitute 70 per cent of the patient load—it will mean that they can, if they wish, have doctors of their own race attend them. To the men and women studying medicine at Howard, it will mean an opportunity to pursue their profession—an opportunity denied to them by every other hospital in this city with the single exception of Freedmen's. And this in turn, of course, will mean better doctors, better medical care, for the entire Negro population of the District of Columbia.

It may be more difficult to see, although it should not be, how much this change of policy will mean to the white people of Washington. It will mean, to put the matter on the lowest level of consideration, relief of the shortage of medical personnel; and in this connection it is very much to be hoped that Negro nurses as well as Negro doctors will be admitted to Gallinger where they are urgently needed.

Turning On The Light

No. VI

Congressional inquiries should be dedicated to enlightenment and not to persecution.

Our survey of this problem suggests the need for a code of fair procedure for congressional investigations. Such a code would have to be enacted, of course, by Congress itself. We are aware of the fact that even the mention of a code of fair procedure will evoke a chorus of protests from people who think that the purpose must necessarily be to hamstring the investigative process. But we have no such purpose in mind, as will be evident from the nature of the rules to be suggested.

We do not need to go to the courts for such a code. Indeed, it should be emphasized at once that court procedure is inapplicable to congressional inquiries. One pointed criticism of such investigations is that they have tended to encroach upon the realm of grand juries and judicial tribunals. Our view is that legislative investigations should be held rigidly to the informative function. And the best guide to effective work in this field is what our best investigative committees have done in the past.

One of the greatest investigations ever conducted in this country was the Armstrong Committee's exposure of the insurance scandals in New York back in 1905. With Charles E. Hughes as counsel, it was a model of fairness as well as a fearless uncovering of corruption. The Teapot Dome investigation of the twenties, with Owen J. Roberts (later Justice of the Supreme Court) as counsel, was a model of efficiency. In 1933 Senator Fletcher of the Senate Banking Committee conducted a fair and fruitful inquiry, with Ferdinand Pecora as counsel, which led to creation of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Scrupulous regard for decency and democratic rights also marked the inquiry into railway holding companies, under direction of former Senator Wheeler, with Max Lowenthal as counsel. More recently, of course, the Truman Committee admirably illustrated the constructive use of the investigative power.

Harry S. Truman (then a Senator from Missouri) launched his investigation of the war effort, with congressional approval but sharp opposition from the White House. Within a few months, however, the executive branch was almost as pleased with the results as was Congress. Mr. Truman hired Hugh Fulton as counsel on advice from the Department of Justice. He sought only facts. He shunned publicity-hunting and partisanship. Not only did the committee treat witnesses fairly; it went further and submitted its reports to officials under fire so that they could correct any slip that the committee or its staff might have made. The naked facts remaining could not be refuted; so they hit inefficiency with devastating impact. This bipartisan committee put out 40 important reports, with scarcely a dissenting vote and no minority reports. So effective was its exposure of weakness in the war effort that mere indications that facts would be reported to the Truman Committee brought quick action on the part of negligent or arbitrary agency heads.

This well-run committee contributed immeasurably to winning the war as well as to Mr. Truman's stature. It is largely responsible for his being in the White House today. In other words, a nonpartisan and undramatic investigation efficiently conducted seems to add far more to a legislator's reputation than a demagogic flight into sensationalism. All that Congress needs to do to keep its investigations on a high plane, in our opinion, is to write into a code of fair practice the methods already proved to be fair and practicable by the best investigating committees of the past.

To Enforce Or Not

There is no international police force in existence upon which the Security Council can draw in responding favorably to the Palestine Commission's request for armed aid in discharging its duty in Palestine. This is due in the main to the failure of the military staffs committee to agree upon the kind of establishment authorized under the Charter. And this in turn is due to Soviet unwillingness to subscribe to the principle of internationalization—that is to say, the transfer of its unit to a common command. There must be one army and one command in any force purporting to be a United Nations army. The opportunity to break the log jam is provided anew by the application of the Palestine Commission. If the United States would take the lead in the Security Council on the Commission's request, the Soviet would have to reconsider and restate its position, and the United States would recapture title as the prime upholder of the United Nations.

The plan for partition and economic union in Palestine was given Soviet approval during the discussions in the General Assembly. On this question Moscow acted with Washington. But the common approach has given rise not to satisfaction but to alarm, as if only evil could come out of it. It is an ironical commentary on the malaise of our times that Soviet agreement appears as distasteful as Soviet disagreement; indeed, more suspicion is aroused of Soviet Russia when she agrees than when she disagrees. All relations are based on faith, and, if the present situation persists, the only outcome can be war. It is our belief that peace can be maintained only by taking risks, whether in Palestine or Greece, and in the case of Palestine the risk of action with the Soviet is far less than the risk of resigning the field to the Soviet.

Senator Brewster calls for a foreign legion, but, while the suggestion is valid for application to occupied areas, it strikes us as open to many objections in the case of Palestine. Here is a matter on which the members of the United Nations are under special obligation to show what the U. N. Commission calls "powerful Arab interests" (meaning, of course, the Mufti-party) that the members intend to stand back of the world organization. It would be the last word in irony if the Mufti were allowed to humiliate the United Nations. That would be a greater victory for the spirit of Hitler than any he scored in the flesh. If, of course, Russia would not agree to the setting up of a unitary world force, then the reality would have to be faced, and an effort made to put the whole of Palestine under U. N. trusteeship. We doubt, however, that in view of the face that has been given to the "powerful Arab interests" and the grip they have been enabled to get over Arab opinion (the Mufti now is ex officio member of the Arab League in Cairo), the Mufti-party would even agree to the perpetuation of what would be tantamount to the status quo.

Most of the difficulties which, in the eyes of the U. N. Commission, call for an international police force have arisen as a result of the opposition in London and in influential quarters in Washington to the U. N. decision. Though the Commission "realized that time is a factor of utmost importance in its endeavor to fulfill the mandate given to it by the General Assembly," the British won't let it enter Palestine. Arms are going to the Mufti but none to the Haganah. In the meantime the Arab moderates in Palestine have been either bumped off or cowed by the Mufti-party and his crew of Nazi collaborators, most of whom are fugitives from Nuernberg justice Their blocking tactics have been encouraged by efforts in Washington as well as in London to nullify the U. N. recommendation. The raising of an international police force is the only thing now that has a chance of pacifying the troubled situation in Palestine and of recapturing the waning prestige of the United Nations. The chance to repair the damage is on the American doorstep.

Insult To Oklahoma?

Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma has made public a letter to Senator Homer Ferguson in which he declares that he will tolerate no additional inquiries into his private activities (meaning his operations in commodity exchanges) and would consider anything further of the sort "an insult to the sovereign State of Oklahoma." Perhaps the people of Oklahoma are not quite so easily insulted as their senior Senator seems to suppose. The people of California showed no sign of being incensed when a Senate committee probed rather extensively into speculative activities of one of its citizens, Mr. Edwin W. Pauley, an official of the executive branch of the Government. And even Mr. Pauley, egregious though his conduct has sometimes seemed, did not go so far as to suggest at any time that inquiry into his personal affairs constituted injury to his State. Had he done so, it is unlikely that a Senate committee would have been cowed into clearing him forthwith.

It would have been at once more fitting and more creditable if Senator Thomas had employed his influence as a member of the world's most exclusive club to insist upon complete and immediate investigation of his market activities so that his colleagues could clear him of all suspicion of having profited from his access to inside information. The pose of injured innocence he has assumed and in which the Senate has indulged him is as little likely to brighten his reputation among either his constituents or his colleagues as it is to enhance the prestige of the Senate in the eyes of the country as a whole.

Sidetracked UMT

The apparent determination of House Rules Committee Chairman Leo E. Allen to prevent consideration of the bill for universal military training is, in short, an attempt to trifle with the national security. Mr. Allen has been quoted as saying that the money necessary for UMT can be better spent elsewhere. Who is he to take upon himself such a decision? Certainly a matter so intimately connected with the national defense deserves consideration by Congress as a whole; yet if Mr. Allen's high-handedness is sustained, Congress will not have a chance to vote. No person who believes in the democratic process, whether he favors or condemns UMT, can conscientiously sanction this abuse of the committee power. We think that if the Republican leaders are to discharge their responsibility for the country's security, the least they should do is jar the bill loose in order to permit full discussion in Congress.

As Joseph C. Grew pointed out in a compelling speech in New York Monday, much of the opposition to universal military training stems from misunderstanding of its objectives. Mr. Grew emphasizes that UMT is the antithesis of militarism. It is a program not of conscription but of training, not directed by the Army, but under civilian control. Its purpose is to provide a pool of trained or semitrained men for use in an emergency when time is at a premium; they could be used only in an emergency. Mr. Grew views military training as compulsory education in self-defense, much as public school education is now compulsory. He notes, significantly, that the cost of the UMT program for an entire year is less than the cost of seven days of war. To the contention that the atom bomb and air power render such training obsolete, he replies: "Planes and air power are absolutely essential in any program of defense. But air power alone cannot win a war or even guarantee the safety of our country from occupation by enemy forces. In the final showdown in any war, it will be trained manpower on foot that will either conquer or prevent conquest."

The United States has tried unpreparedness as a preventive of war. It has never worked; and the country has relied increasingly on a time buffer which in the atomic age no longer exists. Would it not be sensible this time to try the other way—of military strength brought about through a coordinated series of security measures including UMT? One of the reasons often given for congressional inaction on UMT so far is that this is election year. From past experience a fundamental fact ought to be recognized—politics and security don't mix. The question for Republican chieftains to ask themselves is whether an aggressor would forgo an attack merely because it happened to be election year.

This Modern Pace!

Today's pace is getting almost too much for us. Here is National Cherry Week scarcely under way when we must get ready for National "Donut" Week, which, according to a new booklet issued by the Department of Commerce to aid advertisers, begins March 8. And we shall no sooner have gotten through with our dunking than Honey for Breakfast Week will be upon us. Then in April will come Packaging Week—we'd better make a memo to find out what we're supposed to do then—and May will be a hectic month with both World Trade Week and Table Tennis Week. In the summer will come Iced Tea Week, and in the fall, Apple Week, Dog Week, Cat Week, Sweater Week.

Nor can we expect to rest between these. A lot of other weeks, yet unscheduled, as Peanut Week, Knitting Week, Turkey Week, Better Floors Week, will keep the remainder of our 52 weeks occupied, to say nothing of all the new holidays that are gaining ground, and that range from Cherokee Strip Day to Huey Long's birthday. Around 260 special days, weeks and months are listed in the Commerce Department booklet, and we're already worrying about what on earth we'd do should a National Bridge Week coincide with a National Garlic Week or National Rumba Day come in a National Innerspring Mattress Week.

Sometimes we despair of ever keeping up with what is going on. We really don't belong in this era. We should have lived in the good old leisurely days when there were no civic-minded advertisers, and when people had time to invite the soul. Such days perhaps as those of the 1880s, described in a periodical of that day which we recently came across. "At no time in history," wrote the editor, "have the human nerves suffered as they do now from the wild speed at which life travels, and the pressure of occupations and amusements. Leisure seems to be a thing of the past. It is the age of hobbies and activities. Everybody is doing something."

SAILOR

He promised her to return again
After that first long trip
With the screaming wind at the cold, taut ropes;
Oh, the Gull was a slim, brave ship!
He came at last, and at his back
The black sea pounded fists
On granite sloped more steeply than
A wounded ship that lists.
No voice called out his name; no face
Turned there to meet his own,
And his eyes at his love's dark windowpane
Were hollow and hard as stone.
He went back to the sea again,
But his quick step made no sound:
No wavering shadow trailed his heels
Over the moonlit ground . . .

Architecture For Today

In his diatribe on some architectural monstrosities perpetrated on disfranchised Washington, Harold Ickes in his letter February 7 might well have mentioned the greatest monstrosity of all. I refer to the Chinese wall, sometimes referred to as the Federal Triangle buildings.

There is as much individuality and dignity in these cramped and cluttered up buildings as there is in so many piles of stones. One is astounded by the mountainous labyrinth of stone and unwieldy bundles of columns of all orders, rising out of the ground in mushroom fashion purporting to follow old European architecture.

We cannot go on forever and admit that we are too poor in home talent to express adequately in our buildings the struggle, the vision and aspiration of our forefathers for personal freedom. It may be said that one of the reasons for the plight of Europe is a blind adherence to old and outworn traditions and institutions that no longer answer the needs of modern man.

Real American design in buildings abnegates the old notion that buildings must be able to withstand attack from ferocious animals and battering rams of foes—a slight modification of the cave idea. American design does away with depressing long flights of stone steps or thick walls and columns of any order. The cantilever, an American application in building, renders outside walls obsolete. In short, the ideal American building should embrace or circumscribe a bit of nature, retaining its natural beauty and admit a maximum of sunshine, light and air, using American materials developed only in America for building purposes, such as glass and the light metals such as aluminum. It is a happy augury that some such start in its buildings as here indicated has been made in Washington by the design and execution of such buildings as the Folger Library, the Federal Reserve Building and even the annex to the Library of Congress.

High-Level Exams

From my worm's-eye view of the situation, I cannot generate any optimism over Commissioner Flemming's review of the Civil Service Commission's examining program, as reported in Jerry Kluttz's column of February 5.

Those of us who are fortunate enough financially to be above the CAF-4 level see a good deal of examining effort being expended by the commission—and doubtless it is getting results in terms of permitting agencies to make permanent appointments. But those appointments are going to the people in the lower grades—the clerks, stenographers and typists. We in the higher grades (particularly in administrative positions, but in some scientific and technical ones, too) have had no opportunity to take an examination for the most part, let alone pass and be certified and appointed.

We don't want to keep our jobs if there are other people better qualified and more deserving of them. But we do want to get out from under the sword of Damocles which has been hanging over our heads for six years now. We want our bosses to be able to include us in their plans—to assign work to us freely, and shift us around as the needs of the work require, and consider us for promotion, just as they do our colleagues who have the franchise of permanent status.

What is holding the commission back? We know they've had their troubles with the displaced career employe program and they have held some examinations. But they could do lots more examining if they would only stop dissipating their energies by reviewing every little action the agencies take or wish to take on individual cases. Each time an agency steps out of line (by detailing an employe, say, to a job where he shouldn't be detailed) they clamp down on everybody with a new set of regulations. Then agencies have to go begging with hat in hand for exceptions so that they can get their work done. STILL HOPEFUL.

"Desert Rats"

How the shade of the late Field Marshal Erwin Rommel must have laughed at Hal Boyle's gaff in his United Press story recalling the Battle of Kasserine Gap.

Boyle referred twice to Rommel as "the desert rat," a canard, sir, which I would like to refute on behalf of my friends of the British Eighth Army. It was Rommel himself who described the Eighth Army with Teutonic contempt as "desert rats," a slur which those boys turned into a term of respect. That was back before the days of Alexander and Monty; I think Wavell and Auchinleck were commanding Middle East at the time.

What Boyle meant, of course, was that Rommel was "the desert fox." A minor point, true, but not minor to the Eighth Army, whose members came to look with bemused aloofness on those who were not true "desert rats."

GSI Finances

I have recently read numerous letters and editorials relative to the GSI strike. Various issues other than the basic ones incident to a labor dispute have been presented.

It would appear that the disputants are directly concerned with (1) the entitlement of the employes involved to an increase in wages and an improvement in working conditions and (2) the ability of the GSI to meet the demands of its employes.

The public has a right to know the history of wage increases and improved working conditions that have been granted to these employes during the past three years. Furthermore, the public has a right to know the facts and figures relating to the ability of GSI to meet the demands and continue its operation on a profitable basis. This latter right accrues through the unique advantages enjoyed by GSI in its operation.

While the public has an opportunity to review Government financial transactions and financial operations of Government corporations and credit agencies through regular Treasury statements, there appears to be no available report denoting the financial waters through which GSI sails. Any attempt to justify nondisclosure of facts and figures on the grounds of distinction between Government and quasi-governmental activities is hollow, since RFC and other similar activities furnish regular reports for inclusion in Treasury statements.

I can find no good reason why GSI should not make public its operating statement as proof of its inability, if that be the case, to meet the demands of the workers involved.

Dr. Kindler's Leadership

Mr. Paul Hume asserts in The Washington Post of February 15 that "No champion has arisen to defend him" (Dr. Hans Kindler). A meticulous summation of the tremendous achievements of the orchestra under Dr. Kindler's direction should leave no doubts as to his competence and capability.

Often persons well qualified musically fail to appreciate the unique combination of talents that constitutes a good orchestra director. Not only must he be technically and artistically qualified, but he also must be a capable executive and appreciate the commercial and financial aspects of his orchestra's position. I maintain that the record of the orchestra in gaining acceptance at home and on tour is proof evident of Dr. Kindler's tremendous versatility and all-around excellence.

I believe that Mr. Hume is attempting to foment a controversy, not in a malicious spirit but to enliven local music circles perhaps by insisting that there is a basic disagreement between the complete statement of Milton King, treasurer of the Symphony Association, and the necessarily abbreviated campaign literature published by the sustaining fund committee, administering the import of campaign failure in capsule form.

In the midst of this important campaign it is unfortunate that time must be taken to reply to the insipid and baseless pulings constituting the basis of Mr. Hume's statement. It is not difficult to understand that if the sum of $165,000 is not raised there may be some kind of orchestra on stage next season, but it will not be the National Symphony Orchestra as we know it today in the fullness of its beauty and at the pinnacle of its attainment.

WILLIAM CARTER DULIN.

Bethesda.

Of course, Dr. Kindler has his detractors—for what man in a position like his does not?—but for every detractor I am confident that he has a thousand supporters and admirers. As for his musicianship, although I do not claim to be the last word in music criticism, as does Paul Hume, this can be said without danger of being refuted: he has brought the National Symphony Orchestra, in spite of overwhelming difficulties and handicaps, to the place it now holds among the few great orchestras in the country.

EDITH LEFEVRE.

Chevy Chase.

I have personally been a member of whatever women's group was connected with the orchestra since its inception 16 years ago, and I wish to indorse strongly the musicianship and leadership of Dr. Kindler and of Mr. Mitchell, as well as the fine caliber of the orchestra as a whole. It is unthinkable that Washington would permit this splendid organization to be disbanded.

EMILIE M. WHITE.

Washington.

Kindler and his board of directors have grown arrogant, difficult with opulence and success and a questionable appreciation of a Washington public hungry for good music. Such an attitude in art is always fatal.

The public, on the other hand, is outraged. They expect Kindler to approach them hat in hand, beg for funds and tell them how he spends it.

The situation can still be saved by concessions on both sides of the camp; let Kindler approach the public with true humility, as befits the great artist that he is, and humbly beg, without threats, for donations, and assure the people that he will try to get along with half the amount he is currently asking, and render a detailed account of the expenditures. Feminine Stocktaking

By Malvina Lindsay

Gains And Losses

AMERICAN women seem to be going places faster economically than politically, present inventories of their progress indicate. The postwar labor force already has in it the 16½ million women that census authorities predicted would be reached by 1950. And the trend toward wives working outside the home has become a major social influence of our time.

But politically women have had a postwar setback—in Congress, State Legislatures, appointive public offices. They have also yielded some ground professionally in top jobs.

Feminine stocktaking is now going on in a big way. For this year is the one hundredth anniversary of the convention at Seneca Falls, N. Y., at which the daring "Declaration of Sentiments" was drawn up by the first suffrage leaders.

Cartoonists and editors who jeered at that gathering would be shocked to find women leaders discussing this week at a conference sponsored by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor how they can relate their great economic power (virtually nil in 1848) to home and political responsibilities.

WHAT especially would confound these early critics would be to learn that in 100 years women had not only gotten off the masculine dole but had the Nation's buying power in their hands, the greater part of its wealth in their names, formed nearly one third of its labor force, operated about one million of its businesses.

Those cartoonists whose stock theme was a dominant wife sailing off to her job while a mousey husband washed the breakfast dishes would find their prophecy working out somewhat differently. They would find wives setting out for work all right—now for the first time more married than single women are working—but they would also find husbands setting out beside their wives for office or factory. They would hear increasing talk of the need of educating boys to share domestic responsibility, so that home as well as business could become a masculine-feminine partnership.

Furthermore they would hear educators advocating that every girl be prepared to be self-supporting—even though she were counting on a fat inheritance or a good provider husband.

Yet this changed economic role of women, resulting from the machine's taking her domestic duties into factory and store, has brought new problems. Chief of these is the double job.

WITH 46.2 per cent of women workers married and 15.9 per cent widowed or divorced, this means that a large proportion of women in the labor force are also homemakers and mothers. For all that labor-saving devices offer—and many women workers cannot afford these gadgets—the average woman with double or triple job, undergoes much physical and psychic strain. How society can help her is a big question as women go into their second century of progress.

Since few wives work outside the home who don't have to, this cannot be answered by the hackneyed "Go back to the home"—an injunction likely to be heard increasingly if employment drops. But there is growing feeling that a shorter work week or else part-time work for married women who must help out on family finances is one possible solution.

Many women leaders believe that the big push of their sex in the "second century" must be to obtain greater executive voice in the running of the Nation and the world. They regard as one of their greatest gains in the last 100 years the pledge in the United Nations Charter giving them full equality with men. Yet their voice is still faint in executive posts in that body, and growing fainter in the General Assembly—as well as in the American Congress.

The feminine-masculine balance that gives the home its wholeness and strength, and that is being extended to industry, is still lacking in government. Women cannot expect to hold what they have gained economically unless they put it there also.

Altered Bus Service

While Capital Transit is publicizing its financial plight and excellent "service" to the public of Washington, it radically changed the schedules for Routes F-2 and F-3, operating in the Northeast out of Mount Rainier, Md., effective February 1.

The popular express bus which was operated in the evening rush hour and which was the only redeeming feature of F-2 service was discontinued and schedules worsened by as much as 15 minutes on weekends. I have also noticed on several occasions that bus drivers arbitrarily change their destination if they are behind schedule and turn their bus around two thirds along the route, with the passengers at the end of the line left literally out in the cold these days.

Could it be that this is Capital Transit's way of "hitting back" at Maryland riders for the refusal of the Prince Georges County Public Utilities Commission to grant an immediate fare increase on the F-2 and F-3 routes?

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Tribute To Vandenberg

THE SENATE opposition to the European Recovery Program, always confused but once extremely formidable, is formidable no longer. The junta of 20 Republican Senators who joined together to force compromise is confronted with a bill preserving every essential principle of ERP with the unanimous approval of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Division and demoralization have already overtaken the junta of 20, which is expected to dissolve at its next rally.

The best test of the opposition's low estate is the fact that those now thought likely to lead the active fight against ERP in the Senate are Senators C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois and William E. Jenner of Indiana. Brooks and Jenner will, of course, be able to rally a fair number of more moderate and reasonable men for their grand vote-catching amendment, which will probably reduce the 12-month authorization for ERP from 5.3 billion dollars to somewhere in the neighborhood of 4.5 billions. Although the vote may be close, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan is now believed able to defeat the enemy even on this difficult point.

What has been accomplished, it must be stated at once, is primarily due to the patience, wisdom and long-headedness of Senator Vandenberg, with an assist credited to Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas. Douglas, himself, is the first to say, both in private and in public, that Senator Vandenberg deserves the principal credit. It is not too much to say that the big Michigan Senator has done what appeared to be impossible.

INITIALLY, he was confronted with a situation made to order for the opposition, in which President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall had wholly failed to rouse the country or the Congress to the urgency of the European problem. The ERP bill, as originally presented to the Senate and House, was also full of scores of minor irritants to the Congress. These could be played upon by the opposition until the little irritants became patches of general inflation. Vandenberg has extricated himself and ERP from this firm position by a simple method. He removed all the irritants, one by one, and meanwhile he gave the opposition plenty of rope to hang itself with.

In this effort he was importantly aided by Senators Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., of Massachusetts as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee and William E. Know[illegible] of California as a moderate member of the opposition junta of 20.

The major irritants in the ERP bill were obvious from the start. Vandenberg did not have to make any inquiries, for example, before he acted to make the bill's administrative provisions more palatable to the Congress. But the minor irritants can also be very dangerous, and Knowland and Lodge reported these back daily to Vandenberg, so that they could be remedied by simple committee amendments. It may seem foolish, yet a certain sort of lawmaker can actually be conciliated by such a sop as the statement now inserted in the ERP bill that ERP is not intended to impair the economic stability of the United States.

On major problems Vandenberg worked closely with Douglas, as representing Secretary Marshall. A precedent was set when Douglas attended all the Senate Committee's drafting sessions. On Marshall's behalf, Douglas approved both the really big changes in the bill, as to the method of administration and the shortening of the first ERP spending period to 12 months.

WHILE OBJECTIONS were thus being removed and the groundwork for unanimity was thus being laid, Vandenberg also killed the opposition with kindness. He pressed ERP opponents throughout the country to come and testify. Few volunteered. Several, like the steelmaster, Ernest T. Weir, who had been carrying on active anti-ERP propaganda, actually refused to come forward to the witness stand.

As for the junta of 20, Vandenberg made jokes about the "rump caucus," and he urged them to be specific about their substitute for ERP. Everyone wanted "to do something," but no one could agree on what. Thus the 20 began to appear to be disunited. It seems probable that their final meeting will close with several of these Senators ready to support Vandenberg's bill.

For some purposes, good sense in assessing the contribution of other members of Congress was the essential. For example, the bill desperately needed an effective champion in the House. Representative Christian Herter is pretty likely to be that champion, now that several of his committee's recommendations have been incorporated in the bill, and Vandenberg has wisely put Herter forward to head the congressional liaison committee with the ERP administration. At other times, a little political horse trading was required. Senator Alexander Wiley, most doubtful member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is deeply interested in the St. Lawrence Seaway. Vandenberg helped Senator Wiley over the St. Lawrence project, arousing a human desire to reciprocate.

Some of these methods are big, some trifling in character. Yet they are the stuff of American political leadership. The net effect of Vandenberg's effort has been to show up the opposition's programless and bankrupt state. That is now the strength of ERP.

Union Counsel Defends 'Hill' Against Bosses

Members of the House Labor Committee yesterday sat openmouthed while a powerful Hollywood union spokesman lauded the committee and Congress and chided "the bosses" for their disrespect.

The Taft-Hartley law might never have been and all the harsh words that flew around a year ago never uttered.

The topsy-turvy Hollywood session got under way when Representative Carroll D. Kearns (R., Pa.) said evidence before his subcommittee indicated the movie producers had been in cahoots with one group of studio unions and had "locked out" the carpenters. The carpenters, members of the Conference of Studio Unions, are headed nationally by William (Big Bill) Hutcheson, one of the few Republican labor leaders in the country.

Kearns said evidence so far appeared to show the producers were conspiring with a rival AFL group of studio unions to keep the carpenters out.

Producers Charge Unfairness

The producers, through their attorney, Burton A. Zorn, promptly blasted back that the chairman had already found "the producers guilty" before the evidence was in.

"Unfair," and "a violation of the fundamental principles of American justice," the producers said.

Promptly Zach L. Cobb, elderly tart-tongued attorney for the Bill Hutcheson's union, spoke up.

It was "regrettable," he said, that persons representing motion-picture companies should come "before one congressional committee after another" and challenge the propriety of proceedings.

[His reference was to the attacks made by the industry on the House Un-American Activities during the summer hearings into communism in Hollywood.]

Red's Refusal To Reply Ties Up Trial Here

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

A high Communist leader yesterday brought District Court proceeding to a halt by refusing to tell whether he knew Harold R. Christoffel, CIO auto leader who is on trial for perjury.

Christoffel is accused of lying when he told the House Labor Committee under oath that he was not a Communist Party member. Called as a witness against him yesterday was Fred Bassett Blair, Communist State chairman for Wisconsin and formerly the party's candidate for Governor and Senator.

"Do you know this man, Christoffel?" asked Special Prosecutor John S. Pratt.

Blair said he wasn't going to tell, because the answer might link him to some crime.

Rogge Demands Trial Stop

Defense Counsel O. John Rogge at once leaped up and asked Justice Edward M. Curran to call the trial off. Rogge said the prosecutor knew that was what Blair would say, because he has said it before, and that the question was staged just to harm Christoffel in the eyes of the jury.

Justice Curran denied Rogge's motion, saying the trial would go on. But it didn't, and won't until some time today. Because the argument over whether Blair would be ordered to answer went on for more than an hour. Late in the day, Curran still had not made up his mind, so he adjourned court, saying he would rule this morning.

Blair's lawyer—Emanuel Bloch of New York—made it plain that no matter what Curran rules, he will tell his client to stand on the Constitution and refuse to answer. Blair might be held in contempt for this, and his only hope of release would be by a writ of habeas corpus.

Refused to Reply Before

Attorney Bloch told Justice Curran that last summer Blair was called before the District grand jury and asked whether he knew Christoffel. He refused to say—on the same ground he gave yesterday—and Justice James M. Proctor backed him up.

The Blair question and the arguments that it brought on took up most of the afternoon, and was the only evidence of the day that had a bearing on the charge against Christoffel. Defense Counsel Rogge blocked the use of the record of Christoffel's testimony at the House Committee, which was brought to the court by Official Reported Martin C. Smith.

Rogge claimed it was not clear that a quorum of the House Labor Committee was present when Christoffel was on the stand. The committee clerk, Frank McArthur, said his tally sheet showed there was a quorum two hours before, but he could not say for sure who was at the hearing when Christoffel was sworn as a witness.

Quorum Prescribed by Judge

Chairman Hartley (R., N. J.) said there was a quorum, and gave the names of 13 members who were there. But on cross examination, Hartley cut down his figure to 11 he knew were at the hearing and said he did not know of any others. But there might have been some, he said.

A quorum is 13 members, and Rogge claims no less can do any business. So if there were less than 13, Christoffel may have told a lie, but it was not perjury.

Washington Calling

Cooperation On Atomic Energy

JUST A YEAR ago, the Senate was torn by a bitter feud over the confirmation of David Lilienthal, chairman, and the four other members of the United States Atomic Energy Commission. This was in reality the second round of the struggle to transfer the vast new power of atomic fission from military to civilian authority.

Childs

Those who wanted to block confirmation were also those who, for the most part, preferred to leave the two-billion-dollar atomic energy project under the guardianship of men in uniform. They had lost their battle on the issue itself a year before. And they lost again when the five commissioners were finally confirmed.

What has happened since then? What has civilian control meant? Is the commission a success?

To try to find some of the answers, I have talked with members of the commission, with military men, with scientists, with members of Congress who serve on the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, and with others. They agree for the most part on the following:

1. Progress has been made under the civilian commission.

2. No other form of control that could win congressional and public approval would work so well.

A few individuals would dissent from this verdict. But their prejudices seem to be so fixed that, even if the commission had performed miracles, they would not have been convinced.

THERE HAVE been no miracles unless you count hard work a miracle. By constant, untiring effort, the commission has progressed toward putting the project on a long-term basis.

Conflicts with the Military Liaison Committee have not developed. The law creating the commission provides that the military committee may appeal to the President when overruled by the commission. No such appeal has been taken to the White House.

Several members of the military committee expressed the opinion that only through a civilian commission could atomic energy be developed for war and peace. Lieut. Gen. L. H. Brereton, chairman of the committee, has worked in harmony with the commissioners. Brereton might like to make one or two changes in the setup but he holds so strongly to the need for continuity that he would defer these changes if to propose them meant starting a new controversy and again delaying all development.

The commissioners were appointed for only one year, and must be reappointed and confirmed by the Senate to insure continuity. It is as though a corporation operating one of the biggest and most complex businesses in the world contemplated changing its board of directors annually. The corporation would not thrive. And a political ruckus in this political year could set back the whole atomic energy project. New men would inevitably have to learn the job.

WHILE THERE have been rumors of dissension among the commissioners, they emphatically deny that any major differences have divided them. They are of varying political beliefs. Lewis L. Strass is a Hoover Republican. W. W. Waymack was editor of a Republican newspaper. Lilienthal is rated a New Dealer because he championed the TVA idea.

But politics has been strictly barred. A letter from your Congressman, no matter what his party or point of view, is the surest way not to get a job with the AEC.

"I understand now why McKellar beefed about Lilienthal in the TVA," one Senator said. "A man can be a good man even if he does happen to be recommended by his Senator or his Congressman. But don't get me wrong—I wouldn't change this setup or the men who are running it today."

Even while some members of Congress grumble, they realize that AEC had to bar the door absolutely against political interference. The moment it was opened for a single appointee with the proper political blessing, the commission would have been in for trouble.

An operation of this magnitude could not be run with political interference. The commission in this fiscal year will direct the spending of about 500 million dollars.

Good news rarely makes the front page. The story of AEC during the past year is good news. In several columns to follow, I want to report some of the details of this story.

Ihlder Warns Of Imminent Housing Crisis

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Increasing rents, continued shortage of low-cost housing here and present regulations on Federally subsidized homes are building up to a spring crisis, Congress is told in the annual report of National Capital Housing Authority.

The report, by John Ihlder, executive officer of NCHA, asked permission to extend "some of" its leases on 4078 temporary units now under its control but scheduled for disposal.

Unless the request is granted, says the report, 1170 of the total must be disposed of by June 30, adding to Washington's 20,000 low-income applicants for public housing. Among these are the families of 6000 veterans.

Describing the Washington housing situation as "worse than it was during the war," the report emphasized that NCHA has "repeatedly urged" that aging temporary construction be matched by a program for permanent low-rent housing into which occupants of the temporaries might move.

Besides the 1170 housing units scheduled for disposal by June 30, the report listed other disposal deadlines of: 1940 to be disposed of by June 30, 1949; 896, by June 30, 1950, and 72 with an indefinite date. The deadlines, it was pointed out, were set automatically when President Truman signed Public Law 239, ending the war emergency on July 25, 1947.

"We are farther back in our slum reclamation program than we were when the war began," Ihlder wrote. "Space below ground level is being used for dwellings, and for the first time since 1892, alley dwellings are appearing in the form of converted stables. Our slums are expanding."

Congress-approved slum reclamation projects will further add to the local housing situation by "displacement of many other low-income families," Ihlder reported.

The two developments NCHA wishes to retain, Ihlder explained, include Highland Dwellings, with 350 units near Atlantic and 4th sts. se., and Stoddert Dwellings, at Anacostia rd. se., with 200 units, and a small group of "demountables" (36 dwelling units), Langston, near 21st and G sts. ne.

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

X-Ray Drives Launched in Nearby Va.

Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., yesterday inaugurated campaign to help wipe out the once-dreaded white plague, tuberculosis.

The drives, similar to the mass chest X-ray survey being conducted in Washington, aim at examining the chests by X-ray of all adults over 15 years of age in the two counties. The Fairfax campaign extends through March 3; Arlington's, through July 2.

Like Washington's survey, where 128,000 residents and workers have already been examined out of an expected goal of 600,000 by June 15, the county services are also free of cost and embarrassment. They are sponsored by the State Department of Health, the county health departments and the county Tuberculosis Association and have been financed by taxes and the sale of Christmas seals.

A similar campaign is under way in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area of Montgomery County, Md., the county's second phase of a drive that has already canvassed the Silver Spring sector.

Chest X-Ray Hours And Stations Listed

Any person over 15 years of age may drop in for free, confidential chest X-ray between the designated hours at the following locations:

The Gallup Poll

Public Sentiment for Revision Of Taft-Hartley Act Declines

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 17.—Voters today are considerably less sympathetic with organized labor's campaign to repeal or revise the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act than they were when the controversial law took effect a half year ago.

Actually, Institute surveys in the last six months show a steady decline in voters supporting the official stand of labor union leaders on the act.

Today less than 40 per cent of voters who have heard or read about the act favor revision or outright repeal, contrasted with 53 per cent just after Congress overrode President Truman's veto last summer.

A total of 72 per cent in the latest survey said they had heard or read about the act, while 28 per cent said they had not. These are exactly the same proportions revealed in a September poll.

Those who had heard or read about it were then asked:

Do you think the Taft-Hartley law should be revised, repealed, or left unchanged?

The vote today, compared to previous polls in September and August of last year, follows:

	TO-DAY	Sept. 1947	August 1947
Revised	25%	27%	32%
Repealed	13	18	21
	38%	45%	53%
No opinion	26	27	25

Public support for organized labor's viewpoint appears even less strong than these figures indicate, when the ideas of those who favor revision are analyzed. Those who suggest prolabor revisions only slightly outnumber those who suggest tighter restrictions on unions. In the current survey those voting for revision of the Act were asked:

How should it be revised?

Their answer:

27%—make it less hard on labor, return rights to labor
4%—restore closed shops
2%—restore political campaign privileges of unions
1%—remove non-Communist certification
3%—labor should have right to refuse work, right to strike (which the act does not prohibit)

37%—Total pro-labor revisions
34%—make act stricter, put teeth in it
9%—miscellaneous
22%—don't know

102%

(*Adds to more than 100 per cent since some gave more than one answer.)

Even among voters unfamiliar with the Taft-Hartley Act the prevailing sentiment is that the Nation's present labor regulations do not restrict unions too harshly.

Voters in today's study who had not heard about the act were asked:

As things stand today, do you think the laws governing labor unions are too strict, or not strict enough?

Their answers:

Too strict	14%
About right	26
Not strict enough	31
No opinion	29

A turnabout among Democratic voters since September gives a new twist to major party attitudes on the issue. Whereas Republicans vote almost the same way they did last fall, Democrats favoring repeal or revision have declined markedly so there now is little difference between them and GOP voters.

TODAY

	Democratic voters	Republican voters
Revised	22%	23%
Repealed	12	10
	34%	33%
No opinion	25	29

SEPTEMBER, 1947

	Democratic voters	Republican voters
Revised	29%	24%
Repealed	26	9
	55%	33%
No opinion	28	25

However, political strategists must also consider the views of independent voters who not necessarily indorse the platforms of any organized party. These people, comprising roughly 20 per cent of the voting population, favor repeal or revision of the act by almost two-to-one.

INDEPENDENT VOTERS TODAY

Revise	31%
Repeal	18
	49%
No opinion	25

Teen-Ager's Tragedy

'Pick-Up Girl' Is National's Drama

By Richard L. Coe

(Reprinted From Yesterday's Final Edition)

FROM UNLIKELY MATERIAL Elsa Shelley has devised a theatrically effective courtroom drama in "Pick-Up Girl." With the veteran Frank Wilcox and Peggy Ann Garner of the films, her play about a teen-ager's "delinquency" last night opened a week's run at the National.

"Pick-Up Girl" was first presented in New York for six months during the 1943-44 season and since has scored more emphatically abroad. Its success has been particularly strong in England, where Queen Mary gave it exceptional praise and where it is still running in its third season.

The theme—a young girl's tragedy from learning too quickly the facts of life—is strong meat, but Miss Shelley evidently has studied the salient points of writing courtroom drama. Like "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "Madam X" and "The Night of January 16," "Pick-Up Girl" succeeds in taking an audience persuasively into the drama of a courtroom.

Elizabeth Collins, 15, has been brought up by a weak, luckless father and a lazy, neglectful mother. The period is the height of the war years, though it might just as well be today. A yearning for little luxuries introduces Betty to the evils of Times Square. She gradually comes to know many men. Prompted by a neighbor—the mother of a boy who loves Betty—the police break in on the child and a man old enough to be her father.

The Parents' Responsibility

We see them in juvenile court, where the judge attempts to learn why Betty has fallen into her sordid tragedy and to decide what should be done with the child. It is an intensely sympathetic handling of the judge's daily problem and a bitter denunciation of the parents who have allowed their child's tender years to be marred by their neglect.

In her anger at the parents, Miss Shelley has allowed no room for subtlety. The cards are heavily stacked against the parents, not only Betty's parents, but the loose-living mother of Betty's girl friend. She has chosen to strengthen her play by passing over the likelihood of Betty's tragedy occurring in a family not already overwrought with troubles. As a result, one can't help wondering whether the immense success of "Pick-Up Girl" abroad hasn't come from what audiences may presume to consider a typical American home. The purport of the drama would have been immensely strengthened by depicting parents less pathetic than Betty's.

For all that, there is shrewd theater knowledge in this play even though the writing has been done too much with a brush.

Peggy Ann Garner Starred

The playing is enormously bolstered by Frank Wilcox' judge, the focal point of the action. Wilcox plays him with knowing skill.

Peggy Ann Garner, who's now 16, has come a long way from the little girl who first appeared on the professional stage nine years ago in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" at Steve Cochran's Olney Theater. Like so many youngsters of her age, Peggy Ann looks deceptively older than she is, but her voice gives her away. It is a small voice, the voice of a child, and last night I couldn't help wondering whether she was being clearly heard throughout the house.

Dorothy Peterson, who has played many screen mothers lately, has the capabilities for her emotional scenes. Peter Fernandez, whose fine speaking voice is the reward of long stage training, is likable as the boy who befriends Betty; it's an awkward role, but he seems to understand it. Alan Rich, another youngster, does an assured job as a young tough and Marian Leeds is business-like as the policewoman.

While "Pick-Up Girl" is not the play for everyone, it is a drama of vehement conviction and, somehow, though her devices are frequently all too apparent, the author's sincerity comes through. While "Pick-Up Girl" won't make you whistle, you'll remember it a lot longer than "Blossom Time."

"PICK-UP GIRL." Jules Leventhal presents the play of Elsa Shelley. The action takes place in a juvenile court on the late afternoon of a summer day, with two intermissions during the action. Staged by Loy Nilson. At the National.

Arlington Father Gets Bronze Star

A young Arlington man, now returned to the role of father, husband and oil burner mechanic, this week was given a Bronze Star to remind him of a day just this side of eternity, July 22, 1943, at Munda, British Solomon Islands.

He is Eugene A. Hall, of 1610 N. 16th st., Arlington, wartime gunner in a Marine tank platoon. Though stunned and wounded by a "fanatical enemy armed with a magnetic mine . . . he retained sufficient presence of mind" to extinguish the resulting fire, saving comrades and tank.

House Given Bill On Rubber Program

Continued Operation of Synthetic Plants Approved by Committee

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Legislation to assure maintenance of a peacetime American synthetic rubber industry and adequate supplies of the vital material in another war was sent to the House floor yesterday.

The House Armed Services Committee unanimously approved a bill to continue operation of the Government-owned warborn plants as a permanent part of the national security program.

Chairman Walter G. Andrews said the bill—drafted after nine months of study—has been given a green light by House GOP leaders and the White House.

Some provisions for lease of the wartime-built, Government-owned synthetic rubber plants are due for careful Senate scrutiny, however.

The measure written by a House subcommittee headed by Representative Paul W. Shafer (R., Mich.) proposes to:

(1) Require preservation of plants in operating or standby condition capable of producing 675,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually. Total United States rubber consumption in 1947 was 1,100,000 tons.

2. Require the actual output and use of at least 225,000 tons of rubber from the United States plants each year.

3. Prohibit the disposal of any of the present Government-owned synthetic plants, except by congressional concurrent resolution and with approval of defense officials.

4. Permit private companies to build their own plants.

Mars to Be Scanned Tonight For Evidence of Life There

McDonald Observatory, Fort Davis, Tex., Feb. 17 (AP).—Astronomers at McDonald Observatory hope to settle within the next 24 hours two key questions about the possibility of life on Mars.

As the planet swings closer to earth tonight than it will be at any other time in two years, they may determine:

1. Whether or not water, in the form of ice or water vapor, is present.

2. Are the green areas obvious on Mars trees or grass or weeds, like our own, or are they some other vegetable form?

Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, observatory director, has been using a new infra-red spectrometer, attached to McDonald's telescope's big eye, in recent studies bearing on the possibility of life on Mars. He hopes during the next few hours, when the planet comes within 63 million miles of the earth, to make further studies of both its polar cap and its areas of green, with this instrument.

Here are some things about Mars learned by other techniques:

Only One is No. 1—
Only Chevrolet Is First!

Meet the new standard of Big-Car beauty! New front-end styling—new radiator and body ornamentation—new colors—new and richer upholstery fabrics! All leading Big-Car beauty and luxury to Chevrolet's Bodies by Fisher—the finest bodies made—available only on Chevrolet and higher-priced cars.

You'll enjoy Big-Car performance, too, when you own a new Chevrolet. All the pep and power—all the getaway, stamina and reliability of a world's champion Valve-in-Head engine—plus Chevrolet economy! Yes, the same basic Valve-in-Head design found elsewhere only on more expensive cars.

CHEVROLET Men and women everywhere agree: Only one is No. 1—only Chevrolet is first—in all-round value as in popularity. Consequently, more people drive Chevrolets than any other make, according to official nation-wide registrations; and more people want Chevrolets than any other make, according to seven independent nation-wide surveys. Here, in the new 1948 Chevrolet, is record value. For new and even more luxurious styling, colors and appointments have been added to the Big-Car comfort, performance and dependability which identify Chevrolet as the only car giving BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST! To examine this new and finer Chevrolet is to know it's your No. 1 car—your No. 1 investment for 1948.

Big-Car safety will be yours, as well. For this new Chevrolet brings you Unisteel body-construction, the Knee-Action Ride and Positive-Action Hydraulic Brakes. More features combined only in Chevrolet and higher-priced cars—more reasons why people everywhere agree: Only one is No. 1—only Chevrolet is first!

How you and your family will enjoy the Big-Car riding-comfort and road-steadiness of Chevrolet for '48! So much smoother, steadier, safer on all types of roads. That's due to the famous Knee-Action Gliding Ride; and, of course, Knee-Action is found only on Chevrolet and costlier cars.

The record-breaking demand for new 1948 Chevrolets prompts us to suggest that you keep your present car in good running condition by bringing it to us for skilled service, now and at regular intervals, pending delivery of your new Chevrolet. See us for truly dependable service—today!

Bond Buying Tops Cash-ins By 16% Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington sales of Series E Savings Bonds in 1947 were 16 per cent more than redemptions, according to Hugh Lynch, director of the District of Columbia Savings Bond Division.

Lynch

This was a more favorable showing than nationally where E sales exceeded cash-ins by only 4 per cent.

Based on issue price, local sales in 1947 aggregated $66,027,199, as compared with $57,329,034 in redemptions, Lynch reported yesterday. The redemptions include Series A, B, C and D bonds which, however, have not been sold since early 1941.

Including Series F and G bonds, total sales here last year amounted to $90,700,000.

During the year, Washington led 31 States in the sale of Series E bonds. It stood eighth among the States in percentage of quota of all series attained.

The local quota last year for all series of bonds was 77 million dollars. Percentage of quota attained was 117.8.

(1947)	Series E Sales	Redemptions Series A-E
January	$6,961,863	$4,831,361
February	6,059,704	3,894,015
March	5,681,827	4,725,670
April	5,220,247	4,800,838
May	5,394,278	4,681,414
June	5,495,914	5,457,016
July	5,848,920	4,995,000
August	4,892,809	4,372,720
September	4,916,548	4,494,000
October	5,056,680	5,053,000
November	4,852,115	4,540,000
December	5,686,294	5,484,000

NEW MANAGER: Clyde Doran has been appointed Washington traffic and sales manager of United Air Lines. He succeeds Karl P. Hughes, who has been named sales control and budget manager of the airline's Chicago headquarters.

Hughes

Doran

Doran formerly was manager of the UAL office at Vancouver, B. C. He has served with the airline since 1937, except for four years' leave with the Naval Air Transport Service. Hughes, a UAL veteran of 11 years, has been head of the local office since 1942.

PROFIT-SHARING: The 580 employes of Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the Washington area yesterday received their share of last year's profits under the company's 32-year-old plan. The members have to their credit in the fund 18,170 shares of Sears' stock, plus a cash balance of $201,728. Based on a January 31 market value of $34 a share for Sears stock, the local group has an investment worth $819,508. Employes deposit 5 per cent of their annual salaries and the company contributes annually an established percentage of profits.

PROGRESS: The 27 member associations of the District of Columbia Building & Loan League have combined share investments of $271,784,700 as of January 31, an increase of $23,635,000 over the same date a year ago. F. Willson Camp, league secretary, also reported that the associations have 162,000 savings accounts and 212,000 customers in all.

ODD LOTS: Philadelphia Electric Co. awarded a 25-million dollar 30-year bond issue to a group headed by First Boston Corp., on a bid of 98.639 for a 2⅞ per cent coupon. Reoffering at 99¼ is expected . . . Dun & Bradstreet reported business failures in week ended February 12 numbered 128, the highest for any week since January, 1943 . . . Lawrence Phillips, director of the Dumont network, predicted that 50 television stations would be in operation by the end of 1948 and that 750,000 receiving sets would be distributed during the year . . . Alfred H. Harke has been appointed district manager and William Stetser, jr., an assistant manager of the Washington office of American Co. . . . A large group of Washington bank auditors, headed by Mrs. Margaret S. McClure, will attend a dinner meeting tomorrow night with a similar Baltimore group.

TAX REFUND: The Washington Gas Light Co. is entitled to a $8138.38 refund from the District of Columbia, it was ruled yesterday by the local Board of Tax Appeals. Lawrence Koeingsberger, sole member of the board, held that the gas company's contribution of $144,000 in 1945 to its employes retirement fund should have been allowed as a proper deduction for District income tax purposes.

EARNINGS: Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and subsidiaries reported for the quarter ended November 29 net profit of $3,947,597, or 54 cents a share, compared with $7,203,829, or 97 cents a share in the same 1946 quarter. Other income statements follow:

Nature's Wonders

Spring-Like Day Brings Out Haight

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

EVER SINCE the boss asked me to write an occasional hunting and fishing column, I've not only been referred to as an Outdoor Editor around the the office, but I've been dubbed variously as "Duck Blind" Haight, "Wildlife" Haight, etc.

Haight

These clever monickers have rolled off my well-rounded form like water off the proverbial duck's back.

However, I began to get a bit fed up when the sports department boys started going in for singing commercials like "Where the deer and the antelope play, Haight will be there."

But the Spring-like weather has softened me, bringing thoughts of the great outdoors—a big subject for a short piece.

At first thought there's a tendency to resent the commercialization of many of the wonders Mother Nature has betowed on us. Perhaps this is the best brought out by a conversation that took place en route to Miami one year.

I had been through the City of Daytona Beach many times without seeing the famed beach, scene of the auto speed trials. Seeing a Neon sign reading, "To the Beach," I turned off the main road.

Jake, my traveling companion, exploded with "You're going the wrong way! Miami's thata way! Route No. 1, straight——"

I broke in, "Yes, Jake, but I'm going to take a ride over and look at the beach. I've always wanted to see it."

"What're you wasting time for?" he came back, "Daytona Beach ain't nothing but a racket like Niagara Falls."

LAST SUMMER while vacationing in Colorado, I was a bit perturbed when I found there was a price involved in getting a close-up of the Will Rogers Memorial, Cave of the Winds, Royal Gorge, Seven Falls, etc.

However, when we stop to think that it would be virtually impossible for all but a rugged few to get there without help, we begin to see it in a different light.

The same train of thought centers around the commercialized sport of fishing. A week or so back, I referred to mob fishing off a steamboat out of Miami—three or four hundred throwing so many lines over the side they resembled a portiere. Didn't appeal to me, but it was the only fishing chance for most of the public.

Then, I've seen boats on Chesapeake Bay leave their harbors loaded with so many would-be fishermen that the craft seemed certain to dip water if a dozen hardheads were taken aboard. True, there's little chance for sport, but then it's fishing just the same for someone.

But the daddy of all commercialism of the sort, in my book, is a crabbing trip out of an East Coast summer resort.

We were solicited in the hotel lobby by an over-uniformed "captain" who said, "Would you

Caps, Knicks Will Scrap Here Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

If you want an idea how the Washington Caps will fare against the New York Knicks in the professional basketball playoffs next month, drop out to Uline Arena tonight.

These two clubs are pacing their respetcive divisions—Washington the Western and New York the Eastern—and if they finish that way, as expected, they'll launch a four-out-of-seven series in championship playoffs.

Washington won the Eastern title in a breeze last year—but this season found itself in the somewhat ludicrous position of having to defend its Eastern title in the Western Division. This geographical believe-it-or-not resulted from the Basketball Association of America's regrouping last summer.

Even league officials found trouble trying to make a Western city out of New York and allowed the Knicks to campaign in the East. The Gothamites have found their Eastern rivals a soft touch, winning 18 out of 23 games against teams in their division. In the West, however, it's been different—New York has scored only five triumphs in 15 tries.

Caps Have Won Two of Three

This evening's Caps-Knicks game will be their fourth of the season, but the first time the teams have played when they led their respective divisions. New York's last venture against the Caps, in January, resulted in a decisive Cap victory, scored at a time when Washington was wallowing around in last place in the West and New York in second place in the East.

Washington owns a 2-1 advantage in the series and will be eight or nine-point favorites, at least, to make it 3-1 tonight.

New York stacks its offense around Center Carl Braun, Forward John Palmer and Guard Dick Holub. This trio has scored 1472 points with Braun, a 20-year-old rookie from Colgate, the leader with 545, fifth best in the league.

47 Points by Braun

Braun, too, holds the league's best single-game record, a 47-point job against the hapless Providence Steamrollers in December. But Braun doesn't bother the Caps much. Johnny Mahnken held him to only seven points in their last meeting.

The Knicks also call on Sid Tannenbaum, former NYU All-American who made his debut against the Caps here last month with a 15-point performance. This and the fact that the Knicks have won nine of their last ten games doesn't frighten the Caps.

Vernon Signs, Salary Secret

Firstbaseman Mickey Vernon signed his 1948 contract yesterday, agreeing to terms after a conference with Clark Griffith in Orlando, Fla.

Vernon was the last Nat to sign last year, finally inking a contract which called for $19,000. He won the American League batting championship in 1946 with a fancy .353 average, but slipped to .265 last season.

Vernon's 1948 salary was not mentioned, but Nat Farm Director Ossie Bluege, who made the announcement here, said the Marcus Hook, Pa., star had asked for a raise over his 1947 pay.

"Did he get it after his poor season last year?" Bluege was asked.

"You can use your own deduction," Bluege answered, emphasizing the word "deduction."

Colonials' Rally Beats VMI, 51-45

Lexington, Va., Feb. 17 (AP).—George Washington's favored Colonials had their hands full tonight before they finally toppled improving Virginia Military Institute, 51-45.

The Colonials came through with a flurry of baskets in the last five minutes to break a deadlock and win the Southern Conference struggle.

Eddie Lutes, VMI's freshman star, and John Moffatt, George Washington forward, tied for scoring honors with 13 points each. In addition to pacing the Keydets in the scoring column Lutes' all-around floor game was the highlight of the contest.

George Washington, which had previously downed the Keydets by a one-sided 64-40 score, found VMI a vastly improved ball club. The Colonials got off to a fast start, but saw the brakes applied as VMI came back with a scoring rally that all but overtook the visitors. GW led at the half, 25-24.

For the first 15 minutes of the second period the two teams battled on even terms. With the score at 41-41, the Colonials went ahead to stay as Moffatt tallied two field goals.

Cleveland Rolls Over Lions, 7-2, As Kelly, Holata Star

Paced by Roy Kelly and Johnny Holata, the Cleveland Barons walloped the Washington Lions, 7-2, in an American Hockey League match before 1025 fans last night at Uline Arena.

Both men scored a pair of goals and each received credit for an assist.

Holata's two tallies came in the final period to give the Barons a 6-2 lead. The final Cleveland score came on Church Russell's shot three minutes before the uneven contest ended.

A pair of simultaneous penalties to Cleveland's Bob Solinger and the Lions' Frank Porteous set the stage for a second period surge by Baron wingman Roy Kelly, who scored twice in a minute and a half to put the Barons in front 4-2.

Up to Kelly's scoring spree, the Lions had stayed even with the Barons. Cleveland's Bob Carse opened the scoring early in the first period, but Johnny Carr-Harris deadlocked things five minutes later.

Then Roger Gagne's goal gave Cleveland a 2-1 lead which lasted until 5:30 of the second session when Larry Archambault netted a 50-foot drive to tie it up again.

Tonight at Brookland

Catholic U. Has Second Try Against Favored American U.

Catholic University, though hampered by injuries, hopes to avenge an earlier 55-50 setback by American U. in their intracity Mason-Dixon Conference contest tonight at Brookland.

Considering American's upset by Western Maryland Monday night, the Cardinals' hope may not be a forlorn one. The Eagles won over Western Maryland by 16 points early in the season, but bowed to the tenth-place Terrors by 54-52.

Catholic U., however, has to put a patched-up team on the floor. It lost Jack Walsh for the season with a fractured wrist and had to play its last game with three regulars out.

The Eagles, smarting after their second loss in 10 Mason-Dixon games, will count on Bob Lamon and Pete Negley to get them back on the winning path. Lamon continued his sensational scoring with 16 points against Western Maryland. In his last five games, Lamon has tallied 101 points.

Each of the local teams has only two more conference foes to face. Catholic meets Mount St. Mary's and Western Maryland and American plays Loyola and Randolph-Macon. Then they get ready for the Mason-Dixon Conference tournament at Baltimore March 4, 5 and 6.

At Annapolis this afternoon, Coach John Lawther's Penn State zone defense advocates will attempt to further befuddle Ben Carnevale's disappointing Navy basketball squad.

Pittsburgh Protest Upheld

The Washington hockey team still has a firm hold on the hard-luck title.

All was praise when the listing Lions finally succeeded in knocking off the league-leading Pittsburgh Hornets here last Friday, 5-3.

But today all they had to show for their efforts was another number in the lost column.

Maurice Podoloff, American League president, yesterday awarded the game to the Hornets after a protest that the Lions had used two ineligible players.

The Hornets also had protested the 2-2 tie the two clubs played the following night in Pittsburgh, but this stands as a tie, Podoloff ruled.

He said that the Lions used two ineligible players in Maurice Robidas, defenseman, and Tiny Tamillen, forward, both of the Quebec St. Hyacinth Seniors. On the second protest it was established that George Hayes, a center who had been representing the Baltimore Clippers, had been signed to a contract by the Lions and consequently was eligible for last Saturday night's tie.

Fordham Sneaks Past Hoyas, 51-50

Fordham came from nowhere to beat Georgetown, 51-50, on a foul short by Forwad John Bach in the last three seconds to hand the Hoyas their fifth straight setback last night at the Armory.

A slim crowd of 572 was on hand to see Georgetown let a 13-point lead melt. Even after Ray Corley, shooting ace with 19 points, went out with two minutes to play, the Hoyas appeared the winner at 50-45.

But Bob Mulvihill, All-Prep at Gonzaga here, made two baskets after Georgetown passes were intercepted in Fordham territory.

Gerry Smith tied it up with 50 seconds to play and then Johnny Brown, who just came into the game, gave Bach his chance to win the game. He did.

At half time, Georgetown appeared to have an excellent chance of ending its losing streak. The Hoyas walked off with a 28-24 lead when Vince Leddy dropped two fast field goals and Ray Corley added a foul just before intermission.

Corleys' foul was his tenth point. He and Ken Brown, with six, led the early scoring and Brown was most valuable doing his usual good job of retrieving rebounds.

Fordham looked most unimpressive for a team with a 13-3 record. The Rams had a better shooting percentage than the Hoyas but just weren't getting enough shots.

The New Yorkers wouldn't have been in the running at all if it hadn't been for Guard Dan Graham who bagged six field goals in the first 20 minutes.

In the preliminary, Georgetown Frosh notched its sixteenth victory in 17 games by routing Maryland's "B" team, 90-64. John Kelly and John Mazziotta led the freshmen with 26 and 24 points, respectively. But Maryland's Jack Myers was high man in the high-scoring contest with 32 points.

Rickey Says 15 Owners Adopted Racial Pact

Chicago, Feb. 17 (AP).—Representatives of major league clubs today denied the assertion of Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers that he alone defied the opposition of 15 other major league club owners in giving Jackie Robinson, Dodgers' Negro first baseman, his chance to break into organized baseball.

Rickey told an audience of 250 at Wilberforce State University, a Negro school at Wilberfore, Ohio, last night that after he had signed Robinson, and before he had played in the majors, a report was unanimously adopted at a joint major league meeting that the use of Negro players would "hazard all the physical properties of baseball."

As the denials were pouring in against his assertions, Rickey pulled a disappearance act.

It was authoritatively learned that Arthur Mann, Rickey's executive assistant, had whisked his boss' beyond the probe of interviewers after Rickey had taken a sleep following his overnight plane flight to and from Wilberforce. It was reported Rickey had taken a plane for New York.

Rickey, in midafternoon, was reported checked out of the Sherman Hotel where he was supposed to attend the closing session of the All-America Football Conference.

Mann, in a corridor conference with another All-America Conference official, was overheard to say that Rickey "has got himself all jammed up in baseball with his talk at Wilberforce." After that, neither Rickey nor Mann could be located by the press.

Owner P. K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs sounded the theme of owners when he said "no such a vote ever was taken."

"If the question ever was presented in such a form as Rickey claims, I—or any representative of the Cubs never would have voted on it," declared Wrigley.

Mack Denies It

Roy Mack, vice president of the Philadelphia Athletics, denied that he or his father, Connie Mack, president and general manager of the A's, ever voted on such a document.

John Quinn, general manager of the Boston Braves, said this was the first time he ever heard the subject mentioned.

Griffith Strongly Denies Charges

Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, said in Orlando, Fla., that he had "never heard of such a thing" as Branch Rickey charged.

"I strongly deny there ever was so much as a thought along such lines," Griffith told The Washington Post by telephone. "The door always has been open to those boys (Negro players) if they were good enough to make the big leagues."

Griffith added that he was "at a loss to understand" Rickey's motives in making his remarks.

"He's always trying to put himself in the limelight, and it looks as if he's trying to aggrandize himself in the eyes of the colored people," Griffith said.

Rumor Has Detroit Offering McMillin $30,000 Per Year

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 17 (AP).—On the Indiana University campus today odds were increasing that Alvin N. (Bo) McMillin, the athletic director and head coach, might be leaving soon to become coach of the Detroit Lions of the professional National Football League.

The locker room rumors, all unconfirmed by McMillin, were that he was being tempted by a five-year contract carrying a salary of around $30,000 a year.

McMillin conferred in Detroit last week with officials of the Detroit Football Company and a close associate said today "Bo" plans to retu.n to Detroit, probably Thursday, for another conference.

The football mentor, who has accumulated a head of gray hair coaching college teams, has taken no steps to obtain release from the 10-year contract he signed with Indiana, effective July 1, 1945.

Action by the university trustees would be required for this release and they have not been approached. If "Bo" wants to leave, however, it is unlikely they would stand in his way.

Reports are circulating on the campus that if "Bo" goes to Detroit he may take with him two assistant coaches and Robert Cook, his assistant athletic director.

Charity Boxing Feature Planned by Vareity Club

The Variety Club of Washington plans a major boxing show at Griffith Stadium this summer with all profits going to children's charities, it was announced yesterday.

Plans for the summer attraction, which may be a championship affair, were discussed by the club's welfare committee at a luncheon meeting with newspapermen and sports announcers.

The boxing match would be held in addition to the club's pro football exhibition in Baltimore September 19 between the Washington Redskins and Chicago Bears.

Frank Boucher, who is chief Barker of the club, said that Variety had contributed $65,000 to charity last year, including over $30,000 to the Children's Hospital Fund, and "our welfare fund is exhausted."

Chairman Heinie Miller of the boxing commission, suggested a world's championship flyweight fight between Dado Marino of Hawaii and Rinty Monaghan of Ireland.

Others suggested that "name" performers in the heavier divisions, such as Lightweight Champion Ike Williams, Middleweight Champion Rocky Graziano, LaVern Roach, Marcel Cerdan and other top-ranking fighters be used.

A committee composed of Dick O'Brien of the Times-Herald, Morris Siegel of The Washington Post, Jim Gibbons of Radio Station WMAL, and Bill Brundige of Radio Station WOL was asked to suggest matches.

The fights would be held in August.

Haight Has Spring Fever

like to go on a two-hour crabbing trip?"

After buying tickets, he informed us that a bus would pick us up at the hotel at 1:17 p. m., and not 1:17½. I began to sense some regimentation in this crabbing, and that's what we got.

THE BUS STOPPED at a gangplank and we were soon on the boat which, incidentally, had just unloaded from the previous trip. The bell sounded and we were soon at the crabbing grounds located in a swamp-bordered inlet.

Crabs were plentiful. Once the lines were over, there was a tugging, one of three netters dipped and the shellfish was in the box.

For more than an hour, crabs were caught like clockwork. We had visions of a feast that night.

Finally our time was up. A bell rang and, before anybody could protest, the crabs were dumped back into the water!

No wonder the crabs were around! They were willing to trade an interval out of the water for a chance to eat. I've heard of slaphappy fighters, etc., but these were net-happy crabs.

It wasn't long before we were at the wharf, over the gangplank and into the bus. As we drove away, I turned and there was another bus pulling up with another load of crabbers.

It was a two-hour trip too,—right on the hickey. We arrived at our hotel at 3:17 p. m. and not 3:17½, if you know what I mean.

A racket? In a way, yes, but how else could a fat guy like me, go crabbing at a fashionable resort?

Randolph-Macon Wins

Front Royal, Va., Feb. 17.—Randolph-Macon Academy defeated Fishburne Military School here today, 37-26. The game was close until the last two minutes when fast-breaking R. M. A. increased its lead to 10 points. McElroy was high scorer with 15.

How can you tell a fine California wine?

Three things distinguish a fine wine—crystal clarity, wealthy bouquet, and a deep, completely satisfying flavor.

When you choose Petri Wine, you enjoy a wine superior on all counts. A wine made of the most select grapes . . . and brought to perfection by a family devoted to wine-making for three generations. Try Petri Wine tonight!

Wheelchair Tour Begins Despite Official Rebuffs

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17 (AP).—The wheelchair basketball team from Birmingham General Hospital will make its cross-country exhibition tour after all.

The team, composed of paraplegic combat veterans, leaves by air tomorrow morning for its first game at Kansas City Thursday night.

The tour faced cancellation when both the Veterans' Administration and the White House turned down the team's request for hospital personnel to accompany the squad.

"But we decided to go ahead anyway," said spokesman Charles W. Davison.

Money for expenses was raised by Los Angeles newspapermen.

"The hospital will send a doctor along with the 11 players," said Davison. "Sportswriter John Old will serve as coach and trainer and several ward personnel recently laid off at the hospital will come along as medical assistants." After Kansas City, the team will appear at Chicago, Buffalo, Boston, New York, Washington, Richmond, Cincinnati and Memphis.

Most of the players have been discharged from the hospital at nearby Van Nuys, but are still under treatment there. The others expect to be discharged before leaving on the trip.

Hursey-Horne Winner May Get Shot at Graziano

The winner of Monday night's Smuggy Hursey-Sonny Horne middleweight fight at Uline Arena will probably meet Middleweight Champion Rocky Graziano in a nontitle bout here April 5, Promoter Goldie Ahearn, of the Liberty A. C., announced yesterday.

If Horne wins and is paired against Graziano it will be the second time the clever Niles, Ohio, stylist has fought Graziano. Three years ago Horne lost a 10-round decision to Graziano, interrupting a string of six straight knockouts the spectacular Graziano had piled up.

Horne and Hursey are training in New York for their bout, but both will be here Friday to wind up their drills at Liberty A. C.

Turner's Arena Plans 4 Eights On Monday Card

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez will feature four 8-rounders, using Jimmy Cooper, Red Gaddis, Stonewall Jackson and Bee Bee Washington on Monday's card at Turner's Arena.

Cooper, unbeaten in eight pro fights, goes against Billy Lima of Miami. Gaddis faces Orlando Fernandez, of Tampa, beaten by Cooper here recently.

No opponents have been announced for Jackson and Washington. Although both were beaten in their last Turner's Arena appearances, Jackson and Washington are top favorites with the 14th and W sts. patrons.

Denials Follow Rickey Charge

tthe Boston Red Sox, likewise said he never heard of action being taken at any meeting he attended.

"We have always believed that the employment of any baseball player—white or Negro,—was the individual problem for the individual clubs to settle," Mack added.

Attended Every Meeting

"I attended every American League meeting and every joint session for years as a representative of my father, and never heard of such a document or proposal coming up. What Rickey is talking about he alone knows."

Ford Frick, president of the National League, who, Rickey says, passed out copies of the anti-Negro report to the National League club owners, said:

"I do not remember that phase."

Rickey, in Chicago attending the winter meeting of the All-America Football Conference, told his Wilberforce listeners that when he attempted to get a copy of the joint meeting report, officials of the National League told him that all copies had been destroyed. Rickey did not reveal the names of the National League officials.

"Let Them Deny It"

Rickey told his school audience among other things:

"You can't find a copy of that report anywhere, but I was at the meeting where it was adopted.

"I sat silent while the other 15 clubs approved it.

"I've tried to get a copy of the report, but league officials tell me all were destroyed.

"But let them deny they adopted such a report, if they dare.

"I'd like to see the color of the man's eyes who would deny it.

"President Ford Frick passed out copies at the National League meeting. Each copy bore the name of the man to whom it was handed.

"After we read them, they were collected. Frick checked off the names to see that he had all the copies. Then in the joint meeting the report was read and adopted.

On the Town

TODAY is a day of openings and anniversaries in the dining and dancing end of Washington . . . The Athenian Restaurant on Connecticut ave. will be the scene of a gay opening tonight when George Stroumbos, who until recently was one of the congenial hosts at the New Athens, will join Nicholas Stephan in welcoming diners at their new spot.

In addition to their fare of American food they'll be offering a menu of exotic Hellenic dishes.

Today marks the end of a very successful year for Jim Magner and Mike Palm of Ted Lewis' Restaurant . . . An anniversary dinner will be held from 5 to 10 o'clock tonight featuring everything from roast turkey to filet mignon, a rose will be given to every lady.

SORRY to hear that the Club Cairo had an unfortunate encounter with a thief this past Sunday night . . . The gent made off with same $2000, which ain't hay to the postwar night club owner . . . We're pretty certain that Jane Harney's arrival at the Cairo will help fill the empty coffers . . . She's the lovely little brunette who sang for a while on the 'Teen Timers' Show over the air . . . Benny Goodman played a part in the discovery of this attractive lass . . . Of course the Cairo Girls and Tato and Julia will be there to help hold up the dancing end of the show.

On February 13 this column stated erroneously that Ethel Gunderson was playing at the Casino Royal. She's at the Neptune Room . . . Must have been that Friday the 13th jinx . . . Mira Gilbert staged a successful opening at the Pall Mall Room Monday night . . . She's known for her renditions of the old folk songs, some of which are "Blow the Candles Out," "As I Went Out One Morning in May" and "Keeper of the Eddystone Light" . . . You'll be dating yourself if you claim to be familiar with too many of those.

There'll be a bit of "Feudin' and a Fightin' in the Embassy Room of the Hotel Statler come next Monday night when Dorothy Shay, "the Park Ave. Hillbillie," opens there for a limited engagement . . . Dorothy, a Jacksonville (Fla.), girl, has enjoyed an atomic ascent to success in a remarkably short time . . . A good portion of her success can be credited to John L. Hennessy, who is chairman of the board of the Statler Hotel chain. Hennessy discovered her some time back and since that time she has played in a number of the Statler hotels all over the country.

Tamm Opposed By American Bar Group as Judge

Report to Senate Committee Attacks Nomination; Three Hearings on Today

An American Bar Association committee report released last night opposed confirmation of Edward Allen Tamm as a justice of District Court.

The report was filed with the Senate Judiciary Committee on the eve of subcommittee hearing today on Tamm's nomination to the Federal bench.

The hearing will start at 10:30 a. m. before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.).

Three Hearings Today

The hearing, in room 424 of the Senate Office Building, is one of three scheduled today on District judge nominees. The others are on Justice James M. Proctor, at 10 a. m., and Justice Harold M. Stephens, at 10:15.

Stephens has been nominated to be Chief Justice of the Federal Court of Appeals here; Proctor to take Stephens' place as Associate Justice of the Appeals Court, and Tamm to assume Proctor's place in District Court. The three appointments followed resignation of Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner from the Appeals bench.

Tamm, nominated from his position as the Nation's No. 3 G-Man, is opposed by the District Bar Association and by the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The ABA report against Tamm was filed by the chairman of a committee of which Senator Donnell is listed as a member. It is the ABA special committee on the judiciary, whose chairman, John G. Buchanan, Pittsburgh, signed the report. Also listed among the committee members is John J. Carmody of Washington. In his letter, Buchanan declared:

"On behalf of the American Bar Association, we recommend that (Tamm's) nomination be not confirmed.

D. C. Bar View Cited

"We are fortified in our conclusion that the nomination should not be confirmed by the fact that in a referendum of members of the District Bar Association as to whether the nomination should be opposed, 928 voted that they were opposed to confirmation and only 175 voted in favor of it."

In declaring ABA opposition to Tamm, Buchanan said "no reflection whatever is meant to be cast upon the personal qualities of Mr. Tamm. From the information which has come to us it would appear that he is a very delightful gentleman and has been a very useful public servant.

"We are informed, however, that throughout the 18 years which have elapsed since he graduated from law school, he has been engaged in investigating and administrative work for the FBI.

"We understand that he has been a member of the bar for less than five years, and that he has never engaged in general practice."

$165,000 Paid Out Illegally for Relief, D. C. Auditor Says

About $165,000 has been illegally paid out to relief clients by District welfare officials, District Auditor A. B. Pilkerton declared last night.

He said a special report prepared by Special Assistant Auditor John Hughes showed that about $100,000 of the $165,000 was distributed during the term of the late Ray L. Huff as District Director of Public Welfare.

Last month Pilkerton disclosed that he was withholding a $3644 check for the estate of Mr. Huff pending an investigation of accounts handled by the welfare official. He emphasized that the probe was no reflection on Huff's integrity, but rather was intended to point up administrative weaknesses under present laws.

Pilkerton said he would study the report this week and make recommendations for action on it to the District Commissioners.

Curiosity Lures Suspect Into Arrest

Scout Car Policemen C. M. Castle and T. L. Souder had to give chase by auto and on foot to make 50 per cent of their two-man arrest.

The other half, impelled by curiosity, reappeared as they waited for the paddy wagon, they told Municipal Court yesterday.

The two policemen spotted a speeding motorcycle at Bladensburg rd. and New York ave. ne., but traffic blocked them from the chase. One of the blocking cars carried license plates of an auto reported stolen, so the scout car set out in that direction. They chased the car into an alley near 1200 Trinidad ave. ne., where two men hopped out and fled. Souder fired one shot and caught William E. Wandersee, 18, of 638 I st. ne., but the other man outpaced Castle.

As the three waited for the police wagon to pick up Wandersee, the truant motorcycle went slowly past the scene.

On the rear seat was the other 50 per cent of their quarry—listed as James H. Bottomley, 24, of 946 I st. ne.

The motorcycle driver, against whom no charges were placed, was John P. Goodrick, 19, of 718 10th st. ne. He said Bottomley and Wandersee had been trailing him in the car and that later when he saw Bottomey, he was asked to drive past the Trinidad ave. address to see "what was going on."

Bottomley and Wandersee were charged with unauthorized use of an automobile and held for the grand jury; Bottomley on $2500 band and Wandersee on $1000. Amount of the bonds differed because Bottomley has a previous record, police said. In addition, he faces nine traffic charges as a result of the chase.

The car, recovered by the two policemen, had been stolen from Edward J. Murphy, 1604 Isherwood st. ne.

Boy's Trip Abroad For Citizenship Held Unnecessary

"The boy without a country"—16-month-old Neils Francis Rebholz—can have American citizenship now if his father, a Chicago merchant seaman, wishes to arrange it, the Immigration and Naturalization Service declared yesterday.

A top official of the Service here said the father, William J. Rebholz, was informed by Andrew Jordan, district director of the service in Chicago, that the infant, here on a visitor's visa, was not being ordered out of the United States and that his citizenship status could be readily adjusted with a little paperwork.

The boy left New York by plane yesterday for Copenhagen, Denmark to spend a year with his maternal grandmother, a step that his parents said was required to enable him to become a full-fledged citizen.

$20,000 Awarded 3 in Motorcycle, Auto Accident

An 18-year-old youth yesterday was awarded $13,500 damages for "severe and permanent bodily injuries" suffered in a motorcycle-auto crash November 2, 1944.

A District Court Jury deliberated 2 hours before bringing in the verdict in favor of the youth, William M. Knode, 4825 Meadow View dr., Meadow View, Md. The youth's mother, Mrs. Mary I. Betz, was awarded $4000 and Stacey D. Johnson, 411 Maryland Park, Md., $2500.

The $20,000 total damages were levied against Mrs. Edna R. Blankin, 5810 16th st. nw., who, it was testified, collided with a motorcycle operated by Johnson, as she was attempting a U-turn in her car on 16th st. nw., near Manchester lane. The trial lasted 9 days.

D. C. Juniata Alumni Launch Fund Drive

A drive to help raise a million-dollar building and endowment fund for Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., was started here Monday by Washington alumni of the institution.

At a meeting at the Raleigh Hotel, Dr. Calvert Ellis, president of the college, and Harold Brumbaugh, alumni secretary, described the projected social center and physical education building.

J. H. Hollinger, who will direct the fund drive here, presided.

Drop in Births Laid to Prices, Housing Lack

Expert on Marriage Calls Money Main Cause of Breakups

A man who has heard the marital problems of more than 15,000 couples last night blamed in part the housing situation and high prices for the country's falling birthrate.

Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the Social Hygiene Society, 927 15th st. nw., branded inadequate housing facilities "a type of involuntary birth control."

"High prices," he declared, "make it more difficult for some young people to get married, and for others to have children."

Speaking before about 75 persons at a meeting at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., Everett said the five major causes of marriage breakups were:

1. Money.
2. Sexual maladjustment.
3. Recreational differences.
4. Health hazards.
5. Religious differences.

Everett listed "emotional stability" as of primary importance in a successful marriage, and warned couples about to be wed to expect "arguments not once a week but every day."

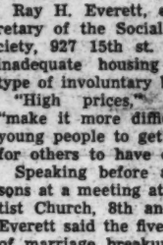
Solution to the daily differences, he averred, comes through emotional maturity. He said a marriage would grow "stronger and stronger" provided husband and wife handle their disagreements on a basis of emotional stability.

He listed "teamwork" as next in importance, and warned that "movies and juke boxes" were developing in many young persons "wrong ideas about marriage."

"Marriage is not," Everett emphasized, "one long round of romance. It is a day-to-day partnership."

Car Rifler Steals Lifting Device of Woman Paralytic

Memo to the thieves who looted a parked car Monday at 4th st. and Florida ave. nw.: Why not confine your thievery to rifling church poor boxes and short-changing the blind?



Miss Keren Miss Gertrude Keren, 33, of 1464 Spring rd. nw., who has ben crippled since infancy by a form of congenital paralysis.

The loot from the auto included a suitcase containing a strange-looking, hammock-like affair, used as a special lifting device in transporting

Miss Keren, who is staying with Mrs. Mollie Brown, 4312 S. Capitol st., is virtually bed-bound without the device.

The theft took place while Miss Keren and a friend were dining in a nearby restaurant. The thieves also took a radio, clothing and $25 in cash.

13 Millions Are Repaid By China on U. S. Loan

The dollar-hungry government of China has paid $13,698,000 to the Export-Import Bank on a 1941 loan, the Chinese embassy announced yesterday.

The embassy said that China also had delivered $3,650,000 worth of metals to the Reconstruction Finance Corp., in fulfillment of a wartime contract. Proceeds from sale of the metals eventually will be paid to the Export-Import Bank.

Jewelry Missing

Sachs Adds $3500 to Loss in Fire

Abe Sachs added another item in the loss column yesterday as he continued to compute damages resulting from a fire Sunday in his home, 5601 Utah ave. nw.

The blaze, which happened while Sachs and his family were absent, caused damage estimated at about $17,000. Yesterday Sachs, who owns a women's apparel shop at 796 13th st. nw., informed police that jewelry which had been in a bedroom before the fire was missing.

The jewelry, he said, consisted of a platinum diamond and sapphire ring valued at $1800 and a jeweled watch valued at $1750. They belonged to Sachs' mother-in-law, Mrs. Lillie Kabakoff, he said.

Police also received the reports yesterday of the following thefts:

Michael Pipitone of Geraci & Pipitone, tailors, 25 13th st. nw., a bolt of blue gray tropical cloth valued at $423.

Eldridge L. Myers, truck service station, 1065 Brentwood rd. ne., four sets of tires, tubes and rims, valued at $300, removed from two trucks parked overnight on a lot.

Samuel N. Scheer's store, 928 7th st. sw., 50 cases of canned beer and 25 cartons of cigarettes, valued at $163.

Meeting to Weigh Howard Students' Use at Gallinger

Detailed plans for permitting Howard University medical students and graduates to serve as internes and residents at Gallinger Hospital will be discussed at a special meeting Saturday, at 10 a. m. Commissioner Guy Mason announced yesterday.

He said Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing, representatives of Georgetown and George Washington Universities and their medical schools, the Health Department and Gallinger Hospital will be invited to attend.

Ewing disclosed Monday that an "agreement in principle" has been concluded to permit Negro medical students, internes and residents to train at Gallinger.

Howard University officials have not yet made an offer concerning "what units they can take over and operate," Mason said.

Kindler to Conduct At Concert Tomorrow

The National Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Hans Kindler, will give a concert tomorow night in Bethesda under sponsorship of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Lions Club.

The program, beginning at 8:30 p. m., will be held in Leland Junior High School auditorium, 44th and Elm sts., Chevy Chase. Proceeds will go to the fund raised annually by the Lions club for charitable and civic work.

Rotary to Hear Wiggins

Undersecretary of the Treasury Archibald L. M. Wiggins will give his own description of the "Personality of Washington" to members of the Washington Rotary Club at their luncheon today at 12:15 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel. Undersecretary Wiggins will describe interesting and unusual aspects of the city as he sees them after living here a year.

Browne P-TA Suit Faces Court Decision

Board of Education Attacked for Use of Blow, Webb Schools

District Court Justice Matthew F. McGuire yesterday took under advisement a suit in which the Parent-Teacher Association of the Browne Junior High School asked that school officials be prevented from assigning Negro junior high students to elementary buildings.

Belford V. Lawson, jr., attorney for the P-TA, argued in court that the Board of Education is violating the law by assigning Browne students to the Blow and Webb schools.

In these former white elementary buildings the Negro students do not receive the educational opportunity granted white junior high school children, Lawson said.

Transfer of Blow and Webb last December precipitated a two-month parent-inspired boycott of the buildings by more than 200 Browne students.

Lawson said that white high and junior high buildings are not used to capacity, while Negro schools are overcrowded.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton D. Korman, arguing for the school board, said that under the law the Board of Education has discretionary power in managing schools and that the courts cannot interfere unless the board acts arbitrarily.

Korman said that the board is using Blow and Webb to relieve overcrowding at Browne until completion of the new Negro Kelly-Miller Junior High School.

W. & L. Students Hear Publisher On Rights Program

Lexington, Va., Feb. 17 (AP).—The President's civil rights program—its usefulness and motives—came in for discussion here tonight by Hodding Carter, Mississippi publisher and Pulitzer Prize editorialist in 1946.

Carter, reminding Washington and Lee journalism students to whom he spoke, that 1948 is an election year, asked:

Would the civil rights program have been put forward now "if the South were as unknown a political quantity as are a number of debatable States where the votes of organized minority and pressure groups can determine the outcome?"

"I also wonder," he said, "whether the President discovered his interest in civil rights when he was a member of the Pendercast Society for the Advancement of Civil Rights in Missouri."

Manslaughter Charge Filed in Tavern Fight

Prince Georges County Police yesterday charged Irvin Utz, 28, 403 65th st., Maryland Park, Md., with manslaughter in the death of a 29-year-old man following a fight in a beer tavern.

Utz was released, after he surrendered to police, under $500 bond for appearance Friday at 10 a. m. at Upper Marlboro Police Court.

The victim, Edwin E. Mills, 6402 E st., Maryland Park, died at Mount Alto Hospital Sunday night of head injuries, according to Prince Georges County Medical Examiner James I. Boyd. The fight in which he was injured occurred February 9 in a Capitol Heights (Md.) tavern, police said.

Fuel Situation

Oil Shortage Crisis Stage Ends Here

Rising temperatures and some increase in supplies have pushed the Washington area fuel shortage out of the "crisis" stage.

"At the present moment, the situation has been relieved," J. Thomas Kennedy, District Fuel Oil Coordinator, said yesterday.

"We're not through by a long ways, but we can see the light," he said.

Kennedy, whose regular job is District Director of Weights, Measures and Markets, said that yesterday, for the first time in weeks, he was able to take some of his staff off emergency fuel oil work to make periodic weights and measures inspections.

Unless the fuel situation takes a sudden turn for the worse, he stated, allotments of oil for hardship cases will be increased starting today from 50 to 100 gallons.

Lecture Series On Christianity, Modern ManBegun

A series of lectures on "Christianity and Modern Man," sponsored by Washington Episcopal Diocesan laymen, opened last night in the Washington Cathedral's Library.

Dr. Clifford L. Stanley, theology professor at Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, will speak on "Christian Theology" each Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. through May 25. Dr. A. T. Mollegen, professor of Christian ethics at the Virginia Seminary, will discuss "Christianity and the Crisis of Secularism," Wednesdays at 8:30 p. m., March 31 through June 9. Open discussions will follow the talks. Both Drs. Stanley and Mollegen were students of Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr at Union Theological Seminary, New York City. The lectures are being given on a non-sectarian basis.

Members of the organizing committee for the series are Mr. and Mrs. Francis F. Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Preu, Mr. and Mrs. Armistead B. Rood, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Whitney, all of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. David D. Lloyd of Alexandria.

William T. Byrnes

Requiem mass for William T Byrnes, 79, a Spanish-American War Veteran who died Sunday at Soldiers' Home will be said today at 10 a. m. in the chaped on the Soldiers' Home grounds. Burial with military services will be in the Soldier's Home National Cemetery.

A native of Morris, Ill., Mr. Byrnes was born in 1868. As a young man, he worked until the outbreak of the Spanish-American War as a telegraph operator on various western railroads. He served in the Philippines as a telegraph operator in the signal corps for more than two years after the insurrection.

Mr. Byrnes entered Soldiers' Home about 12 years ago. Failing health had made him give up his work as a railroad telegraph operator, which he had taken again after his discharge from the Army about 1900. He was seriously ill for the past year.

Mr. Byrnes is survived by two brothers, Rev. Francis Byrnes and John Byrnes of Chicago, and two sisters, Mrs. Daniel Cronin of Morris, Ill., and Miss Elizabeth Byrnes of Chicago.

Relax, Man—

Statistics Belie Myth Of Leap Year

The elusive male can relax. Statistically speaking, he's as safe in '48 as in any nonleap year. Probably safer.

Milady's traditional once-in-four-years amatory prerogative isn't getting her anywhere, a peak into Washington's marriage license records showed yesterday. And what's more—if you can believe the figures—it rarely does.

So unsuccessful is the female's venture into the masculine realms, in fact, that the marriage rate usually shows a decline during leap year. Locally it has every leap year for the past 20 years—except for '36.

In '44, for example, there were 11,304 marriages, compared with 13,294 in '43. In '40, 7727 took out licenses as contrasted with 5908 in '39.

And judging from the trend so far, the bachelor who wants to stay that way won't be any worse off in '48. In January, 916 licenses were issued—less than for the same period in both '47 and '46.

In the first month of '47, 1005 licenses were issued. In January of '46, 1277 were taken out.

Mrs. Maude R. Rynex, deputy clerk at the marriage license bureau, who was unperturbed by the ironic situation which her records disclosed, explained it this way:

"People don't pay any attention to leap year. If they're going to get married, they're going to get married—regardless."

City Council Tables Ideas For Charter

Recommended changes in the Alexandria city charter to give more authority to the city manager were tabled by the Alexandria City Council last night pending a thorough study of the entire charter.

The council by a 6-to-3 vote referred the matter to its finance committee.

Finance Committee Chairman Everett A. Hellmuth, who had submitted a resolution for council approval of the revisions suggested by the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Virginia, said the council's vote meant no action could be taken for two years.

Revision of the charter must be made by the General Assembly, Hellmuth said; the council proposed study cannot be made during the Legislature's present session.

Hellmuth's resolution proposed that the council ask the Virginia city charter to (1) enable the city General Assembly to change the manager rather than the council to appoint all officers whose method of appointment is not otherwise stipulated by law, (2) consolidate the administrative agencies of the city into seven departments under the city manager, and (3) provide for an independent annual audit.

The council majority felt it had not had enough time to study the report and that the charter should be revised as a whole rather than piecemeal. The Bureau of Public Administration report dealt only with the office of city manager.

Finance Committee Member R. Samuel Luckett said he would propose as one charter change a shift to non-partisan election of the city council.

The Council indorsed a bill to be introduced to the General Assembly by Delegate Armistead L. Boothe. The bill provides that when objectors to a re-zoning comprise owners of 20 per cent of the property within 500 feet of the land involved a three-fourth's vote of the Council is necessary to rezone.

Watchmen Barred From Worker Unions

The National Labor Relations Board unanimously decreed yesterday that watchmen—uniformed, armed, deputized or not—cannot be represented by the same union as rank-and-file workers under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The decision on watchmen grew out of a case involving four groups: the United Automobile Workers, a CIO affiliate; the International Association of Machinists, an indeendent union; an independent plant union, and C. V. Hill & Co., Inc., a Trenton firm.

Although the employer agreed with the three unions to include its watchmen in a bargaining unit of production and maintenance workers, the five-man board held that the new law "leaves no choice but to exclude them."

$1,000,000 Loan Will Link Water System of Town With District's Falls Church residents last night voted 8 to 1 for a million-dollar bond issue which would link their town water system with the District's.

In a voter turn-out described by town officials as "rather small," 223 favored the bond issue and 28 opposed it.

The election result now must be certified by the Town Council in its meeting Monday, before the bonds may be issued.

Yesterday marked the second time the proposed water supply system has been favored at the polls. On January 27, resident landowners voted for the proposal by a 6-to-1 margin.

The water system expansion has been urged by town officials because of Falls Church's rapid growth which has created a critical water shortage. Plans call for linking the town's water system with the District of Columbia system at Chain Bridge.

Red Cross Needs Drivers

An appeal for volunteer daytime drivers and nurses' aides was issued yesterday by the District Red Cross.

Drivers are needed, it was said, to make blood deliveries to local hospitals and for transportation of blood donors. Drivers are required to have a District driver's license and two years' experience.

A new class for nurses' aides will begin Tuesday, February 24, at Emergency Hospital.

Wooden Leg a Weapon

An Arlington man was held without bond in Alexandria yesterday, charged with settling an argument by hitting a man over the head with his wooden leg.

He is Stellie Boston, 48, who lives at the Blue Ridge Coal Yard in Arlington. The man he allegedly hit is Olin C. Singleton, who lives at the Mutual Ice Co. bunk house, 900 block Henry st., Alexandria.

Singleton told police that in the heat of an argument at the ice house Monday night, Boston unpegged his leg and used it as a club. At Alexandria Hospital, Singleton was reported in "fair" condition with 23 stitches in his head.

More Police at Crossings

The year's hottest day yesterday brought a police order for reinforcements at school crossings and traffic intersections, particularly when streets are slippery with snow and ice.

Inspector Floyd A. Truscott, acting executive officer of the Police Department, issued an order to all precincts which will call even corporals and sergeants to traffic directing duty if the occasion warrants.

A recent survey showed at least 56 intersections listed as everyday "musts." Additional ones will be determined by weather conditions.

Cleared in Assault

Newton P. Weathersby, labor union official, yesterday won his plea of self defense on a charge he had assaulted his wife, Mrs. Ruby Weathersby, in their apartment at 1101 West Virginia ave. last December 28.

Mrs. Weathersby told a Municipal Court jury which heard the case that her husband had knocked her down during an argument over allowing her friends to come to the apartment. She denied, however, that she had thrown a can opener or a shoe at her husband.

Trickster Convicted

Alfred A. Coleman, 19, of 1231 Delaware ave. sw., was found guilty yesterday of petty larceny in the trick sale of a radio January 9.

After a Municipal Court jury returned the verdict, Judge George D. Nielson imposed a sentence of $100 fine or 90 days. According to police, Coleman entered the store of Morris Margolis, 717 4th st. sw., picked up a radio on the counter and offered to sell it to the owner's wife, Mrs. Jennie Margolis. Mrs. Margolis paid him $7 for her husband's radio.

Area News in Brief

Youth Lands Job, $100 Fine to Start

P. S. Simpson, a filling station operator who had 150 chances to pick an honest man for a helper, guessed wrong, he complained to Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson yesterday.

His accusing finger pointed out William E. Stanton, 18, of West Warwick, R. I., who was held on $1000 bond for the grand jury on charges of housebreaking and unauthorized use of an automobile.

Simpson, operator of a station at 48 Massachusetts ave. nw., had an estimated 150 responses to his advertisement for a helper. Stanton got the job, the keys and orders to open up Monday morning.

Instead, Simpson complained, the boy entered the station Sunday night, took $5 and a used car from the lot. A police scout car stopped him after noticing a loose license tag, then learned he had no driver's permit—and the rest of the story.

Stanton was given a $100 fine or 90 days in jail for having no permit.

$500 Collateral Forfeited

A former Montgomery County government employe, arrested in the Silver Spring County Building and charged with gaming and possession of numbers slips, yesterday forfeited $500 collateral on the charge in Silver Spring police court.

Police identified the man as Clyde E. Dodson, 37, of 8504 Dixon st., Silver Spring.

Detectives said they arrested Dodson only a few feet from the Silver Spring police substation while in the act of accepting money for numbers bets.

U. S. Not Drilling for Oil

The Government is not prospecting for oil on that block-long parking lot at 3d st. and Constitution ave. nw., despite those derricks you have been noticing.

The Public Buildings Administration has begun a series of 25 test borings in the area preliminary to completion of foundation plans for the new Federal Courts Building for Washington.

Elephant Loses Tooth

Usually reliable sources yesterday revealed that Jumbina—"sweetest African lady elephant in the land"—lost a molar at the Zoo.

Same was confirmed by Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo director, who offered elephant-lovers this comforting assurance: "Jumbina is suffering no pain. In fact, she probably doesn't even know she lost it." It is a 2-inch crown of a molar.

Mud Hampers Firemen

Fire, which gave firemen less trouble than the mud they had to wade, caused an estimated $3000 damage to a warehouse of the United Waste Paper Co., 3d and Hamilton sts. ne., yesterday morning.

Firemen, responding to the two-alarm blaze, had to lay hose lines several blocks and wade deep mud to reach the one-story building.

Tax Charge Holds Man

Elbe C. Bettis, 37, of 1323 Hamlin st. ne., was indicted by the Federal grand jury yesterday in Baltimore for income tax evasion totaling about $23,000.

He was indicted for evading taxes in 1941, 1942 and 1943. The indictment said he paid $7700 in 1941, $17 in 1942 and $6900 in 1943. Bettis is married and has one child.

Home Is Best, Rural Youth Forum Told

Rural youth should never hear the oft-repeated statement: "He could have done so much better for himself elsewhere."

So counseled Mr. and Mrs. Jess Ogden, co-directors of the University of Virginia's Extension Division, yesterday at the YWCA here.

Speaking at the mid-winter luncheon forum of the Alliance for Rural Youth Guidance, Mrs. Ogden described the programs she and her husband have undertaken in Virginia during the past seven years.

Success of such youth guidance programs, she said, hinges largely on development of a sense of self-importance in rural youth.

Too often, she said, high school graduates are driven away from their farm communities by a sense of inferiority because they live in rural areas.

Rural youth must be made to feel the importance of rural living, she said, and it is up to guidance directors to "lend dignity to farm life" so that its young men and women will have a desire to remain in their own communities.

She stressed the importance of allowing youth itself to participate in community planning and to feel itself as an integral part of the community's "total living."

Ogden, who conducted a question-and-answer forum after his wife spoke, stressed the importance of a careful analysis of community resources, to be made along with any survey of community needs. The two, he said, must go hand in hand to assure development of successful guidance programs.

Unemployed Man Found Hanged

Shortly after he walked into his sister's home with a cheery "good morning," Thaddeus Ford, 47, of 660 24th st. ne., was found hanged in the basement—a light cord from a Christmas tree knotted about his neck.

The sister, Mrs. Juliene Suggs, of 2529 11th st. nw., said he had been despondent during the last four months because of unemployment.

Ford had and estranged wife living in New York and a 17-year-old daughter, Mrs. Suggs said.

Unique Naval Vessel Has a Woman Aboard

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17 (AP).—Bluejackets on the Reina Mercedes must mind their manners. There's a lady aboard.

She's Mrs. Wallis F. Petersen, whose husband commands the old Spanish cruiser used as the Naval Academy station ship.

She claims to be the only woman living on a commissioned United States Navy vessel.

Captain Petersen is commanding officer of the United States Naval Station here and as such is skipper of the Reina. By custom he and his family live aboard.

K St. Elevated Highway 18 Pct. Completed; Project to Relieve M St. Traffic Congestion

The Washington Post

PHOTODIAGRAM—Broken lines over construction work at the K st. overpass indicate how cloverleaf on north side of Key Bridge will take shape soon

Construction work on the $3,294,390 K St. Elevated Highway project has advanced to roughly 18 per cent of completion. The estimate was made yesterday by Carl A. Wilson project engineer for the District Government.

The highway will bypass Georgetown, and carry traffic at an upper level over the waterfront industrial section on K st. It is expected to give residents of northwest Washington in Georgetown and beyond, and parts of Maryland and Virginia, an expressway to the heart of the town.

At present, bus and vehicular traffic from Canal rd. and Key Bridge jam up along Georgetown's congested M st.

Passes Under Key Bridge

The elevated will begin at the existing grade separation at Rock Creek-Potomac pkwy. and K st., extend westward, passing underneath Key Bridge and looping onto the bridge and Canal rd. and M st. at street level.

Farthest advanced and most noticeable section of the project, which was begun last July and is scheduled for completion by the end of this year, is directly west of Key Bridge.

There, much of the foundation and supporting structure have been completed for the arteries which will reduce the Key Bridge-M st. nw. bottleneck.

Abutments for a bridge which will span the three-highway access lanes west of the bridge are in place and await good weather for construction of the top. This span will be used by pedestrians from M st. to cross the traffic and reach the river boathouses by way of a stairway leading from the bridge structure.

Piles to be Used

Some 155 piers will support the elevated section of the K st. highway, between Key Bridge and Rock Creek Parkway, and concrete foundation footings for about half of these are ready for construction of the steel work.

Piles will be used in the foundations for the piers between 31st st. and the Parkway, and these are being driven now on either side of the Parkway. There the existing K st. bridge will be widened to accommodate the four-lane highway.

Up to 100 workers have carried the work on the project thus far, engineers said, but this force is expected to be increased when spring weather allows faster construction.

Move to Delay CTC Hearing On Rates Fails

Baltimore, Reb. 17 (AP).—The charge was made and denied today that the Capital Transit Co. of Washington interfered between some of its Prince Georges County customers and their lawyer.

Gregory Hankin, attorney for Prince Georges residents, made the accusation in an unsuccessful attempt to postpone the company's rate hearing before the Public Service Commission.

The company is seeking a uniform rate of 5 cents for each mile and a half of riding. It has estimated the increase would amount to $450,000 a year in Maryland but still would not be enough to produce a profit on operations.

Hankin, asking a continuance, charged that the company had been active in a policy of "destroying relationship between attorney and client." He said accusations had been made against him which he considered false.

Louis Awalt, company counsel, said Hankin's charges were "utterly false."

Hankin said his clients had started to makea survey of operations but bad weather had delayed them.

The survey seeks to determine if buses might be substituted between Prince Georges and Washington. A questionnaire also will ask what the people think of the present service.

Chairman Charles Bosley said the hearing could go on, and the survey could be filed when completed.

Hankin contended that because Nos. 82 and 84 streetcar lines operated more in the District than in Maryland, the company was unfairly charging centain maintenance costs. J. E. Heberle, transit vice president, testified any other method would be unfair to Maryland patrons.

Virginia Youth Hurt Inflating Tire

D. C. Court Seeks To Merge Bridge Accident Claims

Associate Justice James W. Morris, District Court, will confer Saturday with attorneys on plans to consolidate damage claims growing out of the Memorial bridge autobus collision August 2, 1947.

A total of 22 suits are pending as a result of the accident in which a Virginia and Maryland Coach Co., bus collided with an auto and then plunged from the bridge to the roadway below.

At the conference Saturday, efforts will be made to arrange, by stipulation, a trial to fix liability and another trial in which one injury will deliberate on the individual claims.

John Power To Be Buried In Arlington

Military services will be held Friday at 3 p. m. at Arlington National Cemetery for John S. Power, 30, former Washington resident and government employe, killed in the crash January 6 of an Air France DC-4 airliner at Le Bourget Airport, France.

At the time of his death he had been serving with the economics division of the American Government of Germany in Berlin.

Mr. Power received his B.S. degree in February, 1939, from New College, Columbia University, and an M.S. degree in June, 1939, from Teachers College, Columbia University.

He was a camp educational advisor in the Civilian Conservation Corps from 1940 to 1942 and was junior administrative assistant and then associate special agent here with the Office of Education's war production training program, until he entered the Army as an aviation cadet, in March, 1943.

From 1943 to 1946 he served here as administrative analyst in the office of procedures of the Civilian Production Administration and the War Production Board, then left for Germany with the American Military Government of Germany.

Mr. Power was the son of Leonard Power, of Scarsdale, N. Y., prominent educational consultant, and Mrs. Power. Also surviving are his wife, Katheryn Power, and two sons, Brian and Mark, now in Berlin.

Dr. Edward L. W. Ferry

Tappahannock, Va., Feb. 17 (AP). Dr. Edward L. W. Ferry, 74, physician of nearby Millers Tavern, Essex County, died today of a heart attack after six weeks' illness of pneumonia.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bessie Broaddus Ferry; three sons, Edward W. and John R. Ferry of Essex County, and A. Peston Ferry of Richmond; two sisters, Mrs. Ella Cashiel, Rockville, Md., and Mrs. Mary F. Lewis, Texarkana, Ark.

Rep. Robsion Dies in Sleep In Kentucky

Barbourville, Ky., Feb. 17 (AP).—Representative John Marshall Robsion, veteran Republican legislator from Kentucky's Ninth District, died in his sleep at 6:30 o'clock here tonight. He was 70 years old.

Dr. T. R. Davis attributed Robsion's death to a heart attack.

Mr. Robsion had eaten dinner at the home of John Pickard, circuit court clerk, after which he lay down for a nap. His body was found by Pickard.

The legislator had suffered a cold since coming from Washington to attend a Lincoln Day dinner in Louisville, but he had not been seriously sick.

Mrs. Robsion received news of his death while at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Henry Gordon Edmonds, 1500 Delafield pl. nw. They left for Barbourville at 11 p. m. last night by train. A son, Maj. John M. Robsion, jr., of Louisville, Ky., was en route from Miami, Fla., to his father's home.

Born on a Knox County farm, Representative Robsion spent more than 26 years oin Capitol Hill. He served 13 years in the House and, on appointment, completed the senatorial term of former Senator Frederic M. Sackett, who resigned in 1930.

He went to the Sixty-sixth Congress in 1919 and served through the Seventieth. His resignation to go into the Senate broke up the succession, but in 1935 he returned to the House, breaking up the solidly Democratic delegation.

His relection to the Eightieth Congress was without opposition, but he received 60,000 complimentary ballots.

Mr. Robsion received his law degree from Centre College, Danville, Ky., and went into law practice in Barbourville in 1898. At one time he taught at Union College in Barbourville.

He was a member of the Christian Disciples Church, the Masons, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias.

On Capitol Hill he was a member of the Committee on Committees and the Judiciary Committee.

In addition to the wife, son and daughter, he is survived by a grandson, Henry G. Edmonds, jr.

Opens Conference Commemorating Seneca Falls Convention

Truman Calls on Women to Fight Higher Costs

Schwellenbach Urges Support Of 'Equal Pay for Equal Work' Bill

By Genevieve Reynolds

PRESIDENT TRUMAN yesterday urged the women of the Nation to use their power as consumers to battle the high cost of living.

The Chief Executive issued his call to action before representatives of some 30 women's organizations assembled at a conference sponsored by the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. The conference is commemorating the 100th anniversary of the Seneca Falls Convention of 1848, which initiated the movement for equal rights for women. The three-day conclave, which opened early yesterday morning, will continue through tomorrow in the Inter-Departmental Auditorium.

"Women's organizations have at hand a ready weapon which they have not yet used to its full capacity—the power of the consumer," declared Mr. Truman. "It has been said over and over again that women control the bulk of the Nation's wealth. They certainly channel its day-to-day spending for food, for clothing, for education, for all the things that make for better living. This is a weapon which you can use together to combat one of the enemies that now threaten us—the high cost of living."

Then the President placed upon the shoulders of women the responsibility to continue the fight for peace and a higher standard of living, enlisting their aid specifically in the war against disease, fear, hunger and poverty "to which as yet we can see no end." Even in the United States, where the standard of living is higher than anywhere else in the world, much remains to be done, he remarked, adding, "I think you're having some effect on this struggle right now."

The President told the feminine representatives: "It is your special responsibility to carry on this fight; to persuade the men to support you, so that the United States can push on toward the goal of a better life for all our people."

Mr. Truman praised the "gentler sex" for its successes in women's suffrage, social education, greater economic opportunities for women, opening up of higher education for women, the successful battle for civil and political rights. But he reminded his audience that civil and political rights for a large part of our population have yet to be obtained.

Referring to the unfinished tasks confronting women, the President mentioned specifically "equal pay for equal work" and the abolition of such discriminations against women as the right to serve on juries. The "Equal Pay for Comparable Equal Work by Women" bill is now pending in Congress. With that probably in mind, the President asserted, "It is within your strength to accomplish these things, but only if you persist in demanding action."

Mr. Truman said that he was proud that under his administration women are serving in influential positions in international affairs, citing Dean C. Mildred Thompson of Vassar, twice delegate to UNESCO; Miss Dorothy Kenyon, United States member on the United Nations Commission of the Status of Women; Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights.

The Chief Executive signaled out Mrs. Roosevelt for special praise, declaring, "She's doing a wonderful job. She's made a wonderful contribution to the welfare of the Nation since the President died." Then he added thoughtfully, "He (President Roosevelt) is the only one I ever think of as President."

Harris & Ewing

President Truman (center) exchanged pleasantries with Secretary of Labor L. B. Schwellenbach (left) and Miss Frieda Miller, chief of the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor. Occasion was the opening of a conference, sponsored by the Women's Bureau, on "The American Woman's Changing Role as Homemaker, Worker and Citizen" at which the Chief Executive and the Secretary of Labor gave the principal addresses yesterday

Supports Equal Pay Bill

Secretary of Labor L. B. Schwellenbach urged the group to fight for the "equal pay bill for women," now pending in Congress, tracing the achievements of women from 1848 to the present, he remarked, "Don't talk too much about the Seneca Falls Convention. The year 1948 is not one for looking backward. Problems today are of greater scope and require women's fullest and best leadership."

Schwellenbach then called upon conclave delegates to make the conference a declaration of purpose—to continue to expand our domestic economy, to continue to have prosperity. "If we keep prosperity and expand our domestic economy," he explained, "I think we will have peace and comfort."

Commenting on the destruction and uselessness of imperialistic wars, the Secretary of Labor averred, "Under modern condjtions we don't win wars. Now the winner simply has to take care of the conquered."

Dr. Mildred Thompson, dean of Vassar College, principal speaker at last night's session, deplored the fact that so few women were outstanding in the writing, scientific, law and educational fields. "Of course we all know there is no real education in this country," she said. "Universities, coeducational in name, are almost completely taught by men."

Dean Thompson said that she didn't take much stock in this battle of the sexes nor did she attribute the men with preventing women from attaining greater achievements in the arts or music. However, she warned against the increasing pressure of a recent movement to make the curriculum for women students essentially different from that offered to men.

Miss Frieda S. Miller, director Women's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, opened the conference with a resume of women's attainments in the labor field. She pointed out that about 17 million women now hold jobs, and that she had been wrong in her predictions that women would be ousted from employment after the war.

First Lady to Be Honorary Member

Mrs. Harry Truman will be made honorary member of the Young Women's Christian Association this afternoon. Mrs. Howard G. Nichols, president of the Washington YWCA, and Miss Mabel R. Cook, executive director, will confer the membership.

Mrs. Truman is the second First Lady to be a member of the "Y." Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, for many years an active member in the organization, laid the cornerstone in 1925 of the headquarters at 17th and K sts. nw. She also officiated at the opening of the building in 1927.

Building Returned to Austria

Real Estate Snarl Unwinds In the Path of Embassies; Rio Beauty Will Be Bride

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THE CAPITAL'S most complicated real estate snarl is practically untangled. Within a month or so the Danish Ambassador and Mme. Henrik de Kauffmann will move from the Massachusetts Avenue Embassy into a delightful house on Woodley Road which has been purchased from the Hugh Wilsons. By June, when renovations have been completed, the Austrian Minister, Dr. Kleinwaechter, and his staff will be ensconced in the residence which the Austrian government built back in 1924 at a cost of $160,000.

Since 1938 when Hitler's Anschluss gobbled Austria, the building has been tossed about, figuratively, like a leaf in a stiff breeze. The Nazis took it over immediately, as they did all Austrian assets, then rented it to Mr. de Kauffmann with an option to buy either personally or in his official capacity as Ambassador.

In March, 1940, when the Nazis took over Denmark, Henrik de Kauffmann headed the Free Denmark movement in this country and consequently was refused recognition as Ambassador. But he remained in the building, paid rent to the Germans through a real estate agent. By September, 1941, when he exercised the right of option the Germans, whose assets had by then been blocked by our Government, refused to take the money. So Mr. de Kauffmann deposited the German-asked purchase price with a real estate firm. When the Austrians re-established their legation in postwar Washington, they commenced pourparlers to get back their building, finally came to an amicable agreement. The Danes get back the $80,000 escrowed with the real estate firm, and the rent owed during intervening years will be settled against Austrian debts to Denmark.

'Baby' Guinle to Marry

AN ENGAGEMENT soon to be announced which will interest Washington's Latin-American colony is that of "Baby" Guinle and Kenneth Pendar. Baby, an outstanding beauty of prewar Paris, hails from Buenos Aires and is a sister of Llambe Campbell. She was married to Ottavio Guinle, son of an English immigrant, who piled up one of Brazil's most fabulous fortunes. Part of the Guinle millions come from a concession owned on the Port of Santos, from which much of Brazil's coffee is shipped. On the side, Ottavio and his brothers own most of Rio de Janeiro's posh hotels, the Copacabana, Palace, Gloria.

When Baby was still Senhora Guinle they gave wonderful parties on a tiny island called Brocoio which floated conveniently in Rio's beautiful bay. The islet was complete with a luxurious playhouse, parrots and such skipped through the trees which, in appropriate seasons, were garlanded with orchids.

Some time after the Guinles' divorce Brocoio was sold to the Brazilian government and is used as a sort of Blair House, to put up distinguished official guests. Ken Pendar, who hails from Nebraska but migrated to New York, Boston, Paris and Casablanca, spent part of the war in our North African consulate service. He penned an interesting book called "Adventure in Diplomacy" in which he took a dim view of De Gaulle. Right now he is technically at home in Casablanca where, plus surrounding territory, he directs a handsomely profitable soft drink concession. Ken, incidentally, is a brother of Washington's Mrs. Jean LaTouche, and Ottavio Guinle is happily remarried to Maria Perdeneiras, a beautiful widow.

Can You Share a Shawl?

HAVE YOU HEARD of the "Share-a-Shawl" scheme? It is a wonderful idea brainwaved by Massachusetts' Mrs. Frances Crane, projected right here by smart Mrs. Arthur Krock. It all came about when Mrs. Crane traveled through Great Britain with the Dowager Marchioness of Reading, head of the Women's Voluntary Services. They visited out-of-the-way spots and what impressed, or rather depressed Mrs. Crane most, was the penetrating cold in many almost heatless homes. What finally broke her heart were two old spinsters who had braved bombings, other war privations and were struggling equally bravely with postwar privations. When Mrs. Crane visited their icy cottage they were in ecstasies over a food package they had just received—and were heating the bouillon cubes it contained over a candle!

Then and there Mrs. Crane decided what Britain's old ladies needed were nice woolly shawls which would not only prevent millions of shivers but prove an invaluable morale booster.

She started the ball rolling, to coin a cliche, in New Bedford and now it has spread to Washington. To join the "Share-a-Shawl" movement just sashay down to the American Women's Voluntary Services at 1800 Connecticut ave. For $3 they will provide you with instructions, needles, gaily colored wool (the AWVS considers dark colors depressing) and when you have knit the shawl, they will pack, ship it to some old lady in the British Isles with your card enclosed. The work is so simple even a needle amateur can whip up a shawl in remarkably short time. If you can't knit there is nothing to prevent sending along $3. The AWVS knows lots of women who love to knit but can't spare the cash.

Mrs. Saltzman Is Married to Matthew Jones

Mrs. Gertrude Lamont Saltzman, daughter of Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont and the late Mr. Lamont, Secretary of Commerce in the Hoover Administration, was quietly married yesterday to Matthew Jones, the ceremony taking place at 2 o'clock in the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, with the Rev. John W. Rustin officiating.

The bride wore a navy blue taffeta dressmaker suit with a small hat to match and a single white orchid corsage.

William McChesney Martin, president of the Export-Import Bank, and Mrs. Martin and Mrs. David Anram were present at the ceremony. Mrs. Lamont, mother of the bride, of Falls Church, Va., was unable to be present owing to illness.

Mrs. Jones is the former wife of Charles Eskridge Saltzman, Assistant Secretary of State. She made her debut to Washington society when her father was in the Cabinet. During the war she was in the Signal Corps personnel in the Office of the Chief of Staff. She has one son, Charles McKinley Saltzman, named for his grandfather, the late General Saltzman.

Mr. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Jones of Woodstock, N. Y. He returned recently from Korea where he was director of communications in the southern zone. He expects to leave shortly on a assignment to Greece.

Sangers Have Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Sanger are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Anne Cary Sanger, born January 30 at Columbia Hospital. Anne is a family name, and Cary comes down from the baby's grandmother, Col. William Cary Sanger, who was Assistant Secretary of War under Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gewirz have left for Boca Raton, Fla., where they will spend several weeks.

Mrs. Helen Silverstein of Charleston, W. Va., is here for an extended visit with her brother, Dr. Melville Fischer.

Pianist Gyorgy Sandor, Miss Hebbard Honored

By Marie McNair

SLENDER esthetic looking Gyorgy Sandor, who will play this evening at Constitution Hall, shared honors with Miss Verbena Hebbard, a lively visitor from Los Angeles, at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon given by Mrs. Martin Vogel and her newhew and niece, Gen. and Mrs. Clayton Adams.

"I think everybody in Washington is here," remarked a guest as she looked about the spacious rooms, all filled, with groups sitting on the stairs and in the wide hall.

It was here that Mrs. Vogel and the honor guests stood, Mrs. Vogel in a long black gown brightened with a sequin pattern. Mrs. Hebbard's gown was of delicate black lace and Mrs. Adams looked like a lovely Gibson girl in a full skirted black taffeta frock with a yoke effect fashioned of bands of blue velvet.

But General and Mrs. Adams couldn't be anchored in the receiving line, preferring to get about and see their friends. Miss Fay Lewisohn, Mrs. Vogel's other niece, was there, too, in a Dior ballerina frock of black taffeta with inserts of narrow black net.

Spring flowers blossomed on hats and furs were shed at the door.

There was Mrs. Anthony McAuliffe, with her husband, the General, with a mass of white flowers on her red-gold hair. And the Secretary of the Interior, Julius Krug, with Mrs. Krug in a new bonnet which had a circle of field flowers around the brim. Tall, handsome Mrs. P. W. B. Brooking, wife of the Admiral, who's been here with the British Admiralty Delegation, wore an all-white hat with her dark suit. One of a group with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Witt, she told them she and her husband are to leave soon for a new station at Gibraltar.

Visitors From Out-of-Town

Visitors from out-of-town enjoying a typical Washington party were Mr. and Mrs. U. A. Sanabria—he's president of the American Television Co. of Chicago—and Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Robinson of New York and Newport. Both ladies wore the ever-chic black, Mrs. Sanabria pinning two tiny lace bows in her hair and putting on a bib necklace of pearls as a bright accent. Mrs. Robinson's pearls were in the new longer length and a black sequined calot was effective with her white hair.

Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the Attorney General, was on her way out as I came in. I caught a glimpse of the Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, and if Mme. Morgenstierne was there she was swallowed up in the throng.

Saw Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt calling greetings over a sea of heads; Mrs. Parker West, looking ever so pretty in a pale felt hat trimmed with perky bows of Roman striped ribbons.

The South African Minister and Mrs. Harry Andrews were there and Representative and Mrs. Jay LeFevre, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Biffle and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Acheson, who were dressed for a dinner party.

Old Friends Meet

Capt. John P. Jackson found a chair in the corner, let Mrs. Jackson do the circulating for the family. Mrs. Eldridge Jordan slipped through the throng in her usual quiet way, and Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel enjoyed finding many old friends like the Edgar Prochniks and Mr. and Mrs. Royce Powell.

Saw Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. Russell Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris and Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould and Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Van H. Enzert.

Mrs. Walter Curley of Pittsburgh and Mrs. Hale Shenefield of Washington, discovered they had met before. Ralph Forster, Edward Van Devanter and Don Baruch were among the bachelors, and still others there were Mrs. John Steelman, pretty in black with a lace trimmed black hat; Miss Madeleine Austin, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Claude Beddington, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Dyer and Miss Mary Howry. Two enormous cabbage roses in a bright pink fashioned Mme. Rybar's hat; Mme. Chautemps wore a flared brim hat of white satin veiled in gossamer black lace.

Then there was Signora Tarchiani, wife of the Italian Ambassador; the Luxembourg Minister and Mme. LeGallais, Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Mrs. Burks Summers, Miss Bertha Joseph, Mrs. Emil Hurje, Mrs. William H. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Constanine de Stackelberg and Mrs. William Disque who had been so busy with her new house she hasn't had time for fun.

Miss Cajigas Is Entertained

BRIDE-ELECT Anita Cajigas was honored at a luncheon yesterday at Columbia Country Club, and later at tea at the home of Mrs. Lorton Sims. The luncheon was given by Mrs. Barge Llewellyn Harts and her two daughters, Mrs. Harry Frederick Duncan and Mrs. Walter Edward Gallagher.

White flowers—snapdragons, sweet peas and carnations—centered the luncheon tables, and a tiered white ice cream cake, topped with miniature bride and bridegroom, was served for dessert.

At the tea given by Mrs. Sims, Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, was among the ladies who poured. Others were Mrs. Kenneth Royall, Mrs. Edward Bartlet, Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, Mrs. Chark H. Woodward, Mrs. Gordon Russell Young, Mrs. John Davies, Mrs. August Boaz, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Paul Hammacher, Senora Felipe Munilla and Miss Emma Perley Lincoln.

Mrs. Austin, Daughter Give Luncheon

SPRING flowers bloomed yesterday at the luncheon party given by Mrs. T. Septimus Austin and her daughter, Miss Madeleine Austin. Cocktails were served first in the apartment of the hostesses at the Wardman Park Hotel, and luncheon followed in the Madison Room.

The ranking guest was Senora de Ivanissevich, wife of the Argentine Ambassador. Others at the fete were Mrs. John R. Steelman, Mrs. Carl R. Gray, jr., Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Lady Crow, Mrs. William H. Watson, jr., Mrs. Bishop Norment, Mrs. Emile Hurja, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould and Mrs. Maurice Mathenet.

Reception Honors Haitian Ambassador

THE AMBASSADOR of Haiti, Joseph D. Charles, and the Liberian Minister and Mrs. Charles D. B. King, were honored at a reception Sunday evening by members of the National Council of Negro Women. Among the 500 or more guests were State Department officials and top representatives of foreign missions.

Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the council, received in a gown of black lace over flesh-colored chiffon trimmed with black and shell pink sequins. Mrs. King wore a black gown trimmed with lace.

Engagement Rumor Again Denied

Margaret Truman, 24, Feted at Birthday Party

MISS MARGARET TRUMAN celebrated her twenty-fourth birthday yesterday at a luncheon in her honor given by Mrs. Peter Rathvon of California, wife of the president of RKO motion pictures.

The occasion was a renewal of friendships made last summer when the President's daughter sang at the Hollywood Bowl and Mrs. Rathvon was a member of the hospitality committee for the event.

Guests yesterday gathered first in Mrs. Rathvon's suite at the Mayflower where Mrs. Rathvon pinned a white orchid on Margaret Truman's shoulder. Luncheon was served in the Mayflower Lounge.

Miss Jeanette MacDonald, whom Miss Truman had met in Hollywood, was a guest, and others in the company were Mrs. Eric Johnston, wife of the president of the Motion Picture Association of America; Mrs. Carleton Palmer and Mrs. Frank Eaton of New York; Mrs. George Mesta, Mrs. Samuel Scrivener, jr., Mrs. Oliver Echols, wife of Major General Echols; Mrs. George Tyson of Boston and Newport, and Mrs. Verbena Hebbard of Los Angeles. Pink and white flowers adorned the table and as the orchestra played "Happy Birthday," a pink and white birthday cake was brought in.

The White House is still denying reports that Margaret is engaged to be married. Newest of the Walter Winchell rumors link Miss Truman's name with that of Marvin Coles, a former staff member of a congressional committee who is now in private law practice here.

Said Charles Ross, presidential secretary yesterday: "Margaret is not engaged to be married; that goes for all and sundry and covers all rumors."

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

After the speechmaking ended, the two orators got together with the president of the organization at the Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters' seventh annual school yesterday on "The People's Responsibility for Peace." In the jovial huddle are (left to right) Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright, member of UNESCO Commission and executive secretary of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations; Dr. Harold D. Lasswell, professor of law at Yale University, and Mrs. John F. Thomas, local league president. Approximately 1000 people attended the all-day school at the Statler Hotel

Offensive for Peace Needed, Speaker Tells League Members

An effective peace program for the United States calls for a two-point program—use of resources for defense purposes and a policy of psychological offense. So declared Harold D. Lasswell, professor of law at the Yale Law School, in an analysis of the requirements of peace before some 1000 women gathered for the Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters' all-day school yesterday, featuring "The People's Responsibility for Peace."

The speaker said that our defense calls for weapon supremacy, until joint action with Russia brings about effective mutual control and reduction of arms, plus military, economic and diplomatic support of every country that is exposed to the threat of Russian aggression. "By this program we prevent the pushing of hostile bases of operation nearer to our boundary lines," he said.

"American policy today," Lasswell said, "is so deficient in the psychological offensive that our military gadgets, our dollars, and our diplomatic maneuvers may go down the drain."

Dr. Lasswell pointed out that Russian rulers propagate a view of the future that is dangerous to peace that we now enjoy and to the future attainment of a more perfect peace. "Our leaders have been singularly timid about blasting the Russian line," he asserted.

Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright, member of UNESCO Commission and executive secretary of the Chicago Council on Foreign Affairs, called upon the audience and especially league members to work for the European Recovery Program, UNESCO, the United Nations and the Displaced Persons plus a change in the immigration laws.

At the morning session, assessments of the effort toward peace were made in a panel discussion by Dean Rusk, director, Office of Special Political Affairs, Department of State; James B. Reston, diplomatic correspondent, New York Times, and Ferdinand Kuhn, foreign affairs reporter of The Washington Post.

Mrs. John F. Thomas, local league president, opened the school with greetings and Mrs. Howard K. Hyde, chairman of the league's committee on international relations, presided.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Victim of Nightmares, Fear of Darkness, Since Childhood, Girl's Nocturnal Panic Is Worse This Year, Since Getting Engaged

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am engaged to be married next month. Until a year ago I had been normal in every way, I believe, except for my extreme fear of the dark and bad nightmares. But now I am becoming a person that even I don't like.

I am very much in love with my fiance, but because of the way I have become he has suggested that we go out with other people for a while, to be sure that we want to spend the rest of our lives with each other.

I have always been terribly frightened of the dark. If my mother doesn't leave a light on all night, right outside my door so that my room is very light, I get very upset and can't sleep. If I wake and the light isn't on I am so terrified that I can't speak or call out for a few minutes. Also I am frightened if my closet door is open.

The last year I have begun having nightmares three times a week on the average. I scream out in my sleep, sometimes call for my mother, waken the family and upset them, but can't remember what I've dreamed; that is, until the last few weeks, when I've had one dream over and over.

Mother, Fiance, Merge in Dreams

IN THIS dream my fiance and I are talking and suddenly he fades and becomes my mother. Once mother wakened me when she thought I was having a nightmare; and though I think I was fully awake I saw her as my fiance and called her by his name. Then as I talked he blurred and faded and became my mother.

While I am very close to my mother and love her very much, I don't think I have any mother-complex. She is a very wise and fair person and shows no partiality between her children. She can think of nothing in my childhood to explain my fears and nightmares, unless a feeling of insecurity caused by my parents being divorced. I have lived with my mother and stepfather since I was about six years old.

Although I had begun to love my fiance's mother and to like his sister very much, I have grown very jealous of the... since something happened to make me feel that they had been just pretending to love me. I know they don't want him to marry me now, and I can't feel the same towards them as before.

Now I draw into myself and am coldly critical of them, I suppose as a way of fighting back, and my fiance is much disturbed that I can be like this. When he stands up for them or tells me I am being nasty, I just get worse. I am so upset constantly that I think I am going crazy. Is there something wrong with me; or any hope of help? I want to change but don't know how. L. G.

Parental Rift Left Its Mark

DEAR L. G.: Doubtless you've heard of children's being afraid of bogeymen. Well, a child's hysterical fear of darkness means he is beset by bogeyman-terror; which is to say, he is the victim of deep-down dread that something terrible—he knows not what—threatens him or those he loves, on whose welfare his safety depends.

Light, daylight or night-light, somewhat eases this fear, so in effect his night-cry is, "Light up the darkness, take it away, then I can see I have nothing to fear." No beast or ruffian standing by, or coming out of the closet, that is.

Why do children have these terrors? Because they have sensed trouble afoot in family relationship, usually discord between parents, which destroys their peace of mind and alerts their instincts to be on guard, sleeping and waking against some nameless threat they feel in the atmosphere.

In your case it is logical to infer that the damage to your peace of mind was done long before your parents parted, and that during the period of discord when divorce was bred, your frightened allegiance fixed on the mother, against the father, in terms of dread and distrust of him so strongly felt that even yet you are emotionally stymied on the unconscious level by that choice—a transfixed preference for the mother, against the male.

Record Points To Sex-Anxiety

AS I SAY, this is strictly on the unconscious level, from whence issue those anxiety-dreams in which your fiance, whom you love, often fades into the mother-figure (dear and trustworthy); or in which you call out to your mother presumably to save you from the nameless threat—i. e., whatever it was that your father represented to your terrified imagination in earliest years; and which the prospect of your getting married evokes again.

For advice: I am once more obliged to break my one and only New Year resolution, to-wit: Never to refer correspondents to psychiatric or psychoanalytic help hereafter. This I had resolved (1) because so many readers cavil about it and (2) because even the specialists are begging respite, as they are so few in number and the demands on them so disproportionately great and growing.

However, the layman can at most only point in the general direction of your basic difficulties. Deep analytic help is necessary to get at the multiple roots of so much confusion and terror and, by fostering insight and self understanding, bring peace of mind for daily living. M. H.

Dresses:

Continuation of Dior silhouette with tight simple bodice and very full skirts. Instead of padding placed over the shoulder, it now hugs the neckline to give a more definite sloped look which complements the wasp waist and padded hipline.

Another silhouette is a very tightly draped front skirt ending in taffeta puffs at the back.

The Godey prints afford good comparison for the skirt look, as all the interest here is centered below the waist.

Color:

A great deal of navy worn with white in very feminine, nostalgic costumes.

There is much mauve, bronze, cinder gray, sage green, all of quiet muted tones.

The clear colors are yellow, coral and pink.

Fabrics that rustle are seen everywhere. Taffetas are striped, checked and flowered. There are very few crepes and some slipper satin and sheer chiffon.

Fath showed an amazing slack with ballet slipper attached.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Is there anything that I can do to eliminate the squeak in an apparently very old bedspring? A slight touch sets up a din of squeaks, but since I rent a furnished room I do not wish to buy my own springs. A. L. M.

You can do much to reduce and perhaps eliminate the squeaks in the bedsprings by removing the mattress and squirting a few drops of oil at every point where one piece of metal touches another. When oil is applied, work the springs up and down several times to work the oil into the joints. Wipe off excess oil to prevent staining the mattress.

I have a set of wicker furniture with red leather cushions. The cushions have faded. How can I dye them permanently—that is, so the dye will not rub off? H. E. P.

The color can be restored by applying a special leather dye which is on sale at all large leather good stores. When the dye is thoroughly dry, apply several thin coats of liquid wax, polishing well after each application. This will build up a protective coating of wax and do much to keep the dye from rubbing off. If the cushions are artificial leather, they can be refreshed by painting with quick-drying enamel, applied in a thin coat.

I have a maple bedroom suite and a light oak dinette set which I am planning to clean and polish. I would appreciate your instructions as to the best methods. P. T.

Furniture can be washed with mild soap and lukewarm water. Make a light lather with these. Wring a soft cloth out of this lather and go over a small area. Rinse with a cloth wrung out of clear water. Dry with a soft cloth. Repeat, starting within the clean dry area. Polish or wax immediately.

The argument as to which is best, wax or polish, still rages. Polish can be buffed more quickly than a wax finish, but it leaves less wax on the surface and therefore does not offer quite the same protection as wax. On the other hand, wax, which requires more buffing and therefore more time in application, produces a hard protective coating with a lovely glow which guards against light blemishes and scratches and which will resist heat and moisture to some extent. Whichever you choose, follow the directions on the package. An important thing to remember is not to apply wax or polish too often. About three times a year is plenty under normal conditions. Buff frequently in between, using a soft flannel rag and rubbing with the grain of the wood. It's elbow grease that keeps furniture lovely and glowing!

P-TA to Hold School Forum At Manassas

Manassas, Va., Feb. 17 (Special). An open forum on local schools and their administration will be featured at the meeting of the Manassas Parent-Teachers Association Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Osbourn School.

R. Worth Peters, superintendent of schools, will be among participants in the discussion, which will be open to the public. Benjamin Muse, P-TA president, will conduct the meeting.

R. W. A. Dunn, former lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Navy, and a representative of the Canadian Embassy, will be the speaker at a dinner meeting of the Manassas Kiwanis Club Friday at 6:45 p. m. at the Manassas State Vocational School. Canadian-American relations will be the theme of the dinner, arranged under the direction of Program Chairman E. D. Gothwaite.

Appointment of Commonwealth's Attorney Stanley A. Owens as fuel coordinator for Prince William County has been announced by the county's board of supervisors. He will serve as liaison agent between the county and fuel dealers in an effort to assure delivery of oil in emergency cases.

C. F. Joyner is State coordinator of the special fuel administration set up recently by the General Assembly.

Mrs. Robert A. Hutchison of Manassas has been named chairman of the 1948 Children's Home Society drive in Prince William County, with Mrs. Frank D. Cox, also of Manassas, as cochairman. They have headed the campaign here for the past several years.

Reports from headquarters of the society in Richmond show the Prince William County last year contributed $551.54 toward the fund for homeless children in Virginia. An annual appropriation of $250 is provided by the county.

Baltimore Council Gives Expressway Plan Push Ahead

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (AP).—That crosstown expressway idea Baltimoreans have been arguing about for a decade has been given a push by the city council.

With only two dissenting, the council last night passed an ordinance authorizing construction of the first link of a through highway, southwest Baltimore link.

A part of the Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad's right of way will be used if that company's rail passenger service is abandoned.

Several years ago Baltimore voters authorized a 10-million-dollar bond issue for construction of an expressway. City officials said they expect about four million dollars in Federal funds for the project in the next three years.

Prince Georges Leaders Map Red Cross Drive

Prince Georges County Red Cross drive captains and committee chairmen made final plans last night for opening of the county's $19,000 Red Cross fund drive March 1.

George A. Nevin, director of the Red Cross national blood program, told the group, meeting at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, that the national goal of 75 million dollars is needed for three main purposes. These are, he said, continuation of service to the armed forces, the Red Cross disaster service and the expanded Red Cross blood program.

Anne Arundel Accused Of Neglecting Needy Ill

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17 (AP).—Mrs. Katherine Sarver of West Annapolis declared today that some residents of the Anne Arundel County Home are not receiving necessary hospital care.

Mrs. Sarver, who said she represented the Guild of Mercy, was one of three women to ask for attention to sick persons in the home at Edgewater. They appeared before the Board of County Commissioners.

Chairman Weems Duvall said the board would look into the complaints.

Md. Hopes to Catch 40,000 Tax Dodgers

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (AP).—State Comptroller James J. Lacy announced today he has ordered a reorganization of the State Income Tax Division and hopes to catch 40,000 tax dodgers.

He named Walter E. Kennedy to carry out the reorganization. Kennedy had been in charge of the Retail Sales Tax Division since it was set up last spring to administer the State's new sales tax.

Lacy said he is working on estimates that 40,000 persons have wilfully avoided paying their State income tax over a period of years, with the State losing about $2,500,000 in revenue.

Edward F. Engelbert will be acting chief of the Retail Sales Tax Division in Kennedy's absence.

Prince William County Seeks Seed Cleaner

Manassas, Va., Feb. 17 (Spl.).—Efforts to obtain modern seed-cleaning facilities for Prince William County farmers will be launched here by the county's agricultural council. The nearest facilities are now located at Mitchells, some 50 miles away. Cleaning of seed, the council said, would enable local farmers to obtain higher prices.

Library Open on Holiday

The Central Library, 8th and K sts. nw., will be open from 1 to 9 p. m. Monday, February 23, according to Harry N. Peterson, District Librarian. All other agencies will be closed that day in observance of Washington's birthday.

ROY A. WOOD,

Board Rejects Bond Issue for Culpeper School

Culpeper, Va., Feb. 17 (Spl.).—A proposed $700,000 loan for building a consolidated high school here was voted down by the county board of supervisors today, despite appeals by school officials and parent-teacher representatives.

Following a joint meeting with the school board, the supervisors rejected the loan proposal by a 4-1 vote, taken on a motion by Supervisor William Bywaters. Only member to vote favorably was Ira Hopkins, Catalba District.

The loan had been indorsed by the school board, which proposed that the money be obtained through the Virginia Literary Fund, set aside for school construction. After hearing advocates of the measure, the supervisors rejected it without explaining their reasons.

Oysterman's Body Found Lashed to Sunken Boat Mast

Tilghmans, Md., Feb. 17 (AP).—The body of 46-year-old Kenneth Malkin was found lashed to the mast of his sunken oyster-buy-boat in 18 feet of water in Choptank River today after an all night search.

Malkin, employed by the Tilghman Packing Co, left in his 45-foot boat at 4:30 p. m. yesterday.

Apparently Malkin, hoping it would remain above water, climbed to the top and lashed himself to the mast.

Businessmen Name Newman at Woodstock

Woodstock, Va., Feb. 17 (Spl.).—Edgar Newman has been elected president of the Woodstock Chamber of Commerce for 1948. Other officers announced by the board of directors include Wilbur O'Reilly, vice president; George Latham, treasurer, and William Dalke, jr., secretary.

Reporter's Statistical Chickens Come Home to Roost

Back in 1945 a local newspaperman was assigned to do a story which required a great deal of background information from a Government department.

The agency gave him a two-foot stack of material and the newsman spent several days digesting it and boiling it down to one comprehensive table, which told the story at a glance.

The other day our reporter had occasion to go back to the same agency for late information on the same subject. Instead of the usual stack of printed matter, he was handed a single pamphlet.

"This is all you'll need," he was told. "That table tells the whole story."

"I see that it does," replied the journalist as he studied his own handiwork.

"When you use it," continued the Government official, "please be sure to give our department credit for it."

"Give you credit?" echoed the reporter. "This is my own table. I compiled it in 1945."

"Oh—are you the one we got it from? Then maybe we should have given you credit for it."

NEW WORDS DEPT.

Richard B. Tourkin of 530 10th st. sw. wonders about this paragraph from a recent society story:

"In this historic and genial environment once again will be revived the traditional custom of serving Shrovetide tea cakes (an old superstition to bring good luck).

The logical explanation, Dick, is that "superstitution" is a newly coined word meaning "a superstition which has been with us for so long that it's become an institution."

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Bea Lyons of 3205½ E. Capitol st. writes:

"Has James Metcalfe, the man who writes 'Portraits,' ever published a book of his verses? If so, where can I buy a copy?"

Yes, he has published such collections of his verse and you can get a copy by sending 25 cents in coin to the Promotion Department, The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw., Washington, 4, D. C.

SAGE ADVICE FROM POP

Irving M. "Pop" Grey of 17 N. Bedford st., Arlington, Va., says that this column needs more pithy, homespun humor—like this:

Those who borrow
From a friend
Borrow trouble
Without end.

Pop has a good point. Philosophic gems and wisecracks are always welcome, whether in prose or poetry. But let's keep 'em short so that we can use more of them.

BRIGHT NEW WORLD

The filling station attendant stuck his gas hose in my tank, pulled the trigger, and then walked away to clean my windshield.

I could hear the gasoline gushing into my tank and realized that he must have locked the lever in an "on" position before he left.

"Hey," I called apprehensively. "This thing will overflow pretty soon if you don't come back to watch it."

"A buck says it won't," he replied as he calmly proceeded with his windshield wiping.

"What makes you so sure?"

"Because it's got a gadget on it that automatically cuts it off when the tank is full."

"It has?" I echoed incredulously. "How long have those things been out?"

"We've had them for at least six months. Practically everybody has them now. Where you been lately?"

Where have I been? Oh, sniffing around town to see what's new.

NEW YORK.—One of Jo Davidson's friends saw the sculptor's arm in a sling. "I hurt my right hand picking up a stone," the sculptor explained. His friend said: "I hope this won't affect your work," and Davidson told him: "Don't be silly. The true artist sculpts with his head" . . . Davidson, who has made portrait busts of almost every great figure here and abroad, was asked if he ever had made one of himself. "No sculptor ever could do a good bust of himself," Davidson said. "The best you could get would be something like a good map—the curves true, the lines accurate, the perspective proper—but all without comment."

Pavel Tchelitchew, the surrealist painter, made the sets for one of the numbers in "Music at Work." The director of the musical telephoned Tchelitchew and told him: "Tonight I'd like to rehearse the cast in costume, and I'd like to have the settings onstage. Do you think you could get your settings onstage for me tonight?" . . . "What you want from me is too simple," replied the surrealist painter. "I am a magician. I can do magical things. But this is merely a simple thing. And this I cannot do."

Pablo Picasso attended an art exhibition in Paris, and studied the painting which had been awarded first prize. It was a portrait which was almost photographic, and Picasso was asked what he thought of it. "Lifeless," he said. "That's just paint—without microbes."

A musician and a novelist visited Tom Benton at his home in Kansas City, and were shown some new paintings which Benton had just finished. The visitors selected the painting each liked best, expressed their admiration and said that they'd like to buy. "How much would you want?" they asked Benton . . . "No, these aren't for you," Benton told the musician and the novelist. "I found out a long time ago that we artists cannot support each other."

The Museum of Modern Art once held an industrial exhibit, featuring such items as an aluminium bathroom. Al Hirschfeld, the caricaturist, was intrigued by these industrial items exhibited at a famed museum. The day after the exhibit opened a metal ashtray, in the shape of a cowboy hat, suddenly and mysteriously appeared on a table of the exhibit. Beside it was a card: "Functional Ashtray, by Albert Hirschfeld." It stayed there throughout the entire run of the exhibit. Hirschfeld had bought it at Woolworth's.

Price Breaks Viewed as Healthy

By Drew Pearson

When news of the stock and commodity market break first reached the White House, President Truman was deeply concerned. He felt it might start wholesale dumping of securities by frenzied investors, which in turn might touch off an economic depression.

PEARSON

However, after the Council of Economic Advisers had surveyed the market and reported to him in detail, Truman told one close adviser:

"I am now glad it happened—for two reasons. First, we scared a lot of speculators out of the grain market, and, second, prices are coming down to a level where they will be governed more by the law of supply and demand. That's where they should be."

The White House economic surveys show several significant things. Most important to the housewife is that the somewhat hysterical reductions in retail prices are the result of grocers' psychology. Actually, cheaper raw commodities couldn't possibly be passed down the line to bread and meat for several weeks. However, grocers have been scared into price reductions by headlines and the threat of competition. They are gambling on lower prices in their next wholesale shipment. Also the stocks of food on their shelves have increased—due to high prices and the fact that the housewife has simply cut down on her buying.

Another significant factor is that the stock market has remained fairly stable compared with the commodity market. In other words, commodities were price-heavy and toppled.

Presidential economic advisers have reported to Truman that there is little likelihood that the break in commodity prices will spread generally to industrial prices.

Capital Chaff

Mrs. Perle Mesta, Oklahoma oil heiress and Washington hostess, has done such a good job raising money for Truman's campaign that she is being considered for treasurer of the Democratic National Committee . . . Inside reason for the gag order on Army-Navy officers is a bitter row between the Air Force and naval aviation. Forrestal doesn't want it to leak out. And he will be the censor! . . . John Wiley will be the new Ambassador to Iran, Monnett Davis the new Ambassador to Panama—both key posts . . . Carl Sandburg, famed Abraham Lincoln biographer, may be Henry Wallace's candidate for the Senate in Illinois . . . The United States has agreed to keep the American fleet away from Italy until after the Italian elections.

Parran Exit

The announcement of Dr. Thomas Parran's exit as Surgeon General was carefully wrapped in cotton wool so it wouldn't appear that he was being fired. But the inside fact was that he joined the long line of staunch Roosevelt career men whom Truman has recently liquidated.

Not only did Dr. Parran have a great record in the Public Health Service, but he had been an intimate, personal friend of FDR, having worked with Roosevelt when he was Governor of New York State. It was Parran who had the courage to call a spade a spade when it came to venereal disease and launch a Nation-wide campaign against it.

He was fired as Surgeon General, however, solely on the advice of one politician—Oscar Ewing, former vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, now chief of the Federal Security Agency, of which the Public Health Service is a part.

Parran had refused to let Ewing run the Public Health Service and so got the meat-axe.

Merry-Go-Round

President Truman has been promised that at least one prominent Republican Senator will be a surprise guest at the Democrats' Jefferson Day dinner this week. Senator Langer of North Dakota has a ticket . . . George Meany, shrewd AFL executive secretary, will run the AFL's Political Action Committee now that former Senator Burt Wheeler dropped out . . . Friends of Governor Dewey believe that Taft is whistling in the dark when he claims the Solid South. Dewey has just received word that a confidential poll of Alabama's Republicans gives him 42 votes as against only 17 for Taft . . . The Yugoslav government has retained John Pehle, former aide to Henry Morgenthau, to persuade the Treasury Department to turn loose more that 40 million dollars worth of Yugoslav gold which the Treasury is still holding . . . Counting political chickens before they hatch, Harold Stassen's backers predict he will win Wisconsin in the April Republican primaries—even though MacArthur is rated there as a native son.

However dark

When friendships fade and when the clouds . . . Conceal the stars above . . . We still have life eternal and . . . We have the Lord to love . . . When everything on earth goes wrong . . . And there is only rain . . . The Lord is still available . . . To lessen every pain . . . For He is never one to leave . . . When tragedy appears . . . But He is there to comfort us . . . And take away our tears . . . He merely asks that we believe . . . And do the best we know . . . Sincerely and unselfishly . . . Wherever we may go . . . Although our plans may fall apart . . . And all our hopes may dim . . . The Lord will help us if we put . . . Our confidence in Him.

"IT'S IN THE BA
SAID MISS FOSSDY

She is the little lady who puts the protecty and its paper bag over your freshly cleaned garments .. Arcade-Sunshine and seals the bottoms. "I'm a wrapper for a wrapper," she chuckles, giving her expert attention to a bathrobe. "Seriously, we've found it pays to have things cleaned often, before soil is imbedded. Clothes last longer." Garments "clean as a whistle," courteous, prompt service, too.
